have over been sworn enemies This again makes of anarchy the all of capitalism. It is one of the strongest butwarks of the present society against the coming of socialism. Its hilosophy is in no way at variance with capitalism. Its logical violence serves as an excuse to inflame the minds of the ignorant against all those who would seek to change the cetabover and over again the violent deeds of anarchists have been used as an excuse for attacking the only real enemy of anarchy-SOCIALISM.

A Summary.

Is the fine of evidence plain? I hav shown that all that is good in the philosophy of anarchy is but the common places of every religion, reform o social dream that the world has ever known, and that it is found in socialish in a more intelligent and logical form. I have shown that it has been able to attract the attention of intelligent peo-ple only because of a false conception of socialism, for which to some degree alleged socialists are responsible. I have shown that the logic of capitalism and the logic of asurchy are identical, that they are sister products of the same economic organization. I have onstrated that all that is peculiar to the doctrines of anarchy are its in dividualistic interpretation of society which is false, and its method of attaining its end, which is either through ar imbecile quietism and affected humility and self sucrifice, or else murderous private warfare and assassination, I have shown that this conclusion of vicience is accepted by all the leading sharchist writers, including those who have been so much patronized by bourgeois society. I have shown that capstalism looks with favor upon anarchy because it tees in it a valuable ally against its only dengerous foe, the socialist movement. I have shown that the defenders of the established order have no particular desire to abolish anarchy, and could not do so if they wished. I have shown finally that the only sincere opponents of anarchy, tha only ones who dare attack it root and branch and to demand that it, together with the murderous society that gave It birth shall give way to a better order through the peaceful intelligent action of the producers of wealth, are the

All these are fundamental principles in the philosophy of anarchy

Second Accessories.

As the next party to the indictment, the second occessory before the fact and accomplice in the deed, must be placed that other great golitical party who with identical logic, opposed the election of McKinley, and who, after the election have declared he was responsible for the formation of trusts. and all the abuses that have grown out of them. The spokesmen of this party preached the doctrine that McKinley had it in his power to stop or continue the process of trade expansion to set the limits to economic development. They declared over and over again through their press that econome conditions were controllable by those in possession of the powers of governenough in which to denounce the man whose death they are now foremost in deploring, whose character they are now loudest in praising. This party especially adopted the anarchist cry for the reversal of economic development and the destruction of organized production. In agreement with their accomplices in the Republican party. the Democratic party refused in any way to permit a transformation of so clety that would make such horrible outbreaks impossible. They insisted that the poison should be mixed, they demanded that the weapons should be prepared, they helped in the maddening of the brain, but when the natural result followed they hastened to disclaim responsibility.

A Third Group Included.

Because of the conditions fostered and the philosophy preached by these two arch conspirators, as a certain conclusion from the conditions to which they gave assent, there arose a third conspirator, the doctrinal of the philosophic anarchist with his sympathizers be included Mayor Harrison, Mrs. Potter Palmer and the philanthropists and social celebrities of this and other cities who extended so cordial a welcome to gave every reason to believe that they were accepting the full logic of the premises laid down by their previous poli-

POWER OF CO-OPERATION: It is not merely by tens or hundreds hat the Co-operative of consumption an bring families together, if it p properly organized; it is by thousand ay tens of thousands, and even hundreds of thousand. The facts are at hand t

The Maison du Peuple of Brussels, dating from 1882, was started with a capital of $140; in 1899 it owned real estate to the amount of $400,000. In the first half of 1899 it put out 5,005,348 oaves of bread among the 18,000 familes belonging to it.

In France the Union de Lille, of which we shall have more to say later, numbered about 6,000 families among its members in 1899.

We would call attention to the Avenir de Plaisance of Paris to show what may be done in vigorous hands by an Association which started out as humbly as that of the ten housekeepers which we used for Illustration n our first chapter.

In 1873 a few uneducated laborers who and taken part in the movement of the Commune resolved to cut down their living expenses by uniting togeth er. There were only twenty of them. their wives were hostile to co-opera tion, and the police were present, at very meeting of their Board. Thus their beginnings were hard and their propaganda was difficult. Nevertheless the Avenir de Plaisance was established and it lived. In 1884 it still had only 60 members; up to 1890 the Co-operative made little progress.

But then things took a sudden start in 1892 the Avenir had 600 members and 5 employes. Since then its progress has been continuous as the following

Years	Members	Rèc. (franca)	Pro to divi
1892	600	206,189	8,000
1893	1,185	349,258	1,300

1897	3,923	1,302,339	50,343
1898	-4.437	1.434,864	$7,777

In 1896 the Avenir bought a lot for $6,531.80 and built there at a cost of $34,060, a building 56, ft.-9 in. by 195 ft. in which its goods were attractively and conveniently displayed. It sells there every year over 60,000 lbs. of bakery goods, over 100,006 lbs, of soap, 100,000 lbs. of butters 14,000 hectolitre of wine. "Besides it sells shoes, working clothes, dry goods, brushes, cut lery, fruits, groceries, etc. And dur-ing the first half of 1899 the meat market, newly opened, took in $2,000 francs.

In 1899 the Avenir numbered labout 5,000 members and employed 34 persons It had twice as many employes in 1895 In this count of the indictment must as it had members in 1873 when it was

OUR FRIEND THE ENEMY.

An Incident Illustrative of the Eternal Hostility of the Capitalist Press Towards Socialism

What have we as socialist to expect from the capitalist press? This is a question upon which many members of socialist bodies hold very wonderful ideas. They hear it said so often that the press is a "mighty weaor some such stereotyped phrase that they got the idea that the wielders and possessors of this weapon, can be persuaded or cajoled-into forgetting the class interests which they have to uphold, so far as to deal "fairly" with socialism, to repeat in their columns the interpretation which we ourselves place upon the movement. It was a conception of this sort that

o doubt inspired the foolish clause in the foolish resolution which was pro perly tabled at the West Side picnic whereif it was stated that as the press had used the words Anarchism and So dalism as synonomous terms, the same press was asked to give "the wides sublicity" to our absolute disayowal and repudiation, etc., etc.

This can be explained on no other hypothesis than that the press writers, are really ignorant of the distinction between anarchism and socialism, and that all that is necessary is to point out the error, to have it rectified at once.

However, the fallacy of this idea can asily be demonstrated. The events of ne week nowadays, provide sufficient naterial for pricking bubbles like the above. The socialist invariably de-scribes himself as one who points out facts for his bearers or readers to draw their own conclusions fom. Let us see if we cannot find some such which will llustrate the point. And to find them we need not go outside of the week following the West Side picnic.

On September 12, the Chicago Tribne published an editorial on the "Theory and Practice of Anarchy" which opened by stating that whenever a "propagandist of the deed" got in his murderous work, there was a popular tendency to include Socialists in the general condemnation. 'This however, was a mistake. The Tribune then drew a distinction between Socialists and Anarchists, with the latter of which we are not particularly concerned. The socialist, however, was described as wishing to have the "state control everything." It was added that the Socialist urged many foolish irrational and impolitic policies, but they are not dangerous," (whether this latter refers to the "policica" or the Socialists, is rather doubtful, but the reader must take what the Tribune chooses to give him and be thankful.)

Anyhow here was a clear distinction such as it was. Few Socialists, we venture to say, would assert that this distinction was something to be peculiarly grateful for, but at all events one party member who seems to be thanky ful for small (very small) mercies, en deavored to show that so far as he was oncerned a charge of ingratitude could not be laid at his door. In the issue of September 14th a letter signed with his name appears, in which e personally thanks the Tribune for its editorial distinguishing between socialism and avarchy. .

Now be it understood that there no question whatever of the "right" of any, one to personally express his sees fit. That is his business. A letter in the public press is not above criticism, but nevertheless there is no oc asion even to criticise this one. We are principally concerned with the capitalist press and its attitude towards eocialism

Once the "distinction" was drawn it might be reasonably assumed that it would be borne in mind afterwards. Let us see if this was so.

In the same issue of the Tribune which contains this letter of thanks, and also upon the same page, almost in line with it, and separated only by twe or three columns, the following, pur porting to be the true history of Czolgosz appears:

the Socialist literature he could lay his hands on, and finally began to take part in socialist matters. In time he became fairly well known in Chicago, Cleveland and Detroit, not only as Socialist but as an Anarchist of the

"About a month ago Czeigesz atland at which a lecture was given by Emma Goldman, the woman whose anarchistic doctrines have made her no torious all over the country."

We have made no argument against the utility of the capitalist press to "set us right" with the public. There is no necessity for it. All that is required is each month all over the city it was that the press speak for itself, and that the socialist reader gather the full the assassin' placed in juxtaposition with the letter of thanks is sufficiently One thing alone is yet wanting.

A TRAVELLERS TALE.

"Suppression of Vice" in a far of "Land and its Extraordinary Consequences.

Travellers tell us that among the hill thes of India there is a community of people who consider it a disgrace to be seen eating. I have made careful inquiries into the habits of this people, with the following results:

It seems that the members of this tribe admit, like all the rest of the vorid, that eating is necessary; but they call if a Necessary Evil. Their great aim is to drive vice underground. Mone of the Stores on the main street of their village supply any kind of food; but on the outskirts are a number of houses to which the people resert after dark to buy food surreptitiously.

erybody goes to one or another of houses, but all are careful not to served jest they be cast out of so-

It might be supposed that, in a munity where eating is regarded with such horror, gluttony must be un-known. But, at the contrary, we find over-eating is more common there than anywhere. The thoughts of all the people are usually occupied with the subject of eating, and they seldom permit their minds to wander far from it. Whenever a few children get together tories about eating. In school, when uggest food, a grin goes over all he young faces. IT IS THE SAME WITH GROWN PEOPLE. Not only are they always telling indecent stories about food, but even their dreams are constantly dis-turbed with thoughts of it. So ravenously do they eat that their sto are always out of order, and their of energy in eating. Moreover, disease is very prevalent, owing to the bad quality of the food. Being supplied only by the scum of society and in outbad as the whisky which people drink under Probibition, and breeds all kinds of disorders. It is also very costly, because those who sell it are liable at any time to be raided by the police and severely punished, and they cannot be expected to take such risks for small profits. Those who sell the food are naturally despised as the vilest of-manand have no standing in so clety. But they know how to revenge themselves on the Respectables. Young people throng the eating houses under cover of night, and the lymates take very expertunity of leading them into bad habits, teaching them to drink and camble; and even try to polson their sinds against their mothers and sisters These illicit dealers have an inveterate hatred of the respectable merchants of the community, whom they try to infure in every way. Being themselves outcasts, they try to pull all others down with them. So deplorable has the ondition of affairs become in this comnunity; that all good people are discussing means of checking the Social Evil, as they call it. Vigilance court tees have been formed to drive vice still farther underground. Every month the keepers of enting houses are brought before the Police Magistrate and fined. Sermons are preached from every pulpit describing the lives and haracters of those who sell food, and pointing them out as examples of the wful consequences of eating. But it is all in vain. Vice is driven farther derground, BUT EATING GOES ON ALL THE SAME. There are many enlightened people in America who ought to be able to suggest a cure for by the late Wilhelm Liebknecht, so- of the many anecdotes scattered the Standard Socialist Series. It is a small book, but it contains solid, thoughtful reading. The life of Marx is the life of labor movements from the arliest agitation of such conditions in Germany France and England.

There is great beauty and pathos in the description of the family life of the ticle. The biography of Karl Marx will great socialist.

BOSTON IDEAS: It is a most interesting sketch of the every-day life of a man of genius who necessarily, because of the active nature of his thought, lived his life constantly among public interests—and his biography, herefore, is full of expression of what he intrinsically was. It has been admirably translated by E. Untermann, who has faithfully preserved the spirit of the original. Liebknecht's manner of writing renders the picture of Marz to us in a more vital way, and with more living color, than could otherwis have been the case. Living with Marx as much as he did, in sympathy with him and his ideals as thoroughly was the case, the narrative of such a sive. Texas: After giving a long summary of the contents of the book the Southern Mercury says: "Liebknecht gives in a most charming style all the details of prove an Interesting book to students of advance of civilization."

WORKERS' CALL, Chicago: Up till the present time comparatively little of Marx as an individual has been accessible to the English speaking public, but Professor Untermann's excellent translation has at last placed such information within the reach of all. Binding and typographical work are of good quality and there is little doubt but that the series will be a valuable addition to socialist literature in the English language though it is questionable pass the first as interesting and entertaining reading matter.

REVIEW OF REVIEWS, New York: Liebknecht's biographical memofrs of Karl Marx are the most authentic sources of our knowledge of the great socialist's life.

All who are bound by economic fetters and cannot change their place of abade without incurring the danger of starvatice, must submit to this infuence, be it good or evil. And no human being on earth can escape its bane entirely. The American president who is assassinated, and the striking miner in ideho who is shot down by a sheriff's posse; the man out of a job who is thrown out of his mortgaged home, and the Boer in South Africa who is driven, into the desert; the American admiral who is court martialed for winning a battle in the absence of his superior, or the Chinese general, who is beheaded for losing it; the millionaire who dies of apoplexy from gluttony, and the Greenland Eskimo who dies of starvation because the whaler and sealers have killed all the game in sight—all these feel the force of capitalism.

Some time ago there was a prop

visit of the Czar to France which was abandoned, and in connection therewith it was impounced that it had been found impracticable to float another Russian loan in Paris. His Imperial Majesty is now on a tour of wealthy countries and the "Bentsche Warte" says that as a result of his visit to German wat-Germans has, with the sanction of the Government taken over $20,000,000 of Russian railroad bonds. A St. Petersburg disputch to the Berlin "Neuste Nachrichten" says that a Franco-Russian loan of $200,000,000 has been arranged; the Czar is in France, but will not visit Paris. It would be interesting to learn how much larger the loan would It is not generally known, and indeed have to be to get him to the capital. So these two forms of capitalist jour nalism, with two distinct functions exist side by side. One death with fiction. the other with fact. The FICTION is that the common interests of "all the people" are bound up in and represented by the individual ruler.

The PACT was stated fifty years ago by Mark and Engels in these words "The executive of the modern State is out a committee for managing the on affairs of the capitalist class."

And the financial organs of capitalism such as the "Journal of Commerce", are in themselves the strongest testimony to the truth of the latter statement.

OUTDOOR AGITATION.

Interference With Meetings Again Materializes, Two Evisodes of alizes. Two Episodes of Last Saturday.

Local Socialist activity has again at tracted the notice of Chicago capital sm, which is now, under cover of the excitement occasioned by the murder suppress the outdoor agitation which has been carried on during the summer by the party. At the bottom of this hostility des the well founded fear of the local politicians that Socialism so assiduously advocated, may make a breach in the capitalist fences during the coming local elections, that will not be easy to repair. We assure them that their fears are fully justified.

At any rate last Saturday sa'w the spening of the attack. At a meeting in progress at Milwaukee and Armitage Aves, two well known Republican made a vigorous attempt to stampede the audience by hurling the epithet of "Anarchist" at the spe Comrade John Collins, who was expounding the doctrines of Socialism. They made all sorts of physical de-monstrations against the speaker, and threatened lyaching, in the hope of getting the growd to take up the cry. Comrade Collins held his ground and the attempt utterly failed the two disturbers sneaking off when offered the speak ers' stand after the latter had conclud-ed his address.

The meeting was in many respects remarkable one. Before its opening some difficulty was experienced in finding a compade to introduce the speaker but a young lady in the audience who was interested in socialism solved the difficulty. Miss Swensen, who is abou sixteen years of age, courageousl mounted the stand and in the cooles and most distinct manner possible an nounced the object of the meeting and the name of the speaker, a service which compelled the admiration and respect of the audience.

Then came the interruption above related. After its fallure, the crowd numbering over seven hundred, gathered around the speaker and listened mos attentively to the address, which evidently made a far greater impre than it otherwise would, had the interruption not taken place. A comrade who was present informs us that he observed a local prominent church mem ber standing in the rear of the crowd while the heelers were attacking the with shouts of "kill him", "lynch him." After the disturbance was over this disciple of the meek and lowly one also sneaked off. The second meeting which was held at Paulina and Milwaukee Avenues was also disturbed, this time by a police officer whose ill judged zeal may him dearly, if the party push the case as they at present intend. Comrade Weisher was speaking when the officer arrived and asked for the permit, which was shown him. He then went away but returned shortly and rushed the audience off the sidewalk. The speaker invited the crowd to stand on street and was threatened by the officer who called him "anarchist" and told him to mind his own business. He then went away for the second time. He reer to step down from the stand as he had something to say to him. The speaker complied and was at once in formed that he was under prest. NORTH SIDE.

The only meeting held on the North Side this week following the excitement was at Franklin and Oak Streets and good sized crowds listened to Comrade Sand and Morris. A collection was taken up and Calls distributed. Cold weather spoiled the rest of the meetings. and with the exception of one at the corners of Oak and Franklin, Clark and Walton Place and Wrightwood and Sheffield Aves all other meetings will be called off.

Clubs should get ready for indoor meetings:

The speakers club will meet on Tuesmy evening instead of Monday at 133 North Clark Street, basement.

All North Side members should atend and learn something about Soialism and Socialist tactics.

All clubs will keep up their orders for Calls. Clubs at their Business meeting should listen carefully to the reports of the Division Organization, and ar-

SOUTH SIDE.

Open air meetings on the South Side this last summer and including this last week have had good and bad results-Good for socialism and had for Capitalism-and the capitalist class has not been slow to realize this fact. More especially have they recognized the value of this particular work the last two or three weeks-as a consequence they have at different times tried to break up our meetings and have as many times falled. But owing to the cold weather we shall be compelled to hold our agitation meetings indoors after this month. Therefore every ward branch is urged to prepare for these indoor meetings.

Comrades W. E. McDermuty and R. T. To the Editer of the Herald: On receiving the sad news of the death of our beloved President, William McKinley, I wish to say that there should be no delay whatever in getting sid of the brutal murderer of our honored and beloved President, and it is unnecessary to waste any time on him at all.

And after discussing, the mode of punishment that should be inflicted upon the assassin. Leon Croigosz, should be this: First, to make a box just the length and width of the assassin, and make it out of three-luch well-seasoned oak number, put together with 49-D nails, and then saw the box in two with a red hot cross-cut saw, running it at the rate of one stroke per minute, and by the time the box is in two pieces, and if Coologosz does not think that hell has broke loose in old Georgia, I will set up the cider and ginger cakes.

Like every other victor, the exploiting classes are quite willing to let bygones be begones, and they can rest assured also that this wordy confab that s promised, will contain no element of danger for them. It will be strictly onfined to the personality of the individuals taking part in it. There will be no inquiry as to the causes of the growth of the power of the trust no laves. tigation into the structure and bagin of modern capitalist society, no hint that the ballot box has any place in these disputes-nothing except what "I did" and "you did" and "he did" and why did he do it?"

As we said before, little attention will he paid to this wrangle, and to say the truth it deserves none. Explanations of defeat do not possess much interes either to victor or vanquished, more es tocially when the latter insist that th tactics which have inevitably brought about defeat, are still sufficient to seure victory, and therefore must not be changed. There is neither amuse ment instruction or "sensution" anflict. ent to warrant wide publicity from the capitalist press, in the efforts of these leaders to tell just how and why it nappened. Their proceedings will find space only in the Trades Union journals, to which the press is quite willing to entrust the edification of organized labor, on this matter.

Other matters of greater interest to ata workers of that country the workingclass will crowd the deliberations of Shaffer, Compers and Mit-winter, I chell into obscurity. Working hear how Schley looped the loop a to lift the cup, the "results" of the investigation of fraud in the police force, how the great orator Burks Cockran "scored" the British in the interests of the Boers, what that noble people is going to do to the tax dodgers, the newest pulpit scheme to "stamp out" anarchy, and a thousand and one similar items which go to make up the real "news of the day."

But as to how and why the steel strike was lost that is ancient history and hardly worth resurrecting. Any how Messrs Shaffer, Gompers and Mitcheff can throw no real light upon it. Information upon that subject can alone be obtained from the files of the socialist press.

FOILED AGAIN.

How anxiously the capitalist world is watching the progress of the socialist novement, may be judged by the attention paid in the press to the proceedings of the recent annual conference of the German Social Democratic Party at Lubeck. Many hundreds of European fournals commented upon the proceedings, while the American press devoted space to the subject not only in the dispatches from their European correspondents, but in their editorial columns likewise, As other annual confeatures attaching to this one to render that Socialism grows steadily more for-But the reader does not have to seek

Those hopes were disappointcount of it, just the same. It is out of ed, and now the press is getting what satisfaction it can by abusing those who rendered Bernstein's attempt futile.

> It is not necessary to go into the detalls of what Bernstein wanted, Suffice it to say that his ideas included compromises and bargains with the different capitalist parties, the abandonment of the class struggle as a baste factor in the socialist movement and the adoption of tactics similar to those of the so-called "radical" parties throughout Europe.

It is not necessary to enter here into the merits or demerits of this question. The result has proven that when William Liebknecht wrote his famous pamphiet "No Compromise, No Pollfical Trading" he voiced the ideas of tife-immense majority, not only of German but of all socialists.

The strongest evidence that the decition was correct may be seen in the fact that the capitalist press of the world disapproves of it. The position taken by Bernstein was described as an "advanced" one which if adopted would being the movement a "long step forward." This solicitude for the progress was quite sufficient of itself to ensure its rejection.

Every method known to capitalism to arrest or destroy the socialist movement in Germany has for years been tried in that country and all has been in vain. Suppression by brute force making it more effective. This hope has also proven abortive. The "old tactics" will still be adhered to despite the treacherous blandishments of the capitalist press.

Remstein is too late. German social. ism has long passed the stage when the idea of "bringing labor and capital together in some way that shall prove mutually prefitable to both" is a subject for serious consideration. If the class struggle were only a "theory" in the days of Karl Marx, the efforts of the ruling classes of Germany against socialism have taken it out of the range of theory and placed it on a solid basis of fact. No people in the world have received so many evidences of its reality in the most naked and brutal form, as the German workingclass; and the proves that experience is always the most effective teacher.

Take for instance the postal cierks who, some years ago, thought themselves a little above the industrial workers, they are to day, beginning to ship to the proletariat. A government some people suppose. Of course there are soft snaps in the postal service reasons", but the rank and file are rked to the full extent, as in private establishments. And how could it be otherwise? The government of to day, is simply a committee to take charge of the business of the trusts, the men representing the government, all belong to the possessing, laborskinning class and are bound to carry the skinning process into all departments. The mail order business in all large cities and especially in Chicago, has increased wonderfully in the last few years, And instead of increasing the men in the postoffice in accordance with the increase of mail, the officials expect the same number of clerks to perform the extra work. Small pay, long hours, and slave driving, is the rule. the new postmaster took hold, last spring, some of the clerks believed that conditions were to be changed. The first week when the men were getting desperate from overwork, and threatened rebellion, the postmaster appeared on the newspaper section and nade a speech to the men, telling them a lot of nonsense about working for the clerks to remember Valley Forge, that if they would be patient for a while longer, or to the 1st of July, he would change conditions to a paradise. Well the first of July came and 100 additional cierks were put on, divided among the different departments, but in the mean time the mail increased and the 100 were felt no more then a drop of water in a bucket. Conditions are to day as-bad, if not worse than ever before, and the clerks are still at Valley Forge. As the following extracts from their circular will show. Co. stoled in need of them, which is possibly result in a "split" within the the clerks have organized a branch of the A. F. of L. and socialism is making great headway among them.

ONE OF THE VICTIMS.

Extract from circular. A Convention of all the postal clerks in the U. S. was recently held in Milwaukee, Wis., and this circular was published. The delegates will come instructed next year to vote for or against affiliation with the A. F. of L. "GREETING:-Be it made known to you by these presents that a number of Post Office Clerks of the City of Chicago did organize a branch of the American Federation of Labor. This body is officially known as Post Office Clerk's Union No. 8763. It was organized by Thomas I. Kidd, in October of 1900, with a charter membership of 25 clerks. Our reason for this step was that we believe that the clerksthrough-out the country are too little known by the public at large, and we seek by this means to secure the aid of the great army of organized labor in obtaining the recognition which can be obtained in no other way. We realize that we must not stand alo ne any longer. We must be brought face to face with conditions as they exist at the present time. The efforts of the clerks in the past, have been, as you all know, without any definite results. We have found few friends to help our cause along. We realize that we must mark out a new path, or continue to flounder along as we have been for many years. We find by coming to the cold facts, that we are only common every day mortals just the same as any other workers, who depend on the work of hand and brain to supply their dally needs."

in Division, are frightfully appalling. For the past three years matters have gone from bad to worse. From 9 to 14 hours a day has been the general rule. During last September the men on the Stamp Table worked an average having etterly failed, the last hope of of 10 hours and 41 minutes for the enthe exploiting class lay in attempts to tire 30 days of the month, notwithdivert the movement into the mire of standing the fact that there were 5 capitalist politics under pretense of Sundays and I holiday during that time. During the same month the newspaper section worked from 10 to 13 hours a day. The same state of affairs existed in the letter section. During the first five months of this year th the first five months of this year the men in the newspaper section worked every Sunday but three, The mail was not cleaned up from one week to an-other. Every Sunday we went to work we faced from 3,000 to 5,000 sacks of mail. The men were so exhausted by the continual strain of long hours with no day of rest that many were forced to take to their beds for days and even weeks at a time. Several deaths can be directly traced to this cause: two of which took the brightest young men of the service, and two others whose advanced years were sufficient to have required better treat-ment. To cap the long list of hours. the men in the newspaper section worked on Sunday, March 31, 1901, from 9 a. m. to 11:10 p. m. This list of long hours can be shown still longer. Duraction of the Lubeck Congress merely ing this last month when the mail was comparatively light or should have comparatively light or should have been, the entire mailing division have worked from 8 to 11 hours a day, ex-cept Saturday. During the month of December last, the clerks of the Money Order and Registry Divisions worked 15 to 15 hours a day. Do you wonder why we are dissatisfied and look for a loop hole of escape? Desens of men in the mailing division have resigned ars and of from 2 to 12 years in the service, to be put on the sub-carrier I years. Many men are depriving s of proper rest in order to study and fit themselves for other puruits, and this is a grateful government. If we kick over the traces, we are told that we are working for ourselves, and that when we get tired of working for ourselves we can quit. We believe that the Chicago office is not the only office where the clerks have suffered from overwork, and. if any of you have not, you know when you will be overworked. Our positions have been threatened but our little organization strengthened our back-bone and helped us to keep an erect position. We realize that there is nothing like a close organization to bind us together in a solid chain. appeal to you to try our path."

The strike of the South Side Rapid Transit employes was a short lived affair but it lasted long enough to give birth to a story of ettempted train wrecking, of which by inference the strikers are supposed to be guilty. While workingmen remain in employnent on starvation wages, the capital ist class is quite willing to trust them with the lives and safety of thousands of passengers, but when they demand a raise of wages and strike to enforce it, then no story that can be invented against them is too outrageous for publication. Strikers as a rule seem to be wonderfully slow in learning the process by which the capitalist press de cides that "public opinion" is against their efforts. In this strike as in others the employers took the usual position that there was "nothing to arbitrate" and it seems that they speedily brought the strikers to this view of the case, as was clearly shown by the fact that the majority of them asked for reinstatement before the strike was three days old.

No better illustration of the boasted 'prosperity" now rampant, can be given than the ease with which the canitalist class are able to balk every at tempt of the workers to better their condition, by instantly filling their places in the event of a strike The "industrial reserve army", the unemployed are still with us and in such numbers as to render álmost all strikes futile.

This is well evidenced in the strike of the South Side Rapid Transit Co's, employes. Not only was there sufficient men to fill their places but an offer from the St. Louis Traction Com pany to help their brother exploiters out in the matter of wage slaves, was declined because of the abundance of unemployed in Chicago. And no doubt most of the proffered St. Louis contin-gent were themselves engaged in the recent trolley strike in that city, and were yet only too glad to replace the

But more illustrations of this than one, occured in this city last week. A large department store temporarily closed through injury by collapse or explosion, and which was of course preparing to open up with the inevitable "fire sale", advertised for help to the number of three thousand. So many appeared that the firm was easily able to make a careful selection and turn of 8 in the morning and up until noonn, thousands of men and women stood in line on the off chance of securing at the most, work for a week or two. If this occurs in times of prosperity what sights will the inevitable period of de-pression bring forth? And there is no help for it until the workers learn, that while the capitalist system remains these conditions will not only remain but become intensified.

The conditions existing in the Chiago Office, particularly in the Mailn Division are frictions are frictions. where the follers were met with a reluction of from $1.25 to 40 cents per to other work in the same proportion. The Trust will soon make good its losses through the strike.

But the workers. How about them? What means have they to make good their losses? None, so long as they per-sist in voting the ticket of either of the capitalist parties. Yet it is in their power to not only get that trifle of ,000, but the entire country, will be theirs, when they understand their class interests sufficiently to vote their class into power, and the class which they now support, out.

There are times in the history of a State when circumstances arise that peculiarly favor the propagation of views promoting Social and political well being. In the opinion of the members of the State Committee the campaign in which we are now engaged is in such a crucial period.

The public mind is in a formative state. The psychologic time is upon us and we are prepared for it with a spirit that is ready for sacrifice and hard work, and a candidate whose fame and eloquence is beyond comparison.

We need only funds to place willing workers in the places that are open to us. There are only a few towns outside of these where branches exist, practically only a few towns outside of the Sociallist Party.

There have come to other states just such conditions and the New Jersey comrades have not been the last to afford such help as we need now. Wealth and Luxury. It is sometimes said that during this grotesquely hideous march of civilization from bad to worse, wealth is increasing side by side with misery Such a thing is eternally impossible; wealth is steadily decreasing with the spread of poverty. But the riches are ncreasing, which is quite another thing, The total of the exchange values produced in the country annually is mounting perhaps by leaps and bounds But the accumulation of riches, and consequently of an excessive purchas-ing power, in the hands of a class, useful wealth, and sets them offering a price for luxuries. The moment a price is to be had for luxury, it acquires exchange value and labor is employed to produce it. A New York lady, for instance, having a nature of exquisite sensibility, orders an elegant rosewo and silver coffin, upholstered in pink satin for her dead dog. It is made; value of the coffin is counted as part of Eli Whitney the inventor of the cotton the national wealth; but a nation which cannot afford food and clothing for its children cannot be allowed to pass as the memory of the New England cotton because it has provided a manufacturers is exceedingly doubtful. pretty coffin for a dead dog. Exchange value itself, in fact, has become bedev-iled, like everything else, and represents no longer utility, but the cravings of lust, folly, vanity, gluttony and madess, technically described by genteel conomists as "effective demand." Luxuries are not social wealth; the machinery for producing them is not socially useful labor; the men, women and children are no more self-support ing than the idle rich, for whose am ent they are kept at work .- G. Why don't the anarchists invest their spare change in property and thus make the "philosophy" respectable?

So far no lawyer has considered it necessary to apologize for appearing in court for Mr. Morgan or Mr. Rockefeller.

Mr. Roosevelt may rest assured of the support of the Republican politicians so long as he has any offices at his disposal.

Of one thing the workingclass may rest assured. All advice handed out by the capitalist press is for the benefit of the capitalist.

Dr. Parkhurst is back in New York again from his European trip close after the heels of Dick Croker. Misfortunes never come singly.

Now if the Socialists would only adopt as their platform, Socialism as defined by the Chicago American, the Tribune would have no kick coming.

If all the wind wasted on the suppression of "anarchy" could have been bottled and sent to Sandy Hook on Sept. 26th, there would have been a race allright.

Capitalist papers are not making much of the report that Bernstein was turned down with neatness and dispatch at the recent annual conference of the German Socialist Party.

From the various reported sayings of Police Chiefs and similar officials upon socialism and anarchy, it would seem as if they had quite as much knowledge on these subjects as the journalists and clergy.

Judge Lewis, acting as counsel for Czolgosz, stated that the "rabble in the streets" demanded the instant death of his client, which shows that the utter-ances of the pulpit are still a factor in molding "public opinion."

"Nothing like leather". An English nusic teacher now suggests music as a cure for anarchy. If the Marquette Club thinks well of this they might reward the originator of the idea by giving him a job to set their resolutions to music.

Those republican orators who were in the habit of constantly demanding increased tariff to protect the American workingman from the pauper labor of Europe have become strangely silent of ate.

When capitalist papers express sorrow that the German Socialist Party turn-ed down Mr. Bernstein, they only do so because they know that the turning down of the capitalist system is thus brought nearer.

worker is socialist. But is it worth while for the socialist vorkman to establish co-operatives of onsumption?

The answer is plain. We should not egfect any means of propaganda, or luty when we shall have shown the advantages which can'be drawn from these associations by the allied workers or the socialist party.

We may distinguish: 1. Perupual, ammediate avantages

Socialist Party latform.

The Socialist Party of America in National Convention assembled, readhems its adherence to the principles of International Socialism, and declares its aim to be the organization of the working class, and those in sympathy with it, into a political party, with the object of conquering the powers of government and using them for the purpose of transforming the present system of production and distribution into collective ownership by the entire people. Formerly the tools of production were simple and owned by the entire people were simple and owned by the entire people is but an improved and more developed tool of production is owned by the capitalists and not by the workers. This ownership canbles the capitalists to control the product and keep the workers dependent upon them.

Private ownership of the means of production and distribution is responsible for the ever increasing uncertainty of livellifood and the poverty and misery of the working class, and it divides society into two hostile classes—the capitalists and ware-workers. The once powerful middle class is rapidly disappearing in the mill of competition. The once powerful middle class is rapidly disappearing in the mill of competition. The once powerful middle class is rapidly disappearing in the mill of competition. The once powerful middle class is rapidly disappearing in the mill of competition. The scenario of the means of livelihood glues to the capitalists the control of the government, the press, the polyit and the schools, and enables them to reduce the workingmen to a state of intellectual, physical and social infectiority, polyical subservier and virtual elavery.

The economic interests of the capitalist class demirate our enterest of the capitalist class demirates our ent workingmen to a state of intelectual, physical and social intercerty, political subservier - c and virtual slavery.

The economic interests of the capitalist class demirate our entere social system; the lives of the working class are recklessly accrificed for profit, wars are fomented, between nations, indiscriminate slaughter is encouraged and the destruction of whole races is sanctioned in order that the capitalists may extend their commercial dominion abroad and enhance their supremacy at home.

But the same economic causes which developed capitalism are leading to Socialism, which will abolish both the capitalist class and the class of wage workers. And the active force in bringing about this new and higher order of society is the working class. All other classes, despite their agrarent or actual conflicts, are alike interested in the upholding of the expiruments of wealth production. The Democratic, Republican the bourgessis upidic connectain parties and all other parties which do not stand for the compacts overthrow of the capitalist system of production, are alike and all other parties which do not stand for the complete overthrow of the cap-laint system of production, are alike political representatives of the capital-ist class.

The workers can most effectively act as a class in their struggle against the collective powers of capitalism, by con-stituting themselves into a political party, distinct from and opposed to all parties formed by the propertied class-es.

While we declare that development of while we decise that the dever-commic conditions tends to the over-row of the caritalist system, we re-gnize that the time and-manner of the abstition to Socialism also depend un-the stage of development reached the projectarist. We, therefore, conby the proistant. We have consider it of the witmost importance for the S. P. to support all active efforts of the working class to better its condition and to elect Socialists to political offices, in order to facilists the attainment of this end.

BOSTON IDEAS: It is a most inter ting sketch of the every-day life of a man of genius who necessarily, be cause of the active nature of his thought, hed his life constantly among public interests-and his biography, therefore, is full of expression of what he intrinsically was. It has been ad-mirably translated by E. Untermann, who has faithfully preserved the spirit of the original. Liebknecht's manner of writing renders the picture of Marx to us in a more vital way, and with more living color, than could otherwise have been the case. Living with Marx as much as he did, in sympathy with him and his ideals as thoroughly to was the case, the narrative of such a man is strikingly glowing and expres-sive. The book is of prime importance to all Socialists, and to all whose sym pathies tend ever so little in that direc-

SOUTHERN MERCURY, Dallas, Texas: After giving a long summary of the contents of the book the Southern Mercury says: "Liebknecht gives in a most charming style all the details of the sketch just touched on in this article. The biography of Karl Marx will prove an interesting book to students of advance of civilization."

WORKERS CALL, Chicago: Up till the present time comparatively little of Marx as an individual has been acces-sible to the English speaking public, translation has at last placed such in formation within the reach of all. Binding and typographical work are of good qualify and there is little doubt but that the series will be a valuable addition to socialist literature in the English language though it is questionable if the succeeding numbers will sur-pass the first as interesting and enter-

Soers, over and above the sum of $18.40 which was sent to them last year by American lovers of liberty, "Public, sentiment" is to be aroused and the American Transvaal League has girded up its loins for that purpose. It is about to circulate buttons upon which the stars and stripes are stamped in red, white and blue, with the motto, "Make England fight fair" inscribed. There is nothing particularly ridiculous in this idea any more than most others which have been suggested and tried. There is quite as much reason to believe that capitalist expansion can be checked by wearing buttons, as by passing resolutions of sympathy or "scoring" Great Britain in public speeches. If this ethod is found successful in evicting the British from South Africa, the pop will also have received notice to quit. But the Transvaul League is not alone in its recognition of the potency of the button in dealing with social and econmic phenomena. THEORETICAL ARTICLES.

In gathering the material for a So inlist publication, the current events of the day and their interpretation from a socialist point of view, naturally obtrude themselves as the subjects mos likely to attract the attention of nonocialist readers. After a while it be comes, from force of habit easier and ore sgreeable to lay bare the inner workings of some event which the can italist press covers with a cloak of humbug and sham. Socialism being primarily a protest against false pretenses, it is not strange that a very large portion of the columns of its press should be devoted to this purpose. The Workers' Call has dealt very liberally with such subjects-in fact perhaps too liberally. Not in the sense that it has been too harsh in uncovering and exposing the real nature of these questions, and foreing disagreeable truths as conclusions from them, but that too much indulgence in this sort of criticism may lead to some extent to the ignoring of the equally important truth that socialism has a positive and constructive, as well as a negative and desstructive espect.

It may very well be that the "Call has not recently given this side of the subject the attention it deserves, and if this is admitted, we would take leave to remark that the opening paragraph of this editorial does not wholly contain the reasons for such omission The positive side of Socialism cannot be very well explained except in the form of what is known as a "theoretical article". A general protest against theoretical acticles, from our subscribers has been to some extent responsible for their rare appearance. Theoretical articles contain much of what is termed "dry" reading. They are often difficult to understand especially to the non-socialist reader. But it is nevertheless a fact that unless the aforesaid reader is willing to study and consider the positive side of socialism, which must necessarily assume a more or less theoretical form, it will be very difficult for him to comprehend the basis of socialist thought. The critical articles will impress him with the idea that the editor and other socialist writers are merely pessimistic individuals who find their amusement in running a muck at every single institution that society (capitalism) holds sacred; that like the Irishman in the riot at Donnybrook fair, we are proceeding upon the principle of "whereever you see a head, hit it."

Now the Workers' Call is essentially a propegandist paper. Neither the editor nor those who employ him wish to see a single issue circulated in which the non-socialist reader cannot find a plain statement of what Socialists want and how they intend to get it. If there has been any such, we can only say. that the omission has escaped our

To make sure that this defect shall not be permitted to recur, we give notice that in the future every Workers' Call shall contain at igast one theoretical article setting forth in the clearest and most definite language possible, the aims and object reasons for its existence. "STARTLING DISCLOSURES."

Fo the Grand Jury has at last made its final report, and the rottenness of being trumpeted forth as if it were the most startling and unexpected conimagined. The "public" had no lekling whatever of the real facts. They sup-Here 's something which did actually posed in their innocence that the police law and order, that the license departmen; and the revenue collected there from was conducted with "strict integrity." That the olf inspector was not a thief, and that collusion between the "public" has been fudely awakened The lid has been lifted from the munipor and the reaking steach almost umes of Araby the blest to fasue forth, nstead of the filthy blast which has to rudely assailed their nostrits.

This "public" is the same phants whose "opinion" against strikers is widely cited in the capitalist press as a deciding factor on the merits of conflicts between brother capital and brother labor. It is a creation of that press alone. Its very existence is as completely fabulous as the horristed attitude which is attributed to it. Uness one is prepared to say that this public is wholly composed of the imbeciles and idiots of society alone, it would be impossible to find any reality corresponding to it elsewhere

Is there any person of average intelligence who has lived in this city ever what is known as the "criminal clases?" Any one who does not know that tribute is levied upon the disor derly houses and their unfortunate inmates? Why, this unasvery connection has been exploited for years in the very press which now fabricates a "public," standing in an attitude of surprise and horror regarding it. Less than six months ago these very paper were filling their columns with accounts of political tribute being levied upon prostitutes to facilitate the election of feat for the socialists. Great heads! the present mayor, the police force being used as collectors. Any man who really wishes to know can easily satisfy himself as to the existence of this form of blackmall by merely interrogating a number of the unfortunate comen who have been thus exploited. If he watches a little more closely he can without much trouble get ocular demonstration of a fact which is in reality such a matter of common knowledge that he who would deny or even doubt it in private conversation, is laughed at as a simpleton.

As for Oil Inspector Burke, the mos surprising fact is not that he was suspected of fraudulent embessiement, but that he has been indicted upon that charge. It will be still more surprising if he is convicted, and most surprising of all if he is punished. What sort of man is it that has not known for years that this man' received political posttions not for competency, but for political services rendered? Who is it that does not know that he has done just what he was expected to do? That the position was actually given him because it furnished the best opportunities for "grafting," and that it was intended he should so use it. The adult inhabitant of Chicago who does not know these things is either deaf or blind or idiotic. They have never been kept secret; on the contrary they have been preclaimed loudly thousands of

Are the disclosures of Bailiff Lynch ment jury bribing a cause for astonishment? Is the case of Thomas Carbine yet forgotten? Has all remem brance of the flight of Dan Coughlin faded away? Does nobody recall the connection of the Illinois Central Ballway with that little episode? It may be that the modus operand of the bribery is of some interest, but the bare fact of systematic fury bribing is about as much of a secret as the death of Queen Anne, or that Holland is possession of the Dutch.

The pretence that these things come as "revelations", to the public is necessary to the preservation of the ing that they are pr capitalist system. It must foster the with those held by Kropotkin delusion of the possibility of their permanent suppression, upon pain of being itself placed on trial. Let the idea once of the Secialist Movement, and the Set abroad that this rottenness and return of jury briller Lynch to Chicago putridity is inherent in the system it. in order to surrender himself into the self and the answer of the public will express itself in socialist votes. And it is this danger that the press really tries to guard against, by inventing a horrified public as spectator of fraud pose, to follow his example in this res of this article to our non socialist read. Ithat can no lenger be concealed. The facts are all the other way. Nobody is surprised. The periodical recurrence of however which in reality are hese so-called exposures has long ago taken them out of the sphere of the usexpected. Just at present the public, or at least the majority of the public. the working class, regard them with apaths and indifference: And when they at length take action in the matter they will strike at the system which produces not only the petty municipa thieves, but also their larger prototypes who despoil the producers under the mask of rent, interest and profit.

BOOK REVIEW.

THE PASSING OF CAPITALISM by Isnder Ladoff. 160 p. p. Paper 25c Cloth 56c. Debs Publishing Co.

With the limited time at our disposa

t is impossible to give this worl the notice that it deserves. In the ing matter which it contains, th author deals with no less than thirty five different theses connected with th subject he has chosen, which appear in as many different chapters. As th structure of the work is by no coherent, a review, to be at all suffi cient would entail a separate treat ment of each chapter which as w said before is a task for which the time at our disposar is altogether in ufficient. However as Comrade Ladoff has condensed an extremely large amount of information in each chapter careful perusal of the work will cer tainly repay every student of social problems, and whether thereader agree with every conclusion drawn or not it will be impossible to deny that the author is not only possessed of a widscope of economic and sociologic information, but also entirely capable . applying it in an equally comprehen sive manner. While the author is certainly not in accord with what may be termed in the main the policy of the party at ppresent, there is little reason for doubting that most of the dissentient views which he holds and voices with positive conviction, are still sub judice. As firm believer in "immediate demands" and the immense field opened forr socialist activity in municipal anairs, his presentation of this subject is certainly entitled to care ful consideration, and it will hardly be maintained by any reasonable party member that the last word has been spoken on this matter. The author adsocacy of the "farmer's plank" is we hink not so defensible, though it is also true that the relation of Socialism to the agricultural proletariat is no yet clearly defined, and much remains yet to be done in the matter of inrestigation, collection of data and material, before even a permanent ge neralization of the Socialist position on this subject can be expected.

In his criticism of the "narrow dogmatic socialist" to whom "Capital" (though he understand it not) seems ar inspired book, the author is unspar ing, though in our opinion, rather ex aggerative both as to the numbers and importance of the aforesaid individu al. Comrade Ladoff also displays horror of formulas, or expressions nly used by socialists, that grough frequent repetition have become such. For instance, he would substitute for the expression "class nscious" the phrase "race conscious" which hardly seems to be a satisfac tory amendment, and which savors of some confusion between the means through which social evolution operates, and the end to be attained, viz the Co-operative commonwealth. But it is underlable that he who runs a filt against expressions which have a tendency to become mere formulas large repeated parret like on every occasion s performing a valuable service. But nevertheless we prefer "class con-scious" to "race conscious" as being more applicable to the operation of a novement whose end is not yet consummated. The era of "ra clousness" is not yet here. It'will be posssible only when through . "class naciouspess" the negation of "class is brought about: But perhaps in writing on a subject like the "Passing of Capitalism", it is difficult to avoid getting ahead of social evolution now and then.

These criticisms, the result of an admittedly hasty perusal, must however, be taken for what they are worth. We can say though, that the reader wh In a copy of this book, will formation on social and economic sub face with many interesting questions which are yet debateable and to which attention must be given in the immediate future. Whatever may be thought of the author's position on these matters, it is certain that he has nade an interesting contribution to the literature of the Socialist move

THE CO-OPERATIVE.

Translated for the Workers' Call;fron "Manual Du Co-operateur S cialiste."

We now come to the advantages which the socialist party may and should derive directly from co-operative

1. In the first place-the resources for propaganda are increased in enormous ortions and that in various ways.

In 1898 it was impossible for the corkers of the socialist party to rent in Paris a large hall for the holding of public meetings. The proprietors, inalist groups, refused to rent their halls moral advantage, the socialist party and this fact constantly repeated, de- | we maintain, will increase in value evmore so. The great meeting at the Tifrom etors, we shall be free in our own per cent. louse: free to explain the revolutionary principles of socialism,

This is not all. A Co-operative is not truly socialist unless it furnishes to the socialist party assistance of every kind. One of the principal advantages is money, which is atill an essential part of the struggle against capitalism. We have arguments that will be used by old already seen that a Belgium Co-operative devotes a minimum of 12 1-2 per cent of its net profits to propaganda. No one will think that this is asking they should not vote your ticket; and too much of the French socialist cooperators, provided that the margin of profit charged on the various articles before the rebate is figured, is not too ment will give you a weak base to high. Take for example a Parisian Cooperative, which divided in 1890 the sum of $11,555,59 among its 4:437 members; according to the Belgium system it should have devoted $1,444.50 to propaganda. The average quota from each member amounts to 22 cents a year, which is certainly not excessive.

> It is higher at the Malson du Peuple of Brussels, as shown by the figures of er from 1889 to 1896, the Co-operative of Brussels deveted to propaganda the total sum of 169,500 francs, each member making an annual sacrifice of 2.76 francs, that is to say, giving to socialist propaganda 3-4 of a centime a day or 5 1-4 centimes in a week. (A centime is not quite one-fifth of a cent.)

Socialist co-operators should discu these figures and decide whether they are not willing to contribute a cent a week to the revolution. If they take this average for a basis, the propagan-institution developed. It will serve to mprove and to scatter more widely the izers and erators in all directions, to roices of socialism into the smallest towns and most remote factories.

will also derive a moral advantage

The Socialist Party proposes to sub stitute for the government of persons the administration of things; the future sessing in common the instruments of erests of all, its collective property has the necessary ability for carrying on properly not only this gigantic administration, but even the smallest commercial enterprise; from this the conclusion is drawn that it is necessary to maintain the wage system and the arbitrary government of persons.

It is worth to consider the contemp with which a bourgeois merchant turn into ridicule "the tack of practical spirit" on the part of socialists. Accordi tions even of the producers, since tha Co-operatives tend on the one hand to manufacture their own goods, on the other hand to unite the producers into ter into agreements;

It is evident that if "business" is the art of "doing up" one's competitors, the managers of a Co-operative cannot claim to be called business men. But if business is simply the capacity for good administration, one only needs to examine our socialist Co-operatives and their prosperity, to be convinced that the socialists are as practical as the large or the small business men of the bourgeois. It is very rarely that a socialist Co-operative disappears. Almost all of them survive, mest of them grow, gain in membership and increase in a still greater proportion their scale of business, creating new departments in proportion as their resources increase

Thus the socialists prove their administrative capacity in an unmistakable way, that is to say, by administering, themselves and for themselves, reforms timidated by the clerical and nation- This proof, a constantly increasing under whatever pretext they could find, owes to its Co-operatives. This proof, for their complete and final enfranprived the socialists of an excellent ery day. called upon to satisfy more numerous wants, it is for its interest to manufacture a greater variety of articles in order to reduce the cost price. It comes into just the same position as the large merchants who find it to their advantage to manufacture for themselves the goods which they sell and the raw material from which there goods are formed. For example, the grocery house of Felix Potin has a factory just outside Paris; it cultivates its own vineyards and manufactures its wine The Paris clothing store "Au Pont-Neuf" cuts its clothing by machinery in layers a foot thick: a great wooler house, at Roubaix finds it worth while to carry on for itself the raising of sheep in the Argentine Republic.

Not to go outside of Co-operatives we recall the Federation of Manchester with its factories for food products, its two soap factories, its two shoe factor. ies, its tannery, its factory for woole goods and woolen garments, its annual production of six million dollars, about one-tenth of its consumption, its seven steamships which go to seck out for it the products of the entire world, its 3,181 workingmen and employes. But if we consider the Federations, taken together, they have an annual production of twelve million deliars (1-12 of their consumption) employing 18,000 workingmen and clerks.

No federation of the socialist Co-operatives having as yet been effected, we can only hope for such a development of production among ourselves. But this extension is inevitable. Already the Vocruit of Ghent, outside of its bakery which makes 100,000 loaves of bread a week, outside of its coffeeom and its meeting halls, outside of its branches throughout the city, outside of its (estival hall (the most beau-tiful in the city and formerly the habi-tual meeting place of the financial and ses its own manufacturing chemical works, because it finds it better to make for itself the medicines which it furnishes to its members, and it is building a great bazuar for novelties, above which there will be halls for meetings,

Even if the Co-operatives of a country do not form a federation they will ders and in maintaining as customers workingmen's factories, such as the Workingmen's Glass Factory, no doubt if there were 250,000 socialist Co-opera-tives in France the life of the glass vorkers of Albi would be far more toiating our Co-operatives, for, if the French law does not favor the federation of Co-operatives, at least it per-mits the formation of corporations in which these Co-operatives can be interested. The first difficulties are a little but the résult will be equally valuable: The construction of factories belonging to the socialist Co-operatives, that is to say, to the proletariat, Thus, by developing normally its ecowill prove to its enemies that it is capa de of administering things in a practical manner while conforming to the principles of justice and of property.

3. Let us add that, as Vandervelde has profoundly said, the socialist party will show itself as something more even than a great unified and living party: if will show within the capitalist socie-ty an embryo of collectivist society which, when the development of Co-operatives is completed, will be economi-cally self-sufficient to the extent that a country which had become wholly socialist would suffice to itself in the midst of the nations still subject to the capitalist regime. There again experi-ence would come to the relief of theory The possibility of a collectivist society

forming a link between the present and

It harmonizes the theorists of the Revclution who show us the final end to reach, with the practical tacticians who are sometimes miscalled "reforme and who reasonably demand in the name of the proletariat, immediate improvements in the conditions of the working class.

We have a right to desire these improvements, but we should ask them from ourselves, from our own strength. our own energy. "The emancipation the laborers must be the work of the laborers themselves."

Now, the Co-operatives of consump tion are a complete response to this great word of Mark; unlike the reforms which the bourgeois concede and may at any time recall, they are "the work of the laborers themselves," a work inalienable and fruitful. They show in what way the question of reforms must be solved. They show that there are excellent reforms, reforms which the people work out by which at once improve the condition of the proletarians while preparing them chisement. They show the absurdity of the question, "should we sacrifice the present generation to future generations?" Between ourselves and our children there is no struggle of laterests, there is no conflict of egoisms. As there exists an actual solidarity between the laborers of the different nations, there is likewise an absolute soildarity between those of successive Neither this solidarity of successive times, nor the international solidarity of the laborers. needs to be created by us and through our sacrifice; it exists of itself, it is the very fact of our necessities which by forcing us to improve our condition prepares the future of therevolutionary prolétariat.

The socialist Co-operatives of consumption are improving the actual life of the inborers and meanwhile preparing for the triumph of collectivism. Through them will be manifested the union of the workers not only of all countries but also of all times.

SOCIALISM

Do you know what it means? "Dividing up?"
No. "Killing off the capitalists?" Not at all.
"Anarchy?" Just the opposite. "Then perhaps it means a heaven or earth that is coming when

"Anarchy?" Just the opposite. "Then perhaps every one is good?" Not that either: Socialism is coming long before every one is good, and it will make it possible for people to help each other instead of fighting each other.

The way that Socialism is coming is this. Socialism sudges of people in the civilined world. First, there is the working class, including all who do useful work either with their hands or their brains. They are as a rule poorly paid because the larger share of what they earn is taken from them (legally of course) by the other class of people. These are the capitalists, who gather in the reat, interest and dividends. Once the capitalists used to work, but now they lire others to do their brain work as well as their hand work. They only draw incomes.

Socialists propose to make the machinery and the railroads the property of the whole people, its stop paying an income to capitalists out of the labor of others, and to give a good living to every worker and every one unable to work, this they propose to do by unling the working people into a party of their own to get control of the government and me it in their own interest.

If you belong to the working class, that is, if to join the Socialist Party, which is looking out for yours investment.

To get a clear and connected account of what Socialism stands for, you should read the new book entitled Collaportusas and Integral Evolutions by Emite Vanderveide, 199 pages, price in paper Ecorcis, in cloth 50 cents.

SEND LETTER OF INQUIRY

ir Candidate for Governor Loses His Position for Avowing Socialist . Principles.

The following letter addressed to the Union Mutual Life Insurance Co's office in Cincinatti, O., by the Socialist Party of that state, needs no preface, being sufficiently explanatory in itself;

Dayton, O., Oct. 5th 1981a Union Mutual Life Insurance Co., Portland, Maine.

Portland, Maine.
Gentlemen:
We are informed that you have terminated the contract of Mr. Harry C.
Thompson as cashier of your Cincinnati Agency, Mating: "We are positive that it would not be for the best interests of this company to retain in its employ a person holding the views of a socialist or who belongs to any party organization which aims to destroy the conditions under which only it is possible for institutions like ours to exist and prosper."

leve in evolution and the power

selieve in evolution and the pure of devolution.

It is a Literary Digest for Sept. 28th ins several articles which show economic questions are becoming reater national importance each and are not matters of concern to what you consider in insignal Socialist Party. History records a an evolution and revolution of an evolution and revolution of common people against which rule and money interests have set them in the political section and approximately the political section and approximately the political section and approximately the political section and the present in the political section and the present in the political section and the present in the political section and the polit

This letter was addressed to the above ed Insurance Company on October Whether they have deigned to reto it or not we have not yet heard, although in our opinion they will not consider a reply expedient. The same plea which they allege as a reason for discharging this particular employewill

These conditions about whose preservation the company is seemingly so solicitous, are the conditions which permit a minority of the population to appropriate to their own use and enjoyappropriate to their own use and enjoy-ment, the product of the labor of the majority, without giving any equivamajority, without giving any equivaient for the same. To this minority the owners and shareholders of the insurance company belong. The insurance company produces nothing. It was established mainly for the appropriation of what others produce. That its peculiar work involves a distribution of this product in the shape of tash payments ou the death of those who have furnished it the means to make them,
does not alter the matter one particle.
It provides nothing—and is prosperous.
This fact differentiates it from those who do produce.
But it requires labor to administer

duct of their labor, and wants conditions tablished which will make this posside. And in working for the attainment of this state of society he necessarily antagonizes the "best interests" of hose who prosper under the conditions of the present.

It was for this reason he was discharged from his position of cashier in the office of the insurance company. He was championing the interests of the class which produces and does not appropriate, against the interests of the class which appropriates but does not produce-the interests of the working class as against the interests of the capitalist class. The party asks the company if the discharge of Comrade Thompson is to be interpreted as the beginning of a class war. This question is really superfluous. The pany knows perfectly well that it is not the beginning, but merely an incidentillustrative of the present existence of a class war. And they know also that if the working class only become as conscious of that fact as they are, that insurance companies will have to go out of business. But the fact that they have discharged Comrade Thompson does not mean that they have got rid of a combatant on the opposing side. On the contrary they have merely given him an increased opportunity to attack still more effectively the conditions under which their "institution" prospers. They have helped by their action to bring the recognition of the

Mr. Phompson is the nominee of the Socialist Party for Governor of Ohio. This action of yours is of more importance than its personal effect outling though all people who hold human life and character as sacred as we do, will join with us in stating that it is a matter of very serious import. If a representative corporation attacks a representative corporation attacks a representative individual for his views upon economics and government, we desire that the issue which you have so clearly stated should be fully considered.

The socialists believe in insurance but are convinced, that the evolution of human life and needs, call for a readjustment of the manner and results of the corporations, it is only a question of thine before the corporation must give way.

We believe in evolution and the power will in the coming election, of course

The beneficiaries of the system by which the workers are robbed of the product of their labor, are now finding it necessary to gather together all the spokesmen of things as they are, in order to check if possible the spread of the heretical doctrine. Taxpayer and Propertyowner.

> But the Chronicle is wrong when it states that the action of the board of education is "socialism." It isn't. It is merely a recognition upon the part of the appropriating class that their slaves, the producers, have reached the point where, under the wage system, they are as a class unable to individually provide enough for their children to make them efficient future slaves for the capitalists. Therefore capitalist society is forced to disgorge a certain amount of the surplus value extracted from the producers, and apply it for this purpose.

This may perhaps be a symptom that socialism is coming, but it is nothing more.

But when socialism arrives, the "board of education" will be consclously elected, controlled and directed by the working class and in the interest of the working class. They will produce the necessary things as they do today, and if THEY consider that the children in the public schools stand in need of barbers, manicures, pedicures, dentists, etc., in addition to the best physical and mental equipment that can possibly be given, why these things will assuredly be supplied. And there will be no Chronicle to antagonize these measures in the interest of a plundering class, for the good and sufficient reason that no such class will exist.

Events now occurring in the Iron and Steel industry and their relation to cr-gamized labor are highly significant, though the connection is not made very clear in the capitalist press.

Last week a statement was publicaed from President Gary of the Federal Steel Co (one of the branches of the Trust) in which he declared that orders were on hand which would occupy over a year, and that in every case GOOD PRICES had been obtained.

The day previous to this, another account appeared describing now a com-mittee of the Illinois State Federation of Labor visited the Joliet plant of the Trust, for the purpose of interceding for the strikers. Their efforts met with an unqualified rebuff.

The rebuff is in itself instructive. In the earlier days of strikes the capitalists always met the demands of the strikers with protestations of inability to concede what was asked for. They could not offord it. Business conditions would not justify it. Now that they are UNITED, and are masters of the situation they simply say THEY WILL

And they cannot be forced by nnything which the Unions as economi organizations can do. The ridiculous threat of physical compulsion made by the Rev. Vice President of the Federation of Lator was merely laughed at as it deserved to be. The bosses are unit-ed—hence their power. The workers are disuntted-hence their weakness. There s but one place where the latter can box, and every time the capitalist contemptuously ignors their efforts to compel him to fisten to their demands he but emphasises the truth of this state-

It is stated that President Roosevelt will recommend to Congress that laws be enacted to curb the trusts. Reciprocity is to be favored. Just why this is expected to act as a curb upon the tsusts is rather difficult to see. Wipout the tariff and the Trascs will smile and reduce wages. Raise the tariff and the working men of New York can have the same result will ensue. Make re-ciprocity treaties and the Trusts will but the latter know it. Co-operative.

THE "UNION" OF LILLE. The "Union" is a typical socialist Co-operative located in the workingmen's quarters of Lille, a city in the northeast of France which, as will be remembered, has a socialist mayor and other officers. Apart from two or three points of detail its organization may be considered as a model, and the full information, written or verbal, which has been furnished to the writer by its manager, Comrade Samson, enables us Acknowledgments are due to Comrade Samson for the assistance which he has thus rendered to our propaganda work A. HISTORICAL.

In the month of March, 1892, about ten workingmen of Lille who had resolved on forming an active organization decided to establish a Co-operative. The total capital on hand was $1.93 which was sufficient to send a circular to their comrades. They, succeeded in interesting some of them, since a month later we find that they had a membership of 40 and had raised the sum of $116. Without loss of time they rented a modes; bakery in a basement at Moulins-Lille, rue Fontenoy, and they soon began the manufacture of bread.

The infant Co-operative had man obstacles to overcome; lack of credit, hostility on the part of small traders even internal dissensions which had been skillfully provoked.

But, in spite of all, the energy of 100 members (their number, had grown-a little) triumphed over all difficulties. Their headquarters and the bakery were moved to a larger place in rue

In January, 1895, the Co-operative infuded a thousand families. Along with the growth of its membership it extended its business. On August 18, 1896, it bought at 147 rue d'Arras a lot of 2,100 predecessor had used up all square metres at the price of 38,890.7 and established there its im proved bakery with the other depart-ments—the building cost 137,640 francs, and the material 26,181 francs. However, it seems that the attention of the editor of the been called to the matter, and in the avoidable, and not due to dissolute or current issue of that paper he criticises the Workers' Call article for leaving as he alleges, the impression that the ideal of Socialism is a society > themselves, the hopeless confusion through which the editor of the Railroad Trainmen's Journal flounders until he reaches the "supposed ideal" of by 'the Worker's Call, we reproduce herewith the major portion of his article:

"The circular is one of the kind that had better been suppressed instead of being given the prominence of receiv-ing the official sanction of the company, for while no reasonable employe will demand the right to indulge, to excess, in intoxicants or refuse to pay his just debts when he can, the fact that the employer makes his decree absolute and unreserved, smacks too much of the imperious assumption of power that he feels he holds because he has the whip hand, which in this instance means the large of the principles it represents. It said: "The power which the company possesses to regulate the personal habits of its employes is a gift from the employes themselves." This is true, but the employes themselves have denounced drunkenness and men who will not pay their debts. It socialism in its most advanced form controlled, would it mean that drunkenness and dishonesty would be the order of affairs? Hardly that, and yet the Worker's Call leaves that condition as a supposedly ideal one and to be secured by the adoption of the socialistic theory. The assertions made by the Worker's Call are as far from the true ideals of socialism as the order of the superintendent is from the decency and fairness that the employer owes to his employe. Socialism does not encourage drunkenness and dishonesty, etc., etc."

The editor of the "Loursel" doesn't desire that he becomes estang in this labyrinth of confusion. Up the working cis could fire themselves from the humilities of the "Railroad Trainment of the Capitalist class rule of which this ciscular was a specimen. If it editor of the "Railroad Trainment of the could fire themselves from the humilities of the "Railroad Trainment of the could fire themselves from the humilities of the "Railroad Trainment of the could fire themselves from the humilities of the "Railroad Trainment of the could fire themselves from the humilities of the "Railroad Trainment of the could fire themselves from the humilities of the "Railroad Trainment of the could fire themselves from the humilities of the "Railroad Trainment of the could fire themselves from the humilities of the "Railroad Trainment of the could fire themselves from the humilities of the "Railroad Trainment of the could fire themselves from the humilities of the could fire themselves the contrary he "denounces" it vigorsly as an "imperious assumption of power" an "error that does not redound so meanly of them. He owes them an to the credit or add to the reputation" explanation—Ue Workers' Call does of the superintendent who issued it. not. It holds that the man who and charges the latter also with a lack of "decency and fairness". The Work-ers' Call knowing that the employes at the ballot box, does not do so bealso resented it, merely went to the cause he wants to become a drunkard root of the whole matter by pointing and a knave. He feels quite able to take out from whence the power of the com-pany to circuiste and enforce com-assistance from a class who under covpliance to its order, was derived-and the editor of the "Journal" admits that its diagnosis is correct. The Workers' Call neither justified nor condemned the circular in question, but the editor only succeeds in producing confusion

He thinks the circular should never have appeared, because "no reasonable

Nothing is more satisfactory to the whatever, but states plainly that any ocialist in his role of expositor of dis- employe found in the vicinity of places whose consideration the expasition is torily dismissed "for drinking". It none whatever. Here is the clause. If

> In future any employe known to drink, or whose breath smells of liquor, drink or whose section of the second of the second of the service, and no excuse or explanation will be accepted. The service jetters and references to other roads of such men will state. DISMISSED FOR DRINKING."

> If the editor of the Journal can twist this plain statement into a prohibition liquor, all we can say is that his inhonesty.

> Again the editor thinks that no reasonable employe will "refuse to pay his just debts". Let him look through the circular and see if he can find the word "just" therein. He cannot; indeed if be could, it would make little difference, but the word is not there. Here is the clause.

"Any employe, garnisheed or com-plained of an account of unpaid debts, will not be retained, unless able to prove to the satisfaction of the superin-tage of the satisfaction of the supering."

Anything about "just" debts there Mr Editor? Or if it be admitted that "just" is inferred, who is to be the judge of the justice-the superintendent would be the normal state of affairs. or the employe? The editor of the "Journal" asserts

In order that our readers may see for with the order, or in other words that 'public sentiment" will endorse what he (the editor) brands as a discreditable manifesto lacking in fairness and decency. If this is so, why is the cirdrunkenness and dishonesty inculcated cular denounced? "a it not rank blasphemy against that fearsome bogie of trades unionism-"public sentiment"?

But the order "takes away fro.a the employes their freedom of action and maker them wards of the C. G. W. R. Co." whines the editor of the Railroad Journal. Why undoubtedly it does, but does'nt "public sentiment" approve of dt? The facts are that the editor first read the order and condemned it, then misconstrued (as we have shown) and justified it, and finally dragged in the hantom, "public opini phantom, "public opinion, show if possible that the corporation and not laving on the lash."

linois State Federation of Labor were discussing the legality or illegality of prison labor, but perhaps he will be prison labor, but perhaps he will be willing to make up for his absence by giving organized labor a highly orname mental, but of oratory about nothing in particular, at the next Labor Day picnic.

A strike of bakers in Italy is causing much alarm to the ruling classes of that country. It is evident that the latter are beginning to see in every strike that new occurs, a prelude to the revolutionary outburst which is constantify, threatened. The government of course has definitely and openly sided with the employers and is now furnishing the masier bakers with men from the public service in hopes that the strike may be thus broken.

"Anarchy?" Just the opposite. "Then perhaps it meags a heaven on earth thair is couling when every one is good?" Not that either: Socialism is coming long before every one is good, and it will make it possible for proople to help each other instead of fighting each other.

The way that Socialism is coming is this.
Socialists understand that there are two classes
of people in the civilized world. First, there is the working class, incinding all who do useful work either with their hands of their brains.
They are as a rule poorly paid because the larger slare of what they earn is taken from them (legally of course) by the other class of people. These are the capitalists, who gather in the cent, interest and dividends. Once the capitalists used to work, but now they hire
others to do their brain work as well as their hand work. They only draw incomes.

Socialists propose to make the machinery and
the railionads the property of the whole people, to stop paying an income to capitalist out of the labor of others, and to give a good living to every worker and every one unable to working people into a party of their own to get centrol of the government and use it is their own interest.

If you belong to the working class, that is, if

It would appear that some workingmen will have to be literally kicked into politics. With all of the machinery of government in the hands of a class that is hostile to them at every point in the economic field, they still in the majority of cases fall to see that their interests on election day is in any way different from the interest of the boss. > This injunction and all similar in junctions which have preceded it are merely notices to the effect that the economic organizations by which the working class strive to better their material conditions of life will not be permitted to operate at the expense of the capitalist class. It matters little throws a curious light on the idea that to plead that the practice of picketing may be essential to the success of a strike. The law has no concern with that side of the question. It says to Union stated that because Mr. Bryan the strikers, "You may quit your work individually or collectively as you see fit; but when you attempt to prevent Conkey establishment, he lost twenty others from taking your places, from entering into a free contract with your former employer, you are violating the laws upon which present society is based, and the law will numbeh you for so doing. If your trades union is rendered impotent in consequence, so much

There are thus two alternatives left for the laborers. They must either submit to the law as it is now, or else change it.

In reality, however, the first alterna ive cannot be complied with. The history of what is known as the labor movement abundantly proves this con tention. The struggle between laborer and capitalist cannot be and has never been carried on without violations of manently suppressed while present conditions exist.

There remains then but one course t be pursued. The law must be changed But the law itself is merely the reflex of the present economic system; it is but the will of one class made into a class, by which the system of private injunction in favor of Conkey, and for ownership in the means of production is perpetuated and conserved. And it in jail in Indianapolis. And probably is nothing more than this. "Law was made for property alene" is the confession not of a socialist, but of one of ity they have, under capitalism, become withheld from Mr. Bryan in favor of the most prominent exponents of the law as it now stands.

These who control the law making power, can frame and enforce its pro-Tisions in their own interests, and no one will contend that it is not right of their exploiters, who have now and proper that they should do so. 3. The account of profits and losses, which details the expenses and the receipts of the half year. These accounts were of particular interest to Jean Wazenimes, for the UNION presents them in an ingenious manner, according to the excellent method devised by M. Wedhof, one of the socialist officers of the city of Lille.

They are grouped and summed up on a targe table in which each article oc upies a line. The expenses: Printing, stamps, power, renewal of the plant, wages, oil, flour, rice, sait, hearing, beer, liquors, lemonades, general miscellaneous expenses, contributions insurance, etc. Receipts: Bread sold, entrance fees, restaurant. THIRD YEAR.—WHOLE NO. 139.

News of the Week And its Philosophy.

Massachusetts republicans are far in advance of republicans in other parts of the country in that they recognize what the issue really is on which the people must shortly divide. The state central committee of that state is making no campaign this year except in districts where socialism has appeared. To such places it will send a few spellbinders to bring the erring back into the fold. It is safe to say that the spellbinders have a few surprises in store for them. Nothing the republican committee could do would please the socialists better. If our argument won't stand criticism and debeie we cannot begin to find out any too scon; however, we know it will and only ask to be given a hearing. The multtee in making that the issue has given us the hearing we desire. out for an increased vote in those localities. Wherever we can have the issue start right and clear, the logic of our position must eventually win and the game in England. Then when they there will be many cities and counties get wages down over there it will if not states where there will be but down in this country. The capitalist works his games worldwide.

Socialists have no interest in the coming elections except as they may register, the increase of the Socialist vote of the country. Without waiting for the seturns we know that the vote will be increased as certain as the day

How many $400 boxes for the horse show can a man buy who is support-ing a family on $9 a week? The answer is, none. Even if he could spare the money the people who are giving the show would not sell him a box. He is committing the crime of doing nsefut labor.

Another central labor body is talking of going into politics, which its members will have a chance to do if the organization turns down the proposition. Gradually the working man is that the net gain for our party fund learning that his vested interests in a job will not suffer if he votes for-his own interests at the polls. ..

To what extent the supreme court is a plaything of capitalism is shown from the fact that no one expects the state board of equalization to obey the supreme court decision ordering it to as-sess the capital stock of corporations. In fact the teachers recognize that they can only get what they believe to be their rights by another law suit. 10 is time the teachers were doing a little voting, or asking their gentlemen friends to do it for them.

THE SPIDER AND THE PLY. At intervals it becomes necessary to idminister a little dope to the small man, lest he rise up in his wrath and smile the Trust, and depart pent stores hip and thigh. The col mns of the capitalist press of course are the chosen medium through which to convince him that from a small cap ital a big business can be built up. S the Chicago Tribune interviews various "credit men" and discloses the brilliant prospect awaiting the "honest man" of good business ability that opens a store with a capital of $250. He may from this humble beginning become worth millions"-and then again he may not, and the chances are now about 16,000 to one that he won't. In ten years they will probably be 100,000 to one, but this probability is carefully kept out of sight. Neither is the facdwelf upon that for the past few years nore than 98 per cent, of the business failures in the United States were under $5,000 capital. But then there are quite a number of hopeful people throughout the country who possess $250 and upwards. They might be induced to come to town and take a business chance. The credit man certainly wouldn's object, but it is opportune right here to say that all the confidence men and "gold brick" dealers in Chicago don't hang around the railroad depots and saloons.

CZOLGOSZ AS A "PROBLEM".

Speculations as torthe future destination of Czolgosz before he had "shuffled off this mortal coll." seem to be the views of the press and pulpit upon the "aparchism" avowed by the murderer. For instance, "Judge" prints a cartoon upon the subject, depicting his clays by advocating the "killing off the internal regions to Auburn prison, asking that the job be put through as ng." "Kill them off like rattle- speedily as possible, as he has a now and unusual punishment which he wishes to try first upon the assassing because they are troublesome to Upon the hypothesis that the latter and." But nevertheless Cadeons was given a chance to escape the preparations which "Judge" pictures the Devil as making for his reception. "Spiritual consolation" was offered him, though whether he availed himself of the opportunity is not very clear. A few days before the execution, Father Fudzinski, after an interview with the prisoner, gave the Associated press reporter the following vague information, "He was born a Christian." said the priest "and although he may have renounced Christianity, he is a Christian i think." How does a corporation lawyer his job?' In nearly every case by demonstrating his ability to blackmail corporations. Then he at once becomes "mora" and complains bitterly of the conduct of the fellows who are trying to succeed as he did, and by the same means.

Why don't the company buy up these parasites and transform them into employes, in the interest of "moralliy" and the "public". They cannot-such action would injure dividends still more. What can they do then for the benefit of the "public." Why, they can get laws passed which will allow them to kill and maim the "hubble" without any fear of personal damage suits. TRUSTS—AND THEIR EXPONENTS

It has long been recognized that a truth no matter how conclusively demonstrated, depends largely for its auceptance with most people, upon the personality of the enunciator. A so-cialist for instance, may expound the natural evolution, and the folly of attempting to destroy, check or even regulate, them by legislation and the "practical" man will in nearly every case decline to distant to what he considers the ravings of an irresponsible crank. The subject fraiter will be totally ignored. The personality of, the speaker alone will be considered.

The same process occurs when the speaker is one, who from his position is considered an "authority" on the subject of trusts, at the Yale Bicenterial it, it which he said nothing about these combinations beyond the subject of trusts, at the Yale Bicenterial, it, which he said nothing about these combinations beyond the commonly as with which every socialist speaker is familiar, and at once the present of the convention although the speakers and alto the property of the State Organization and will be published as the subject of trusts, at the Yale Bicenterial it, it which he said nothing about these combinations beyond the commonly as with which every socialist speaker is familiar, and at once the property of the convention although the speakers are informed to the subject of trusts, at the Yale Bicenterial it which the convention was been wonder, fully advanced and all the delegates start for home feeling happy.

speaker is familiar, and at once the press informs its readers that the distinguished orator gave a most scholarly and thoughtful presentation of the subject to his audience.

And yet as before mentioned Justice Brewer added nothing to the stock of who knowledge on this subject that is not maybe thousands of obscure individuals point identical with his, are scouted with contempt by all so-called "right thinking" persons. But when these viewe are put forward by a Brewer they at once become worthy of consideration. In the first case the persopality of the speaker ensures the rejection of his view of the subjectin the second instance it ensures its acceptance.

But there is still another factor which mitted that he did not know what this tendency would lead to. He couldn't even guess; but he took refuge in th samehow or other take charge of the ing" person this seeming conservatism is a virtue. That Individual, so far as he thinks at all, will at once form centive" of the company, just as so- thinking" person to infer that if the very wise and distinguished Justice to unable to see the results of the tendency, or even to guess at them, why, he, together with all other "right think-push the investigation further. That is the end of it for him, if Justice Brewer is content to let the matter remain a mystery, he is also willing to accept it as such.

But the socialist comes to the dia bolical conclusion that the evolution of the trusts leads inevitably to the colduction and distribution. Worse than all, he backs up the statement with facts quite as formidable as any that ustice Brewer can bring. That is what hurts. The property instinct of our Dogberry awakes. To him the view of the socialist is "most tolerable and not to be endured," and he' becomes all the more fortified in his rejection by the fact that he feels conscious of his inability to refute the argument. There fore he consigns the socialist view to perdition, and maintains that the trust liton never seems to consider the fact is a "problem" which may be safely that the "professions" are overcrowded left to "public sentiment." And there he proposes to stop until social evolution from the mouth of a future 'Justice Brewer" digs him up and compela him to move on again.

The 9th, 10th, 18th ward branches hold their educational meetings every Sunday evening at 8 o'clock at Hull House. Comrade John Gollins will speak Sunday evening Nov, 3 on "The Modern Trade Union and Socialism." Good music. Everybody welcome.

Here is a strange confession. The South Side Protective Association which is making a "crusade" against the "winercoms" states that their efforts are not being made on "moral grounds" alone, but that the fact that the wine rooms injure property values also, is being taken into consideration. We refuse to believe it. Perish the base insinuation! Who ever knew a"crusade in which such sordid motives were involved?

And now the W. C. T. U. of Ohie in convention assembled, has passed a resolution requesting Mrs. Roosevelt to banish wine from the table of the White House. Wine is a mocker all right, and it will now get a chance to practice on that resolution.'

Remember that our WINTER FESTIVAL at the First Regt. Armory, must break the record. Get. ickets and sell them, and then get more and repeat the performance.

to SNAP SHOTS BY THE WAYSIDE

At the last meeting of the Chicago Federation of Labor, the question of orializing Congress to enact laws limiting the powers of the Federal judges in issuing injunctions, came up for discussion and a most interesting debate ensued. The "pure and simple trades unionist actually howled for political action.

What kind? Why they urged that the workers should become active at the primaries of, the republican and democratic parties and see that the friends" of labor were nominated and its enemies turned down.

The veteran unionist, the carpenter Brennock struck the true note when he called attention to the fact that labor received respectful attention in candidate for mayor, but that was not secured by participating in the primaries of the two old parties but by opposing both; and so efficient was that opposition that they UNITED against the labor ticket. The"friends"and the enemies of labor sank their differences and downed the labor movement at that time.

Not being a straight class conscious socialist movement it accordingly collapsed, and the influence gained was immediately lost. The "friends" of labar resumed their vocation of buncoing the workers and the enemies of labo continued to pull the legs of the capiralists as ger usual!

These "friends" and enemies of labor can be again united and they will be soon, much sooner than some of the labor leaders dream of. The growth of socialism amongst the organized workingmen is really becoming phenomenal: the sociatist propaganda no longer tries to capture the leaders but is working with splendid results among the rank and file. We have no time to argue with or denounce the labor leaders who talk so glibly of going into the primaries of the capitalist parties. Let them go there. There is money in itbut an ever greater number of the membership will ignore them and take up'the socialist ballot. Let the leaders make hav while the sun shines. There is a storm brewing that will weem helm them in short order.

It will interest the striking machin ists to know that Chalmers paid several hundred dollars the other day for box at the horse show. The strike doesn't seem to have hurt him much, but suppose Mr. Machinist, that you vote as you strike.

The fact that Booker T. Washington dined at Roosevelt's private table; seems to excite the minds of the southern capitalists proves that the president is more than an ordinary Booker T. Washington is the traitor to his race was less than a year ago justified the distranchisement of the negro in the southern states. These outhern capitalists lack memory, but the president is a statesman and knew whom he dined.

The cause of the "people" has ceived a black eye through the decision of Judge Hancey in favor of the gas trust. The indignation of the workingmen who read this decision by the light of a kerosene tamp will be something fierce.

It will seem to them that all is lost indeed when the constitutionality of the law which enabled the People's and the Ogden Gas Co's, to combine is upheld. But let them possess their souls in peace, they will not have long to wait for a decision which will declare unconstitutional; some law that has been passed in the interests of the working class. Every cloud has a silver lining.

Prominent trades union leaders are an anti-injunction league aiready in existence and it is the best that can be devised. It is the Socialist party and its weapon is the socialist ballot. . . .

There is really no good reason for supposing that Pitchfork Tillman is an anarchist of the Johann Most type, though many might be inclined to think so. He is now reported as saying that President Roosevelt's action in entertaining "that nigger," will necessitate our killing a thousand niggers in the South before they learn their places' Most used to advocate a "massacre of capitalists" by "the people." only advocates a massacre of "niggers" by the "people." Of course the "nig-gers" alluded to are not capitalists and therefore the supposition that Tillman is an anarchist falls to the ground.

While Cornelius Vanderbilt was mak ing a tour of inspection of the shops of the Chicago Great Western Railway in lows, he happened to see an exhibition that was not on the program. Employes to the number of 500 threw down their tools and went on strike while the distinguished laborskinner was inspecting the plant. The president of road who was gresent was petrified with astonishment and couldn't make out the reason why. "We have always treated them fairly, we have even hun ored them," said he. To appreciate the unbounded gall of this remark, it is only necessary to observe that this is the company which issued the famous "Circular No. 17" which was recently discussed in our columns. If Mr. Van-derbit lives he will yet see a strike that will make this one look like six nickels. But it will be at the ballet box.

Capitalism and Crime. Some goody goody people think the orid is growing better. A few facts

In 1850 one person out of every 5,543 vas in prison; in 1899 one out of every 855, and in 1890 one out of every 757, and the crimes represent homicide, theft, and counterfeiting almost entirely. In 1894 there were 7.749 homicides; in 1895, 8,000: in 1896, 10,000: in 1399 about 12,000. From 1892 to 1898 there were 742 suicides and 150 murders in San Francisco. It is estimated that there are over 25,000 sulcides in this nation annually.

Prostitution has increased 50 per cent per capita during the past ten years. It is estimated that there are at present over 600,000 in the United States.

Three thousand babies are abandoned by their mothers in New York City annually.

there being in 1899 161.483 separate places and 433,274 persons employed. Nearly all of these saloons are the re cruiting shops for political corruption, which increases with each election.

In 1850 we consumed 1,000,000 kegs of eer. In 1900, with a population only two and one-half times greater, we consumed 37,000,000 barrels. In 1889 we consumed 506,076,400 gallons of liquors and wines. Seven years later we had increased the consumption to 1,189,379,-448 gallons. Deaths from alcoholism have increased 15 per cent in the past twenty-five years.—Exchange.

Solemnity Record Broken.

Many good people who lay great store upon funeral ceremonies often express horror of being "buried like a dog." As a rule it may be true enough that the funeral of the average departed canine is not a very imposing affair, but that there are exceptions to the rule, the following news item will show: Trenton, N. J., Oct. 19.-Trenton had a dog funeral last week that broke all records for solemnity.

It was for Fannie, the beloved pug dog of Mrs. C. E. Bosser of Cooper street.

Fannie's body lay in state all day in the front parlor of the Bosser home. It required a casket large enough for four-year-old child, for Fannie had grown broad and heavy.

The casket was covered with black cloth and lined with stuffed pink silk. Fannie had been carefully washed so that her light brown fur matched the casket lining nicely. A large bow of white silk was around her neck.

Several hundred school children took leave of the dead pet in the afternoon and at night the children of the im mediate neighborhood and many adults gathered to "view the remains."

There were solemn tunes played of the organ and the children who had frolicked with the dog sang hymns. Before the casket was closed and car ried with much solemnity to the rear yard to be interred under a pear tree some of the children laid on it bouquets of carnations. Later a stone will be placed to mark the spot.

Mrs. Bosser's eyes are much inflamed with long weeping, for Fannie had suffered intensely for ten days and all a veterinary surgeon could do had failed to give relief."

The above is conclusive evidence that the world is growing better instead of worse. Any workingman who has ever a cheap pine coffin for his dead child. will especially appreciate the account of the funeral obsequies of this "be loved pug."

The objection deserves a fair answe and I will try to give it. We use the phrase "socialist co-operation" for the express purpose of emphasizing our ourposes and of distinguishing ourelves from the middle-class utopian re formers of whom I have spoken.

The socialist co-operative of Chicago is organized principally for promoting the cause of socialism, and only inidentally for supplying its members with thes pecessaries and comforts of life at less than current prices. 35th Ward Reorganizes

On Friday evening. October 18th, Branch No. 2 of the 35th Ward reorgan-ted with Comrade Walter Huggins in the chair.

Comrade Geo, L. Simons was elected Secretary-Treasurer, and Comrade Jas.
Wright Organiser and Literary Agent.
Comrade C. A. Harrison was elected committee on speakers.
When Comrade Wright announ.ed that he had a list of 45 persons who desired to become members of Branch No. 2, the announcement was received with enthusiasm.

The members of the branch realize that they have in Comrade Wright an organizer who will make the east half of the 55th Ward give a good account of itself in the coming cam-paigns.

Eight of the members have agreed to pay into the branch treasury $1.00 per month. The secretary has been in-structed to pay the astional and state dues of every member out of the branch treasury on the first day of each month, no member being asked to pay dues who is sick or out of work. All sur-plus funds over and above, the expenses of the branch to be expended on Socialist propagands, literature, etc. Comrade Wright made a motion to form the Workers' Call, which was nanimously carried, and that we pur-nane 100 copies per week. Comrade Mills will be personally in charge of these Training Classes and the work will specially prepare the stades is for field work as speakers and charassors for the party.

The Ocrespondeance work comes in twenty lesses by main. The historic and selectific argument for Secialism is stated in the plainest English and covers all the points of controversy between

Do you know what it means? "Dividing up?"
No. "Killing off the capitalists?" Not at all.
"Anarchy?" Just the opposite. "Then perhaps it means a heaves on earth that is coming when very one is good?" Not that either! Socialism is coming long before every one is good, and it will make it possible for people to help each other
instead of fighting each other.

The way that Socialism is coming is this.
Socialists understand that there are two classes
of people in the civilized world. First, there is the working class, including all who do useful work either with their hands or their brains.
They ar: as a rule posrly paid because the larger share of what they ears is taken from them (legally of course) by the other class of people. These are the capitalists, who gather in the reat, interest and dividends. Once the capitalists used to work, but now they hir
others to do their brain work as well as their hand work. They only draw iscomes.

Socialists propose to make the machinery and
the railroads the property of the whole people, to stop paying an income to capitalists out of the glored of others, and to give a good living to every worker and svery one unable to work.
This they propose to do by unting the working people into a party of their own to get control of the government and use it in their own interest.

If you belong to the working class, that is, if

News of the Week And its Philosophy.

All Chicago was at the horse show this week exhibiting their expensive gar-ments which others had made in sweat shops or in factories, and making an entatious show of the wealth they had toiled not to produce. This again "all Chicago" includes only those who struggle for mastery in the economic have property. Seth Low and all the other reform candidates who were elected will now proceed to forget all the promises they de to the workingmen. They will rule in the interest of their class just as the corruptionists do.

had to pay for it all, even if their own children went hungry.

Possibly the supreme judges are scared half to death over the formation of the anti-injunction league that pro-mises to impeach them. Bluffs of this kind in off years sound pretty large, but when the workingmen continue to vote for the same order of things, the effect of their bluff is somewhat nulli-fied. A solid vote of one million for a workingman's candidate will set a few ople to thinking.

Capitalism in France would like nothing better than a war with Turkey to divert the minds of the people from social problems, and to stem the ever-rising tide of Socialism. Besides, the capitalists profit by all wars, and what does the killing of a few thousand work-ingmen who are unwilling soldiers, amount to beside fat contracts?

Two great financiers, Hill and Harriman, have divided up the Northwest for exploitation. All of the great transportation lines are in their hands and they will see to it that the territory is worked to the limit that the traffic will stand. Still no one seems to be excited Boer reconcentrado camps, according to the best information, are almost as undestrable places to live in, and as mirerable and wretched in their accommodations, as the slum dwellings in our large cities. No wonder the reformers get excited when contemplating them.

Cold weather will send thousands of poor people in cities to charity boards and to county poor agents for assist-arice. True, in nearly all cases the applicants will be women who are unable to work, but because they are women and because they are weak is no reason they should be obliged to beg. The civilization that forces them to de so does not deserve to stand.

No doubt it will be a positive pleasure for workingmen who voted for Seth Low in New York to starve to death under a reform administration.

Brains are not well paid for in Germany, according to Correspondent Curtia. He has discovered that men who could prove to any impartial jury that they purseesed brains, are working for as low as $80 a month. It is too bad, but if Mr. Curtis will look over the pay rolis in his own country, he will find some men with at least alleged brains working for low wages. It is the man who can exploit both brains and muscle who gets well paid the world over. When the man with hrains gets the fact that he is a wage slave pounded into his brains and unites with the the fact that he is a wage slave pounded into his brains and unites with the toiler at manual labor, he may receive more of the good things of life in return for the product of his brains.

In some reports of which we have been unable to get for this week's issue, but the question as to whether there will be a The Undercurre gain is answered in advance. With capitalism working so hard there is sure to be a gain. A systematic effort seems to be under way to clear the country of Socialists. Two or three publications have been suppressed, or father refused second class mail privileges, which amounts to the same thing, a large number of trade journals have been ordered to discontinue their scheme to raise money. The comrades products according to the wishes of advertisements or their paper, several are picking up what cotton they find these monopolies; they will become Socialist speakers, have been mobbed, tying around the fields, and ginning a large number of ministers of the plants, and sending it to the State Secting of the plants, and sending it to the State Secting of the plants, and sending it to the State Section. the Trusts

In 1825 Charles Fourier, the pioneer socialist writer and thinker, thus describes the tendencies of commercial development. "Circumstances are tending toward the organization of the commercial classes into federal companies or affiliated monopolies, shich, operating in conjunction with the great landed interests, will reduce the middle and labering classes to a state of commercial vasselage, and, by the influence of combined action, will become masters tire nations. The small operators will be forced, indirectly, to dispose of their appearance of feudalism in an inverse order, founded on mercantile leagues and answering to the baronial leagues of the Middle ages.

"Everything is concurring to produce this result. The spirit of commercial monopoly and financial speculation has extended even to the great. Public opinion prostrates itself before the bankers and financiers, who in the capitals share authority with the gov-his larger rival. . . Even the large capitalist is giving place to the company; a growing proportion of business can be managed only by gigantic companies with an immenee capital, and elaborate organization, and an army of working people. . . .

In keeping with the general expansion the market also widens until it embraces entire countries and the whole world; and in this world market it is only the most powerful competitor fighting with enormous capital and with the best natural advantages that has any chance of prosperity or even of self-preservation. . . Success leads to an enlarged husiness and enlarged business, on the whole, leads to greater efficiency in the competitive struggle.

power in the hands of the combine corporations, to place at their mercy the source and means of subsistence of the people—to establish an industrial fendalism such as the world has never seen. . . The issue must either be an industrial feudalism served by wage laborers, or the control of industry for the good of the people.

It has been said that the best evidence that can be given that a law of nature is understood is the ability which it confers of predicting results. Thus the best evidence that the law of astronomy are understood is the facthat astronomers can foretell an eclipse to the fractional part of a minute years in advance of its occurrence. And these predictions always come true t we recognize the validity of such (test, is not the fact that industrial development is so manifestly following along the lines which socialist writers predicted years ago that it would, a triking proof that they had correctly inerpreted the laws which control in-dustrial progress? It is certain that no other class of writers has ever been able to predict the course of development with anything like the same ac curacy. And what is to be the outcomof this movement? In 1887 Mr. Kirkup "Socialists regard these colossal corporations and the wealthy bosses that direct them as the greatest pioneers of their cause. By concentrating the conomic functions of the country into large masses they are simply helping forward the socialist movement. Their mission is to displace the smaller capitalists, but they will thereby eventually talists, but they will thereby eventually undermine capitalism altogether. In proportion as the centralization of industry is pushed forward, the easier will it be for the democratic people to displace its capitalistic chiefs, and assume control of it for the public good. They are only hastening the time when a vast educated and organized democracy, subsisting on precarious democracy, subsisting on precarious wage labor, will find itself face to face with a limited number of mammoth capi-talists. Such a crisis can have only one The swifter, the more com plete the success of the most powerful bosses, the quicker will be their overthrow by a democratic society."

We Socialists knew that it could not be otherwise. The ruling ideas of every age have always been the ideas of middle ages it was defended by the Catholic church, just as the Catholic church now defends cavitalism against Socialism. The "Refermation" as it is called, was in the main an effort to harmonize "religion" with the changabused and denounced just as Socialists are today, but nevertheless the new mode of production and distribution established itself, and grew until it became the dominant power in human society. As to my opinion of flags and rags, I have many times publicly made the statement that I am not a worshipper of flags. I only respect flags when they represent a great and just principle. I respect no flag that floats over slavery no more than I would a rag, or no more than did the Confederate soldiers of the South in the sixtles. And the worst rag I despise is the hypocrite in broadcoth.

The above charge against me of having referred to the sacredness of flags as rags I brand as a most hideous falsehood, and the perpetrators have my most sympathetic pity, for their low stunted and ignorant condition.

What pleases me is that the Socialist Party has by its great principle and growing strength aroused the sleepy owl and bat editor of the Mirror and its nameless informant, who it admits would settle arguments and questions with beastly, brute force.

He presented Socialism in a way that would certainly commend itself to the "clear" scientific socialist and at the same time to the fellow who is outside the ranks of capitalism and being wiped off the economic platter, always of course provided he was not so densely encased in prejudice that nothing was possible to reach.

What other class could revolt on behalf of all the world and No other class could revolt against any wrong save one a little more or less wrong than their own practice. But these workers in revolting against their own injuries alone ould be found including and facing almost all the known wrongs of the world. How dignified then is this class struggle of labor! How guilty of perpetuating all crimes are the laborers who slumber! With the workers themselves. I repeat, it is not an ethical or an altruistic struggle. If they were advanced in intellect far enough to see things that way, they would not need for the physical man, a fight for selfpreservation; no more. The Citizen's Union of New York thinks that the corporations are being coerced by Tasminny, says a dispatch from that city. Further on the correspondent says that the fusion managern are greatly disappointed because certain influences in Wall street are agressively on the side of Tammany, and that they are even thinking seriously of taking the voters into their confidence and telling them the truth about the limatier, that the corporations are supporting Shepard in the hope of escaping payment of their "just dues" to the city.

caping payment of their "just dues" to the city.

What does this show, but that these reformers are a gang of lying hypocrites who hold back the truth when it is against the interests of the capitalist class to make it known? Is it not plain from their own utterances that they are merely the puppets which capitalism uses to divert the attention of the working class from the fact that they are being despotted and robbed?

At least, the focialists don't have to be taken into the confidence of these on man to understand their game.

Socialist Party Platform.

The Socialist Party of America in National Convention assembled, reaffirms its adherence to the principles of infernational Socialism, and declares it its aim to be the organization of the working class, and those in sympathy with it, into a political party, with the object of conquering the powers of government and using them for the purpose of transforming the present syntam of private ownership of the means of production and distribution into colective ownership by the entire people.

Formerly the tools of production were simple and owned by the individual worker. Today the machine, which is but an improved and more developed tool of production, is ownership of the workers. This ownership enables the capitalists to control the product and keep the workers dependent upon them.

Private ownership of the means of production and distribution is responsible for the ever increasing uncertainty of livelihood and the poverty and misery of the working class, and it divides society into two hostile classes—the capitalists and wage-workers. The once powerful middle class is rapidly disappearing in the mill of competition. The struggle is now between the capitalist class and the working class. The possission of the means of livelihood gives to the capitalists the control of the government, the press, the pulpit and the schools, and enables them to reduce the workingmen to a state of intellectual physical and social inferiority, political subservience and virtual slavery.

The economic interests of the capitalist class domining our entire social system; the lives of the working class are recknessly sacrified for profit, wary are fomented between nations, indiscriminate slaughter is encouraged and the destruction of whole races is saficitioned in order that the capitalists may extend their commercial dominion abroad and enhance their supremacy at home.

But the same economic sauses which developed capitalism are leading to Socialism, which will abolish both the capitalist class and the class of wase workers. And the activ political representatives of the sapitalist class.

The workers can most effectively act as a class in their struggle against the collective powers of capitalism, by constituting themselves into a political party, distinct from and opposed to all parties formed by the propertied class-

News of the Week And its Philosophy.

The football season it at its height and the pick of young American physical manhood is pitted from week where the idle wealthy may look onand applaud. And who are these young men who are given every advantage that money can buy in the way of food and training to give them perfect physical development which will not only give to them the keenest enjoyment in youth but will also fit them to flight the battles of life? They are the sons of the rich. The children of the poor, stunted in mind and body must snatch their enjoyment from the hours that should be devoted to sleep. One of the immediate deof the socialist party and one that is partly carried out in French municipalities where the socialists control, is equal educational advantages While under socialism we will not be a race of football players, every child will have an equal opportunity for a perfect physical and mental de-

Grover Cleveland, fat, self-satisfied and all important as though he had made a new discovery said last week that capital and labor should be friends. It was probably to impress this fact on the workingmen that Mr Cleveland sent federal troops into Chicago during the Debs strike, at the behest of the capitalists.

Election returns from San Francisco show what is possible when the casional jar. workingmen are united; results will probably show how futile and barren are their victories when they are not united to accomplish a well defined object. Instead of some reforms in the solice force which the new mayor promises, they might have the govern-ment of that city conducted solely in the interests of the workingmen, who being in the majority could in justice demand such a state of affairs.

What appears to be a spasmodic growth of the socialist vote in certain cities, did not just happen. In nearly every instance it was the re-suit of heroic and selfsacrificing work on the part of a small branch in the circulation of party literature. What is possible in one city may be done in all other cities of the country. The workingmen of the land are hungering and thirsting for the truths of socialism even if they don't know it.

Mark Hanna went down to Washington in his private car last week to teil the president a few of the things that will be in his message. Mr Roose-velt did not teil Mark to submit his recommendations in writing as he had requested Mr Gompers to do a few weks before; he held a cabluct recommendations in writing as he had requested Mr Gompers to do a quite socialistic.

No doubt it is true as Lorado Taft es we are living too fast to pro perly cultivate our taste in art. It is to be hoped that the workers in the sweatshops and in the department stores will take the hint and quit working sixteen hours a day that they may devote a few more hours to cultivating the graces and to studying sculpture and painting. Then they should move from the inartistic dwellings on the back streets to modern and larmonious real times on the boulevards. That the socialist propaganda is finally penetrating the hides of the capitalists is shown from the large numb er of arguments against it now appearto week on the field of friendly battle ing in pamphlets, in magazines and in the newspapers. And if one will read carefully between the lines in many of the articles one will discover that the arguments against socialism are written by paid writers, who do put any heart in their task. Certainly if they believed what they are saying they would at least attempt to put the case more strongly.

Progress of the Trusts

Early in the year 1900 the United States government sent a circular leting them to report on trusts and trade combinations in the various countries in which they were stationed.

Mr. F. W. Hossfeld, U. S. Consul et Trieste, wrote as follows in July, 1900: "The formation of trusts has developed in Austria only during the past few years. In the last three years there portant industry in the country which has not resorted to combination. And this in spite of the fact that during this time the legality of trusts has been repeatedly and emphatically denied by the courts." Geo. -H. Murphy, vice-Consul

The tendency, however, seems to be less towards the establishment of great trusts which have for their object the suppression of trade competition for the advantage of individuals at the expense of the tablic than toward the forms tion of cartels and syndicates for the protection and development of individual industries."

Erastus S. Day, consul at Bradford England, wrote May 19th, 1900:

A LESSON IN "DIVIDING UP".

One of the peculiar contradictions of apitalism, lies in the fact that it often illustrates by its own actions the char ges brought against Socialism. For instance nothing so horrifles the capitalist soul as the pretence that Socialism means to "divide up." One would sup ose from this that outside of the "dividing up" of the product created by labor amongst the capitalists themselves, this reprehensible practice had pretend. For instance last week the arnegie Company "divided up" a sum of $2,000,000 amongst its employes. Not amongst all its employes, of course but amongst forty-nine of the "most deserving." who in every case happened to be superintendents, purchasing agents, paymasters, timekeepers, inspectors, and various "bosses" of shops and departments. The amounts ranged between $20,000 and $80,000. An examination into the motives prompting this action, and its effects, may perhaps be worth space in our columns. It is not difficult to understand why the division was made when the posttion of the recipients is taken into acing the function which was peculiar to the individual capitalist in the earlier stages of the present mode of production, namely the supervision and direction of the exploitation of labor. The capitalist has gradually been transormed into the "shareholder," and his place as supervisor and director of industry has been taken by hired slaves whose remuneration is called salary inreturn and more than return, in the shape of increased intensification of labor, and various economies which will tend to cheapen production, increase the output, and displace labor at the within the sphere of the lucky recipients who will be atimulated to greater exercions in this direction through the county of their masters in thus dividing up with them a moiety of the sur-

SNAP SHOTS BY THE WAYSIDE

The last meeting of the Chicago Fed ration of Labor was a complete illus tration of the utter helplessness of La or when it falls to grasp the question of the class struggle, that is, the right of the working class to participate in the advantages accruing from intellectual and industriel progress.

When the question of making a contract with the Edison Company for a supply of electric current to light the hall, came up for discussion, it was discovered that the Edison Company was a scab concern. Some of the dele-gates then demanded the abrogation of the contract at once, and carried their point.

Then come the dilemma. The Edisor Company a scab concern. The Gas Company, run by the Gas trust, also s scab concern. The adoption of keroof John D. Rockefeller. Candles? Why Rockefeller and the Stockyards would exploit them in that case. Even if they were to fall back upon the pine torch, the lumber trust would get a chance. Delegates who are so wilfully blind to the truths of Socialism need no light anyhow.

Then an illustration of the working of the Autonomous Trades Union prinsion between the carpenters and the erected by scab labor during the recent lock-out was boycotted by the building trades. A capitalist then rented a store in the building, laid in a stock of union made goods, employed union retail clerks, and then demanded the patronage of organized labor. The carpenters insisted that the boycott should stand.

When will the working class learn that they must UNITE to accomplish anything for themselves instead of pulling in opposite directions? One united against the entire capitalist in detail against fragments of the cap italist class they are helpless.

San Francisco workingmen have laid own consumption, in the election of a candidate who, though a trades unonist, hastens to assure the capitalists that their interests will be safe in his hands, and that their property rights will be carefully conserved. The workno "property" and therefore no "rights" soon be wondering what they did it for, and again the truth will be horne in upon them that the relief they

N. E. C. Announcement.

To the State and Local Organizations of the Socialist Party:

of the Socialist Party:
Comrides: In acordance with the provisions of the National Constitution you are hereby informed that the first annual meeting of the National Committee of the Socialist Party will be held in the city of St. Louis, Mo., at let a. ... on Friday, January 24th, 1992, for the transaction of the affairs of the national organization.

Arrangements will be made by us for the reception, entertainment and meeting place of the National Committee, particulars of which will be published in due time in the Socialist press.

In view of the requirement that the expenses of the National Committeemen in attending this meeting shall be paid from the national treasury, the respective state and ierritorial organizations are expected to enable us to meet this provision by faithfully sending us tiefregularly monthly proportion of national dues.

As most of the national committeemen are likely to be effective speakers, some of them of national reputation, it is probable that they would accept invitations to speak at certain points on their route to and from St. Louis, under an arrangement whereby the organizations tendering and invitutions would defray at least part of the traveling expenses. The adopting of this plan would tend to reduce the expenses of the national organization (of the meeting of the national committee)), while utilizing said gathering to inaugurate a period of agitation meetings through the country.

We take occasion to impress the committeemen and the measures which they adopt must serve for the guidance and instruction of the local quorum and the undersigned. Yours Fraternally, LEON GREENBAUM, National Secretary.

Pesolution adopted at a business meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of the Socialist Party Saturday October

Whereas-Circumstances have trans-

Whereas—Circumstances have transpired which necessitate the removal from the city of a valued comrade and faithful worker, in the cause of Socialism, Mrs. Hall, who, together with her husband, also an active and efficient party member, is migrating to the South, therefore be it.

Resolved—That we, the members of the Women's Auxiliary, desire to express the sincere regret, which we individually and collectively feel in being deprived of the assistance and companionship of this highly esteemed comtake, and wish her to know that she takes with her to her new environment the fraternal sympathy and best wishes of each and every member of this body. It is believed that though absent in person she will be with us in spirit, that she will follow our procedings with interest, rejoicing with us in prosperity, sympathizing with us in adversity, until we once more have the pleasure of welcoming her to our, circle.

We feel that though the Auxiliary has lost her active services. Socialism still retains them, that they are merely transferred to a new sphere, where she will labor as energetically and effectively as she has with us.

Resolved—That a copy of these resolutions be referred to our party organ for publication.

WOMEN'S AUXILIARY—SOCIALIST PARTY.

A new organization is being formed purpose of which is to teach transples of Socialism, and to advant every possibly way the ethical a conomic issues of the Socialist Party.

conomic issues of the Socialist Party.
The influence of woman in politics is first becoming a powerful factor. Already three states have extended suffrage to woman and in a short while her right to citizenship will be acknowledged and conceded.
With this accession of power there must be accession of knowledge. New issues growing out of new political and industrial conditions confront the nation. The political batties that from this time out are to be fought involve great moral principles that will detergreat moral principles that will determine for all time the future of the Republic and the fate of civilization.

Briefly stated, the vital question underlying political conflict is: Shall the United States lapse into an oligarchy with its ruling and its ruled classes, or expand into a great co-operative or expand into a great co-operative commonwealth that will ensure to ev-ery citizen those things that are essen-tial to the development of a true man-hood and womanhood? Shall aristoc-racy w democracy prevail? Shall-civ-

Plutocracy is thoroughly organized.
It not only has absorbed the wealth but seized the political power of the nation. It commands all the intricatmachinery of political enginery. It controls the press, the pulpit and institutions of learning. Worse than all it holds within its deadly clutch those mental and moral qualities on which mental and moral qualities on which the life of a nation rests. That foun-dation is now being shaken by the moral rottenness infesting more or-less every part of public and private

That which is true of the United States is also true of every great nation in Europe. They all mate reached their pinnacle of power on the selfish compelitive monopolistic pinne, and stand halting between two opposing ten lencies, one leaing downward along the path that other nations have traversel and perished—the path of imperialism, of centralization of wealth and power, of luxury for the few and poverty for the many,—the path of mental and moral degeneracy; the other, towards the heights of a nobler civilization than the world has ever known, a divilization in which competitive strife and monopolistic rule will be superseded by a universal spirit of co-operation and mutual helpfulness with increasing mental and moral development.

with increasing mental and moral development.

Which lendency will gain the ascendency is for the men and women of this period to determine.

It is to women, in this supreme crisis in human development that the appeal is made for effective aid and systematic work. Organization is demanded, organization to teach the principle of a higher industrial system than new obtains; a system that, will be based upon the Golden Rule of the identity of all human interests. Propaganda Suggestions

It has been suggested by comrades in the West Division that branches procure a rubber stamp, and stamp the leaflets,or pamphlets and divide them up among the comrades in each branch. who will distribute them from house to house in a given neighborhood. This idea appears to be an excellent one and has been tried with great success by the 35th ward. They are able to pack their meetings. Observations on the Activity of the Working Class in Advocating a "Better System of Society".

Very few will deny that surroundings and conditions are mainly the factor in shaping the ideas of any given individual, "Conditions make the man," s a phrase that is familiar to us all but how many use it without understanding its significance? There are many such who, when they express much benefitted were they to some in contact with those who would insist upon more than a superficial inquiry into the real meaning of such statements. In most such cases the speakers would discover that their remarks though true, were made largely without reflection or thought.

To illustrate this point the following the appeal of the striking miners in the may serve the purpose. The writer of this article was present at a discussion when one of the participants made this remark: "I don't think much of those people . who are trying to advocate a deputy from Monceau-les-Mines, has better system of society. It would also be difficult to show that from this standpoint the working class have ever "kicked" without reason. The late steel strike may be quoted as against this. SIGNS OF DECAY.

Disintegration of the Cohesive Forces in Capitalist Society Now Apparent.

Private ownership, the plvot of exploitation, relies for its perpetuation on two allies: physical force and mental misguidance. The physical factors that empel the discurred proletarians to submit to exploitation by the capitalist where of the tools or production, are hunger, the need of shelter and clothing and the coercive power of the capitalist state represented by the judges, the police and the milliary force. The intellectual factors that help to keep the proletarian in his misery are the captalist press, the political orators of the old parties, and the church.

Socialists are endeavoring to show that it is possible to furnish abundant man beings without private ownership of land, machinery, and other forms of capital, and without either chattel or slipping out of the control of its mas age slavery. But in doing so, the Solalist agitators are, continually confronted by the repressive opposition of the judges, police, press and pulpit, During strikes, workingmen find themselves face to face with the rifles of the regulars or the militia. founded on private ownership. Hence they strive by all possible means to prevent the working class from becoming aware of its slavery. They misrepresent the Socialists and their nims, that would put an end to human misery and profits at the same time. They suppress all news favorable to the emancipation of the working class. They try to interest working men in all kinds of trifling controversies so as to divert the attention of the exploited from the manipulations of the exploiters. And they are most prolific in their declarations that the capitalist system of the exploitation of the many by the few is the best in the world. It is the best system—for the few. The church makes a specialty of saving souls for money. It is the oldest centralized busonly so long as it can sell salvation at so much per blessing. It keeps different grades of salvation in stock which it retails at different prices according to the class to which the consumer belongs. Whenever the question of savthat the strikers had been powerful ing money comes into conflict with the question of saving souls, the church gives precedence to the money ques-tion. Socialist Party Platform.

The Socialist Party of America in National Convention assembled, resulting its adherence to the principles of International Socialism, and declares its nim to be the organization of the working class and those in sympathy with it, into a political party, with the abject of conquering the powers of government and usuing them for the purpose of transforming the piezent system of private ownership of the means of production and distribution into collective ownership by the entire people.

Formerly the look of production were simple- and owned by the individual worker. Today the machine, which is but an improved and more develored tool of production, is owned by the capitalists and not by the workers. This ownership enables the capitalists to control the product and keep the workers dependent upon them.

Private ownership of the means of production and distribution is responsible for the ever increasing uncertainty of livelibood and the poverty and misery of the working class, and it divides society into two hastile classes—the capitalists and wage-workers. The once powerful middle class is rapidly disappearing in the mill of competition. The struggle is now between the capitalist class and the working class. The possession of the means of invelibood gives to the capitalists the control of the government, the press, the pulpit and the working class. The possession of the means of invelibood gives to the capitalists the control of the government, the press, the pulpit and the working class are precklessly sacrificed for profit, wars are formerted bets seen nations, indiscriminate staughter is encouraged and the destruction of whole races is sanctioned in order that the capitalists may extend their commercial douttion abread and enhance their supremacy at home.

bein heal the "dislocation between capital and labor," the Tribune takes exception editorially as follows:

The dominant and startling FACT about the social organization of today is the extreme degree to which the primary motive of the worker has disappeared. Once the individual's handiwork—clothing, shelter, weapons, or tools—was produced for his own use, and hence he had a direct interest in its quantity and character. When, too in the day of small industries, he made commodities to harter or to sell, he had a direct personal interest in the exchange value. Now, however, when he is employed in the factory, and receives not the whole or any part of what he produces but wages instead, he has ceased to believe he has any stake in the product. It is the demand for labor about which he is chiefly concerned. It is because the trade unionist thinks he has no stake or direct interest in his product, that he seeks not to increase its sinount, but instead to increase lits sinount, but instead to increase wages, to decrease the length of the day, and even to limit his regular output. These are now the great aims of a labor world which, by progressive industrial centralization—and despite he qualifying influence of the piece system—is being more and more divorced from any interest in its product, and so from a fundamental incentive.

Whether this vanishing motive which has been behind all the art of the world—great works of art have never been produced on the mere wage basis—is yet to be restored, through some social reconstruction, to labor, is a question which loams big on the horizon of social speculation. Its progressive decline, however, and the sheence of any equivalent, presents LAHOR today NOT IN A "CO-PARTNERSHIP" RELATION.

BUT IN A DISTINCTLY NEGATIVE ATTITUDE TOWARD INDUSTRIAL RESULTS. Nor is this significant PACT materially qualified by the splendid philanthropies of the time. In other words, the Carnegie Institute DOES NOT TOUCH the fundamental breach in the social order.

The modus operandi of the carnival much the same as that of the middle ages, with some help from displays made possible through modern science There are flag poles, various colored bunting, booths, and yaudeville performances, intermingled with the "display of goods," the whole illuminated with 4.000 electric lights, while 5,000 tin horns and wooden rattles have been distributed gratis to the children of the district by the local merchants who as the report states, "staid within their shops taking care of the Saturday's

In this respect capitalism has utterly reversed the spirit and content of the ancient carnival. The form of amuse; nest still remains; the motive has been ompletely changed

The carnival of ancient times took shape wholly from the desire of the resident community for amusement Trade was only incidental, and such as it was, consisted altogether of objects intended to provide satisfaction or supply wants during the period of the car nnival alone, and the sellers of these objects were not the residents of the locality but wandering peddlers and travelling merchants who were attracted to the scene by the chance offered to supply articles needed to keep the merrymaking going on.

felted with the spoils extracted from American wage slaves, is going around seeking to destroy its weake oreign brethren, the German press representing German "public opinion," declares defaulty that the American's will not be permitted to absorb Carping industries.

How are they going to prevent it? It is hinted that the Imperial credit will be used to safeguard these industries which the American capitalists desire to consolidate and thereby effect rester economy in their management and make them more efficient profit

The proposition to use the Imperial redit for this purpose sounds very like the Populistic schemes which were current here some few years ago. It reads ig on paper, but when subjected to a Socialist analysis becomes ridiculously insignificant.

The Imperial credit will be used to naintain the competing lines now en gaged in the shipping industry under the German flag. This idea is about on par with the proposition that Rocksfeller should invest his capital both in he People's and Ogden Gas companies in order to maintain them as rival industries, with all the waste that com petition implies, attached.

But even if the government did adopt this ridiculous proposal, it would avail nothing. German, or no other shipping business, can be maintained in the com petitive form, against the industry as it can be and will be organized and operwith the concentration of capital at the disposal of the American ruling The German lines will either have to consolidate of quit business. the very fact that the big trusts on this side of the Atlantic are getting after them being in reality lantamount to an utilmatum. The Trust said to its proprietors in much the same tone that it speaks to workingmen: "You can accept our terms, or you are at liberty to refuse if you see fit" Iron Works refused.

What happened? The Trust, control ling the mines, the source upon which the Union Iron Works depended for its raw materials, simply declined to sup-ply, which was equivalent to saying: When you of your own accord come into the Trust, there will be plenty of iren to run the works," The Union Iron Works saw the point and came in. In like manner the German ship owners the imperfectly organized individualist capitalistic concerns which attract the attention of the big trusts will get a lesson on the "freedom of contract" which they themselves have used against the working class.

Last week several prominent club women visited the sweat shops and tenement house districts of Chicago on a tour of inspection. What they saw surprise, and a great many other word f similar import. According to special corre Curtis, the Socialist Party of Germany, although very impractical and visionary, is yet an exceedingly good instrument for promoting useful legislation. But Mr. Curtis didn't advise the Amer Ican workingmen to imitate their example by voting the Socialist ticket and thus becoming a "useful instrument." Probably an oversight on his part.

The Germans are making efforts to assection on the West coast of Africa the latest experiment in this direction as been made in Togoland, and is decribed in the following article, taken from the Brunswick Landeszeitung of September 1, 1900: If the present attempts succeed, a great future is opened to our Togo colony. The government has taken into its service four intelligent negroes from Alabama, who have matitute in Alabama. EXAMPLE OF SELF CONTROL ic Comments on the Pavi ulton St. Through the City Government, Nearly every one has noticed the air of superiority assumed by those intel Anarchists." They think that any manifestation of their sapiency does, and ought to, make a Socialist feel spell-bound and helpless. Any hint lectivism is met with a smile of mild olerance and pity.

Lucifer, a weekly paper, is largely filled with the writings of this class. It is located on Fulton street, Chicago, which street, says Lucifer, needs re pairs of the pavement. The street car in repair, but will not do so; whether the refusal is due to too much anarchism, or not enough, is not evident. The Fulton Street Improvement Association was formed, and welcomed by Lucifer as a "new anarchistic organization." The delegation explained to the editor of Lucifer that many streets were paved by individuals at a less price than the city would do the work. (Where such work is up to standard

This is anarchism. Thousands of passengers are to be stopped on their of corporations. My whole desire and way, while individualistic residents and the preparation of long years is for ananarchistic railroad companies dispute about the setting of paving blocks in election I think the whole organization a few bad spots, here and there. I here will take up the establishment of asked an individualist what if certain persons on a street refuse to supply was that they would not be allowed to step upon it. A picket would thus be fusing, to see that he always goes out the back door and through the alley. It this person could overcome the picket by force, well and good; if so, double the pickets.

"Anarchism means self-control." says Lucifer. The self control of the street to keep its agreements and repair the pavement, is truly admirable. C. F. H.

At last we Socialists will have to to the mark. A product of the Chicago University has told us all about it in an article in the Tribune. This is what the public." ment of mankind on the other."

The old French materialism of the ndividual by itself as a separate pheon, detached from its surroundings and history, and undertook to explain it by purely physical causes, without the assistance of divine power. It was avowedly atheistic. But it broke down at two points; it could not account for the origin of the individual; it could not say whether the chicken existed before the egg or whether the egg existed before the chicken. Neither ald it solve the question of ethics; it saw that human nature is a product of social environment, but when asked what determined the social environ-ment it could give no answer except that human nature determines the environment and the environment determines human nature. This is what has been called metaphysical materialism, abstract materialism or individual materialism, as distinguished from dialec-

This old materialism was supplanted by the results of two lines of investigation wholly distinct from each other both in time and in subject matter. Darwin with his evolutionary materism helped it out on the question of the chicken and the egg. Marx with his social materialism explained the mystery of human nature and morality. Is there any necessary connection be these two, as is frequently

The carlier of these was Marx. According to Marx himself he reached his nclusions by a study of legal institutions and particularly of Hegel's Philof Law. The first publication of the law of social growth by class struggles is to be found in Marx's "Poverty of Philosophy," published in 1847. In 1848 appeared the COMMUNIST MANIFESTO, which has ever since been looked upon as the standard expoaition of the doctrine. Nothing important has been added to it since, and if, Mark had died after writing the Manifesto, the doctrine considered purely as discovery would have lost but little. A remarkable resume of this doctrine is contained in the preface to Marx's Critique of Political Economy," published eleven years later in 1859; but this pirt of the preface belongs back in the earlier period and has nothing to do with the subject of the book it-self. With the publication of the Maniself. With the publication of the Mani-festo in 1848 the foundation of Marxian-socialism based on class struggles was completed. At that time Darwinism did not exist. Nothing was said about dialectic materialism as distinguished from the old French metaphysical materialism. It was not thought neces-sary to show any connection between Socialism and materialism, and no at-

Historical materialism is the term commonly used by Engels. But history means history of human society; historical means social. Hence, as a variety of names is sometimes useful in making a new idea clear, it might tained by society as a whole, also be called social materialism, economic materialism or simply economi cism, meaning the supremacy of economic causes in social life.

Economic Systems.

At all times the orthodox Political Economy he a been a reflection of the interests of the ruling class. As those interests have continuously changed with the changes in social organization, the doctrines of political economy have changed with them. Hence, when we come to discuss the contrast between Socialism and Political Economy it is necessary to explain which of the various systems of Political Economy we mean.

Therefore a short survey of these various systems that have prevailed may not be uninteresting. The word Mercantillats met constantly in economic writings, is the term applied to the economic policy that prevalled from the beginning of the 11th to late in the 18th century. This was not so much a school of Political Economy as the policy of the statesmen of this time. Great nations were just beginning to take form, and each nation sought to make itself a self-sufficing, independent economic unit. Each nation endeavored therefore to keep the balance of trade in its own favor, hence this policy is sometimes called the "balance of trade theory." To the mercantilists the only real wealth was gold and silver coins Therefore they tried to sell as many goods and buy as few as possible to make the value of the exports greatly exceed the value of the imports.

By this means a stream of coin would be kept flowing into the country hav-ing the favorable balance of trade, and that country would accordingly grow in wealth.

We find traces of this same idea existing down to the present time, as for instance in the cry for more markets, and in the newspaper boasting over the growth in "our" exports.

But the fact is that we are sending away actual useful wealth in exchange for this coin, and this while a large per centage of our population are des-perately in need of the goods. Then, again, the class that receive the in from the "favorable balance of trade" is the system of capitalism began to enter-upon the stage of history. The indusof Nations. The old exclusive national cantilists on trade gave way before this new power.

Thus the maxim of Laisses Faire, says: "Labor had become nominally the let alone policy, handed on by the independent after the Peasants' revolt Physiocrats, began to prevail and was, of 1381, and at the same time it con- advocated by Smith in his book. But Laissez Faire implies free competition, and by this means Smith claimed men's striction to industry and the new manufacturers — of wool, especially — that were growing up, left the cities and formed new villages outside the restrotions of the gulids.

The ultimate result of all this was to be that the best men would always receive the highest rewards, the best methods of manufacture would predominate, and the goods would be handled in the chespest possible manner.

Every person was to be free to comto contract with every other To interfere with these sacred rights of contract and competition was s one especial contract that all capitalist governments and their Political nists are particularly concerned with. That is the "wage contract," for nowhere was it more frequently de-clared that the sacred freedom of contract prevalled than in the bargain between employer and employee, Nothing must be done to keep the laborer from selling his labor power as he and his employer should see fit. So the first child labor laws were declared uncon-stitutional-not because they were against the interests of the employer; oh, not but because they infringed the "freedom of contract" of the child who was thus prevented from exercising his sacred right of making a contract with

Of course the Socialist has been quick to point out that a contract when the contracting parties are not of equal strength is not a "free contract" at all, and that therefore no such sacred-right ever existed for the laborer.

Another idea of this school of Political Economy was that capital was the result of saving. It was held that all capital was accumulated by virtue of the fact that its owner was economic ical and put by a portion of his earnings each week or month or year for re-in-vestment, and everybody was advised to do likewise and also become capit-

The fact is, of course, that capital is accumulated not by individual saving, but by re-investment and expenditure in the purchase of labor power which will yield surplus value., Capital is thus the result of exploitation, not saving.

One of the best examples of the way which this invariable law theory worked out was shown by the wage fund theory.

This law, if it had been true, ag it never was, would have made labor unions and all efforts of laborers to inrerease their wages useless. since only a fixed part of capital could be devotes to the paying of labor.

J. S. Mill is the text book in Chicago University, but it is Mill with much left out. For example, the following will not be found in the edition used: "The restraints of Communism would be freedom in comparison with the present condition of the majority of the human race. The generality of laborers have as little choice of occupation or m in this and most other countries, are practically as dependent on fixed rulers and on the will of others as they could be in any system short of actual slavery."

The way is a before every one is good? "Not that either: Socialism is coming long before every one is good? "Not that either: Socialism is coming long before every one is good, and it will make it possible for people to kelp each other instead of fighting each other.

The way is hat Socialism is coming is this. Socialists understand that there are two classes of people in the civilized world. First, there is the working class, including all who do useful work either with their hands or their brains. They are as a rite poorly paid because the larger share of what they earn is taken from them (legally of course) by the other class of people. These are the capitalists, who gather in the rent, interest and dividends. Once the capitalists used is work, but now they hire others to do their brain work as well as their interest and of the capitalists on the railroads the property of the wildle people to stop paying an income to capitalists out of the labor of others, and to give a good living to every worker and every one imable to work. This they propose to do by unalting the working people into a party of their own to get control of the government and use it is their own interest.

Scalalists propose to do by unalting the working people into a party of their own to get control of the government and use it is their own interest.

of the government and use it in their own interest.

If you belong to the working class, that is, if you get your living by working ned not by some kind of begging or stealing, it will be worth your while to learn what Socialism means and to join the Socialism areas and to join the Socialism parameters out for your interests.

Rickaby on Socialism The present exploiting class is the most useless known to history. This accounts for the utter lack of great figures in

A Review of the Pamphlet Now Being Circulated by the "Catholic Truth Society."

Catholic Church usually acts in all est objection. countries when it enters politics, we so it is with his silly little illustra-are justified in concluding that this is tion of the fisherman and his family an official declaration of war from the under Socialism, who having prospered "powers that be" within the Roman "in their craft . . . will start an Cathelic Church. That this action will other boat and, man it with hirelings." raise trouble within their own ranks But if whoever wishes, can use a boat we may be sure. There are many who, which is the common property of all like Father McGrady, will refuse to and receive all the fish that he catches, recognize the policy of the high church where can any tools be found to sell dignituries on this point.

Perhaps the greatest danger, or rather the only danger, to Socialism lies in the fact that some Socialists will fall into the trap which such an attack constitutes, and respond by jumping upon the Catholic Church as an institution. This would be just what the enemies of Socialism would most desire. It would change the discussion frem the dangerous ground of Socialism to the perfectly safe position of religion. So long as the laborers spend their time thinking about religion, cap-italism is fairly safe, and it does not or the orthodox form of Cathelicism, ntism, or the doctrines of the Salvation Army and the Christian Sci-SOCIALIST. To attack the Catholic Church because of the action of Rev. Ricksby and Archbishop Corrigan and the "Catholic Truth Society," Is as silly as to call for the abolition of the Pest Office because of the recent discrimination against Socialist papers, or to join in the cry of "lynch the niggers" because Booker T. Washington is a valuable decay duck for capitalism. It is not churches, nor post offices, nor negroes that we want to abolish, but capitalism, and if this incidentally hurts any of these others, that is none

So it is that in a consideration of this pamphlet I shall discuss it in exactly the same way as if it were written by a Hindbo, an Ingersolitie, a Presbyter. ian, or a Salvation Army lassic. It is only possible in the brief limits of a single article, to touch upon some of the more manifest absurdities of his argument, and perhaps at some other time I may go more into details.

He puts the issue fair and square at Lazarus, he says: "Property now is on its trial. If the existence of Dives is n benefit to Lazarus. n benefit to Lazarus, . . . then well and good, but if his existence is a bene-the "iron law of wages" which the Sose for Dives in the time that is coming on earth." Good! We accept the ing description of the woes of the present worker, with which we most heartly agree, proceeds to define Socialism. "Socialism involves a transfer, sudden and probably violent, of all capital to the State." But Socialism proposes nothing of the kind. Here is our old more. It is the same old straw man that has been merrily bowled over wled over pose is that the present state

"Socialism," he continues, "to be successful would need to embrace the civilized world." It will do that same, but not for the reason he gives in the next sentence, where he says: "Otherwise the threatened capitalists would hasten to transfer their wealth to countries where private capital is still allowed." Did it ever strike the Reverend that it would be a pretty hard job for the capitalists, who are usually not accustomed to hard labor, to dig make any difference to the safety of up the coal and fron mines, tear up the capitalism whether their thoughts on railhoads, pack away the mills and facthis subject take the negative form of tories, cart off the great city blocks secularism, infidelity and agnosticism, and scoop up the choice resident districts and valuable suburban property of this country, and carry it away to some country where the wicked Soentist. All these matters are strictly cialists would cease from troubling and none of the Socialist's business. AS A the weary capitalist would be at rest. the weary capitalist would be at rest And by the way, Rev. Rickaby, would you just-mention where such a country is located? What you mean is that they would carry away their paper titles, their stocks, bonds, deeds mortgages, etc. Well, good riddance to bad rub-bish with them. The laborers could get on very well without them, thank

Then he pictures the terrible times that would be ahead of his imaginary Socialist state, if ever his imagine Socialist government should find itself in the power of an imaginary "fighting who should inaugurate an imaginary revolution to establish an imaginary tyranny. "This is the sort of stuff that dreams are made of," not Socialism, and need not occupy our attention further than to ask what would be the object of all this commo tion in a society in which there was to be no economic gain from political supremacy. What would his "fighting guild" live on while they were drilling He puts the issue fair and square at the start. Designating the capitalist and laborer of today by the names of the start. Van Sant says that the combina tion openly violates the law, and that an extra session of the legislature. Just how new laws would accomplish what the present ones are powerless to prevent, he does not say. But this Don Quixote of competition is-nevertheless determined to run a tilt against the trust to discover as he says, whether it can override the "will of the people" of Minnesotz. His enlightenment on that question is pearly due.

And all over the country, Railroad Presidents and General Managers who see their positions threatened by these combinations are beginning to "scent danger" also, and one of them is reported as stating that "the public will sooner or later rise against such tyrat a black woman under eighteen anny and then there will be trouble," and dismal prophecies are not distasteon that manhood is not entitled ful. Socialists are thankful for Socialism While capitalists are thankful for ineased profits, and workingmen have earts overflowing with gratitude because they have a job and are allowed to live, the Socialist is of good cheer because of the promises for the future Not only for the good time coming is the Socialist thankful but he also refoices in the Socialist Party that is here now. The party, it is true, is not strong enough to give him any of the material things to which he is entitled, because he is living on the earth, but its philosophy unfolds for him the book of life. By it his own actions and the actions of others are explained, and it proves to blin that he as a man is just titled to the best of everything. Others may know this in a hazy way, but it only causes them to be dissatisfied with their present, apparently hopeless lot. the Socialist it is different. He sees the way out of his present unjust condition as clearly as a surveyed road may be traced on a map. He not only sees the way, but he is banded with others in an ever-growing army that is fown that road to the goal at the end. The Socialist is also thankful for the Socialist Party in the brotherhood and comradeship it gives him in the midst f a selfish and indifferent world. In no other fraternity, society or organization, does the word "comrade" have as full and complete a meaning as in the organized Socialist movement. Perhaps it is the only organization in the world in which a man is not measure to some extent by his pocket book. Editor Workers' Call, Chicago, Ill.
Dear Comrade:

I was pleased to notice that it is proposed or determined to change the name Workers' Call to the name of The Chicago Socialist. My way of thinking and looking at things socialistically speaking and interested, how expressive, convenient, solid and the oneness of our cause would appear and inspire, and also tend to allay existing disputes and differences in local or personal matters also tend to allay existing disputes and differences in local or personal matters if all our papers and journals now existing, and those that may exist in future would adopt the name The Socialist.—For instance, The Chicago Socialist. The St. Louis Socialist, The Kansas City Socialist, The Milwaukee Socialist, The Cook County Socialist, The Green County Socialist etc. etc. When more than one paper in a place is needed or started, designate them by No:s, words or N. S. W. or E., or some other convenient or appropriate way—but always keep the expression or word Socialist in its title.

But if competition and the compettive system were to be done away with, energy that is now used in advertising ould be used in the production of useful goods, and the total amount of neessary labor for those who are now do ing that work could be greatly reduced. From another point of view, these figures farnish an answer to those who point to the fact that interest and dividends rise but little above six or eight per cent on the average, as a proof that the laborers are only exploited to that extent of their income. An immense amount of what is taken from the worker is wasted by the capitalist themselves in fighting one another, and benefits neither capitalist nor laborer.

ITALY.

The strike movement and the work of organization are rapidly extending. Since January, 1901, about 400 strikes have taken place, which have on the whole had favorable results for the strikers.

The majority of the strikes have been outright victories, as they either found the employers unprepared or were backed up by the rise in rents that required an increase of wages. The strikers not only received higher wages, but also shorter hours, abolition of contract labor, of Sunday work and of overtime. Labor exchanges took the place of many employment agencies. Many unions forced the employers to recognize ther organizations.

It is remarkable that the strikes suceeded much easier where the working-Over one million signatures against men had a standing organization, while the proposed tariff were collected by they generally failed where no labor men had a standing organization, while organization existed.

News of the Movement

The Winnipeg Labor Party, Winnipeg, Man., is seriously thinking of changing its name to the Social Democratic Party. Their reason is that this name would be more in harmony with their platform. Judging from their nanifesto, just issued, there is very little Socialism and a whole lot of other things in it. It contains a little single tax, plenty of municipal ownership of telephones, tramways, etc., and various other municipal reforms, which, ever though the party was to win, it would be unable to carry out. Such platferms ound big, but mean little. There is nothing in the Winnipeg Labor Party manifesto which might not be adopted by any capitalist party without seriously endangering the system.

Corrigan's Silly Objection to Socialism Re-echoed by a University Professor.

MORE "DIVIDING UP."

Following on the heels of an editorial showing up the weakness of Archbishop Corrigan's chief objection to Socialism, comes Wesley -C. Mitchell of the University of Chicago, (title not stated), in the Sunday issue of the same paper in which the editorial appeared the Chicago Tribune), saying that the Architishop stated the "common objection to Socialism with unusual force." Thus the Tribune gives prominence to a "lay" editorial which contradicts its own (presumably professional) editorial of an earlier date. Wesley says: Socialists seek the remedy in public ownership of the means of production and the distribution of finished products according to some rile of equity, though as to what that rule should be they do not agree among themselves. Individualists on the other hand, hold that the fullest provision for the satisfaction of wants is attained by giving every man a strong motive for raising his efficienwants is attained by giving every m a strong motive for raising his effici-ey as producer to a maximum, a that this motive is best supplied, granting every one a legal claim, what he produces. Under this syst the individual who receives direc-or indirectly an increased return every increase in his skill or exertion naturally led to produce as much as naturally led to produce as much as he can, and by so doing he increases the in gaining a strike, they generally lost, of the wants of others. From this point of view the objection to socialism rests on the assumption that if this strong motive of selfinterest for se ency were removed, every on would sensibly relax his exertions and the result would be a great decrease in the impount of production—that is, a scanter provision for the satisfaction of the wants of the whole community.

Here is stated as an objection to Socialism, one of the strongest arguments that the Socialists have against the present system, i. e., capitalism takes away from the producer the legal right to his product, which he surrenders for wages, which are a small fraction of of our comrades. Thirteen Socialists his product, and protects the capitalist or non-producer in his ownership of the surplus product after the wages are paid. Socialism, by insuring the producer the full value of his product would stimulate production so that every want would be supplied.

After having said, as above, that procedure (as a matter of fact, this rule business is a fiction in the brains of objectors) he goes on as follows:

objectors) he goes on as follows:

Archbishop Corrigan shows in effective fashion how serious the difficulty would be if the rule adopted were one of equal distribution of commodities among all thembers of the community. "If in New York." he says, "all were Socialists, each of the 4,000,000 inhabitants contribute a four-millionth part of the common fund, and, other things being equal, would be entitled to a four-millionth part of the entire proceeds; certainly not a glittering prize for personal ambitton, nor the most tempting onal ambition, nor the most tempting nducement in the world. Before he and Archbishop Corrigan lefend capitalism because of the incentive to production which they think the wage system stimulates, and then, applying a rule which they imagine, or pretend to imagine Socialists favor, they come to the conclusion after al that the present production if divided equally, would not be a "glittering prize or personal ambition." If it would not if divided equally, how under the heav ens do they suppose they can make the vorkingman believe that the present mequal distribution, by which he receives far less that one, man's share "glittering prize." Rockefeller receives $39,000,660 as three months' profits, and undreds of other capitalists receive varying smaller amounts, all of which is taken out of the equal share that every workingman would get under the distribution which these men turn up ambition. Here is where Archbishor Corrigan shows how little be estimates workingmen when he exhorts them to listen to him as their protector against the awful Socialists who advocate a system whereby the workingmen will get the full value of their product. Wake up, workingmen. These men lies through which can be read the truth, confidently expecting that you are told, but the interest on which they grow fat comes out of your hides, and as long as they can make you do their bidding and submit to being robbed, they will never die of heart disease as the result of your interests which they are supposed to carry close to that organ.

Propaganda Suggestions

An ideal organization: members, prenet workers, ward organization, ward rganizers, committee of organizers, with affly one object; the propagation of He Socialist theory.

We have the embryo of this organ zation at present, but there are many things lacking to make it perfect. In the irst place, efforts are dissipated by susiness meetings, which in reality are nothing but talking meetings, Such pusiness as is transacted, is not of esential nature.

The main trouble is that there is not definite plan followed out. Now, the omrades of Chicago have co-operated. and started a paper of their own-the Workers' Call. No private interests whatever. So far, so good. But the place where there is a decided lack of ofoperation is in the support of that paper. A member of the Socialist Party Chicago who does not work for the medium which a majority vote of the party has decided shall be our propaganda paper, is not only working di-rectly against the interests of the party but against his own interests.

The paper is yours-if it does not suit ou say so, but say why. Offer suggestions. If you think you can write better articles, write them and send them in.

If the price is too high or too lov change it. But under all circumstances work for the paper. No better medium for propaganda can be had than a local paper, and there should be no let up in the work for it. This is the best work you can do for Socialism. Let the circulation increase each week, let it climb not fit habitation for a hog. until it is a good source of revenue, and a power for Socialism.

Now as to the best way to work for be Worker's Call (or for Socialismthey are synonymous terms.) Organized work is the best.

Let the branch either assess their embers two or three cents a week, take it out of the treasury, or get up a list of weekly donations. Get a bundle of at least 100 papers each week. Then distribute these papers among the comrades and have them give away a copy each week to selected persons in their district, for say four or five weeks. Then call and get their subscriptions. Then switch to another neighborhood and repeat the process.

Stamp all papers, books, leaflets, etc., that are given away, with the announcements of business and propaganda metings in your ward.

The bundle order scheme is the chespest and best. Think what two and a half cents a week from each member of the party in Chicago will mean. It will mean 5,000 copies every week, dis-Socialists do not agree as to a rule of tributed systematically, besides the regular mailing list. Is it worth trying

WALTER THOMAS MILLS, GIRARD, KANSAS,

Do you know what it means? "Dividing up?"
No. "Killing off the capitalists?" Nor at all.
"Amerchy?" Just the opposite. "These perhaps it means a heave or or earth that is coming when every one is good?" Nor that either: Socialism is coming long before every one is good, and it will make it possible for people to help each other histerial of fariting each other.
The way that Socialism is coming is this.
Socialism inderstand that there are two classes of people is the civilized world. First, there is work either with their lands or their brains.
They are as a raie phorip paid because the larger share of what they earn is taken from them (legally of course) by the other class or
them (legally of course) by the other class of people. These are the capitalists, who gather in the reast, interest and dividents. Once the capitalists used to work, but now they hire
others to do their brain work as well as their hand work. They only draw inclumes.
Socialists propose to make the machinery and
the railroads the property of the whole people, to stop paying an lacome to capitalists out of the labor of others, and to give a good living to every worker and every one anable to working people into a party of their own to get Control of the government and use it in their own inserext. So If you belong to the working class, that is, if

to join the Socialist Party, which is looking out for your interness.

To get a clear and consected account of what Socialism stands for, you should read the new book entitled College the And Industrial Evolution by Emile Vandervelde, 19 pages, price in pager Socialism of Socialism or a discussion of some special phase of it, short enough to read in half an hour, take any issue of the Focker Linearty OF SOCIALISM. A Peep Behind the Scenes.

Inside History Leading up to the Attempt to form a New Labor Party in Chicago. Harrison, Brought to Time by the Capitalists, Dares no Longer Give Political Offices to Hungry "Labor Leaders". Disintagration of the Democratic Party Makes Birth of a New Decoy Duck Necessary. Well known Labor Skates Take the Initiative.
Star Chamber Methods Adopted, Growth of Socialism in the Unions a Mensce to schemes of "Political Scabs". Capitalist Politics in Trades Unions Now an Object of Suspicion.

Every day that passes makes it more form another. The idea quickly grew would never have appeared had it not political mechinery, endorse the party been for a series of happenings in local which was already in the field and Pive years ago Carter Harrison went laborers there could be no doubt.

This by no means suited the wouldbor." He received the endorsement of be leaders of the new party. Hence a large number of trade unions, and he they made haste to announce that no paid his political debts by giving City one who was connected with any exist-Hall jobs to the "labor leaders" that ing political party and especially with had engineered the deal. He even went the Socialist Party, would be permitted further and pretended to be upon the to have anything to do with the for-side of the unions in times of strikes, matten of the new party. But a glance and occasionally permitted the police to be conveniently blind when "scabs" were being "persuaded" to be men instead of curs. But the building trades lock-out came on and the building trades capitalists forced Harrison to show whose dog he really was. He fired the stool pigeons from the jobs he had given them as the price of their treachery; sent the gatling gun in front of the headquarters of the Building Trades Council, and instructed his police to see to it that "rights of property were preserved," no matter how many rights of men were violated.

Nevertheless the laborers railed to his support and elected him for the third time, thus declaring that they liked the dose he had given them. But the capitalists were watching him too close this time to enable him to reward the "political scabs" that had once more betrayed their fellow workers. So there arose a large crowd of sore heads around labor headquarters, Still they did not dare to openly break with the Harrison machine lest they lose the last chance to sell their "influence" and betray the laborers of Chicago.

it was that we began to hear of a "Union Labor Party."

We may be sure that if any man at under these conditions is it any wonder that meeting dares to have an idea optimate that the union laborers of Chicago deposed to the scheme which the clique of the Sherman House have decided upon, ened to the counsel of the Specialist and he will not be allowed to speak or in any

Things are developing rapidly in the These men began to ask why when such sew "Union Labor Party" in Chicago. a party existed, it was necessary to evident that it is simply spother decay and soon became a demand, that the duck to entice the laborers within reach unions should, instead of starting a new of the capitalist hunter. This party party with untried principles and no about whose position concerning the

at the list of names of those who are supposed to be assisting at the birth of what promises to be a still-born political child, reveals the fact that practically every one of them has been acttvely engaged in either Democratic or Republican politics within the last few years. As was pointed out in our issue for last week, some of them are already counting on being endorsed or even nominated by one of the old parties for the offices which they expect to get out of this business.

It thus seems that the only kind of politics that is to be barred from this new party is LABOR POLITICS. Any man who has dared to say that he stands for the laborers and the laborers alone; who has been bold enough to announce that the men who create the wealth of the world should own it, is to be disbarred from all connection with this Labor (?) Party.

Frightened out of their wits at the prospect of an exposure by those who really stand for the rights and ALL the rights of labor, these "political scabe" who were seeking to sell themselves and their fellows for a mess of Then came the grand smash-up in the Damocratic machine. As this piece of mechanism flew into a multitude of fragments, with Harrison, Burks, Gahan, Carry and a half-dozen others each securing a wheel or at least a cog. It became evident to these professional labor politicians that there was henceforth "nothing in it" for them. Then it was that we began to hear of a "Un-mitted. Resolution on Socialism and Trade Unionism.

ed at the Indianapolis Conve ntion July 1961.

Adapted at the Indianapolis Conve ntion July 1861.

The Socialist Party in convention assembled, declares:

The trade union movement and independent political action are the thief emancipating factors of, the wage-working class. The trade union movement is the natural result of capitalist production, and represents the economic side of the workingclass movement. We consider it the duty of Socialists to join the unions of their respective trades and astast in building up and unitying the trades and informations. We escagnize that trades unions are by historical necessity organized on neutral grounds, as far as political infiliation is concerned.

We call the attention of trades unionists to the fact that the class struggle so nobly waged by the trades union forces today, while it may result in lessening the exploitation of labor, can never abolish that exploitation. The exploitation of labor will only come to an end when society takes possession of all the means of production for the benefit of all the people. It is the duty of every trades unionist to realize the necessity of independent political action on Socialist lines, to join the Socialist Party and assist in building up a strong political movement of the wage working class, whose ultimate aim and object must be the abolition of wage-slavery and the establishment of a co-operative state of society based on the collective ownership of all the means of production and distribution.

Fellow Unionists,--At the present iuncture when the labor organizations of this city are about to consider the tereste as workingmen, it is only fair members in our organizations should be working class politics alone. neard on this matter, especially as these men have for years insisted that through independent political action alone can the interests of the working class be subserved. And it is not to nuch to ask that you give their views upon this question a careful and impartial consideration

The fact that our organizations have reached the point where the question of dependent political action. ndependent political action can no onger be ignored, is in no way surprisng. The hostile attitude of the two Democratic, toward organized labor is o plain and palpable, that only he who wilfully blind can fail to see it. The aw courts have uniformly upheld the nterests of the employers as against organized labor, rygardless of so-called olitical affiliations. Republican and Democratic judges have vied with each other in launching injunctions against rades unions, and pronouncing jail entences and fires against our mem bers. Republican and Democratic governors, sheriffs and mayors, have been qually prompt to safeguard the intersts of the capitalists, by the liberal ise of physical force as embodied in the police, militia, and other armed bodies and the working class of this city in particular have had no lack of experince in these matters. It is therefore not strange under these circumstance that the question of independent political action has forced itself to the front.

herefore, our organizations have been mpelled to recognize the fact that the pledges, promises and professions of sympathy from politicians of the old arties have been utterly meaningless, so far as improving the material conditions of the workers is concerned Even if it be admitted that these individuals are perfectly sincere in their rofessions (and Such an admission is notoriously at variance with the facts) their impotence is attested on all hands by the results. Political "friends of labor" have never been lacking. There s an abundance of them now, Yet never before has the hostility of the adherents of the Republican and Democratic parties towards organ zed labor een se pronounced. To describe these movements as independent political action is absurd. No action ever resulted from them-for the reason that they were not indeper dent. Their politics were capitalist polthat the voices of hundreds of active lities - independent action demands

Independent political action on the part of the working class consists first a a recognition that they as working lass stand in absolute and conscious opposition to the existing economic order of things, and secondly in a move nent organized and conducted upon that ecognition. Such a movement alone can be described as involving in

But we would call your attention to the obvious fact that there is no ne easity for organizing such a movement It is already here. The SOCIALIST PARTY which embodies ALL the demands of the working class has even low-an organization in every ward in the city. It furnishes a nucleus equipped and organized in the interest of the workers, through which independent solitical action can alone be taken. If is through this movement only that organized labor can utilize its political strength to enforce its demands. Other channels have been tried time and again and found wanting. A movement of Chicago labor organizations is a best local and limited. On the other hand there is not a state or city of considerable size in the Union, in which the Socialist Party is not already ostablished, and growing rapidly, in mos ases gathering its strength through attracting the most virtie, active and ntelligent members of the labor organ zations, who through experience at biservation have become convince that it slone voices the interests of the orking class and that through it alone can the aspirations of the working class be realized.

The Socialist Party is not only no tional but international. It exists in every capitalist country on the earth oday. In some of the less developed it is already a most powerful political fac tor and recognized as such by the captalist classes of those countries, who for years have tried in vain to stem its progress. And in such countries the members of the trades unions have been quick to see the advantages of using the Socialist movement as a me dium to voice their interests, and weapon to fight their battles. So plete is this perception that in many of these countries the terms trade untonist and Socialist are almost synonys mous.

HowPublic Opinion is Formed

A few days after the death of President McKinley an event occurred in London, England, which was immediately seized upon by the capitalist press of this country as an excellent opportunity to link Socialism and as ination together in the public mind

A veteran socialist named Herma old International Workingman's Asso ciation, and who for a long time had followed the business of an engraver in London, was found murdered in his ! shop. The crime was traced to a Frenchman recently arrived in London and financially after his arrival. After his financially after his arrival. After his gogues are people who know what they arrest, the murderer entered a plea of are talking abut. self defense, stating that Jung had offered him considerable sums of money to secure the assassination of Cecil Rhedes, Joseph Chamberlain and sevresident drew up a draft of a bill on eral other prominent capitalist finan-he spot, no anxiety whatever being ciers and statesmen. This offer being rejected with horror, Jung attempted to slay the man who possessed his se-cret and in the souffle which ensued victim.

Since that time the legal proceedings in the case have been completed. The story of the murderer was shown to be an absolute fabrication in every redow of a doubt that the motive of the inent business men of Chicago were trusted by all who knew him, regard-nterviewed on this question, they re- less of political ballarorime was robbery, that the murdered has since suffered the extreme penalty of the law.

But no word of retraction has an peared in the capitalist press. The the ruling class to be lost by telling the truth. The prominence given to the story of the murderer and the subsetruth. sent ignoring of the real facts, merely justified one of the many methods by which the capitalist press seeks to create and form a "public opinion" favorable to present economic condi-

The English people once punished criminals by sending them away. They would load them on a ship and export them to Australia. England was owne The jails are electric lighted. You may by lords and nobles and rich people, not know it, but these economic laws are working all the time, whether we know it or do not know it.

There are more people go to jail in living. They used to take their criminals and send them to Australia-I mean the class of criminals who got caught. When these criminals got over there, and nobody else had come, they had the whole continent to run over, and so they could raise sheep and fur-nish their own meat, which is easier than stealing it: they became depent. respectable people where they had a chance to live. They did not commit any crimes. They were just like the English people who sent them there, ation the descendants of those crim-idals were as good and respectable a

Some of you people have lived in the great relirond companies came along country. It's prettier than it is in here, and fenced it up; And if you have ever fived on a farm you understand that if you put a lot of cattle in a field, when the pasture is are a few personal crimes, like murder short they will jump over the fence; -but they are very few. The crimes but put them in a good field where there is plenty of pasture, and they will be law abiding catile to the end of time. The human animal is just like the rest of the animals, only a little you are all here for crimes against more so. The same thing that governs property, But these people up and down in the one governs in the other.

Everybody makes his living along the lines of least resistance. A wise man who comes into a country early sees a great undeveloped land. For instance, our rich men twenty-five years ago saw property, they make the laws and that Chicago was small and knew a lot of people would come here and settle, and they readily saw that if they had erty you ere obliged to break the rule all the land around here it would be of the game. I don't know but what worth a good deal, so they gobuled the some of you may have a very rice worth a good deal, so they gobiled the land. You cannot be a landlord because somebody has got it all. You must find some other calling. In England and Ireland and Scotland less than five per cent, own all the land there is, and the people are bound to stay there on any kind of terms the landlords give. They must live the best they can, so they develop all these various professions; burglary, picking pockets and the like. everything else. You look at people making a million dollars, and somebody gets the disease and he sterts out. He catches it just as a man catches the mumps or the measles; he is not to blame, it is in the air. You will find men speculating beyond their means, because the nighta of money getting is taking possession of them. It is simply a disease; nothing more, nothing less. You cannot avoid catching it: but the fellows who have control of the earth have the advantage of you. See what the law is, when these men get control of things, they make the laws. They do not make the laws to protect anybody; courts are not instruments of justice; when your case gets into court it will make little difference whether you are gulley or innocent; but it's better if you have a smart lawyer, and you cannot have a smart lawyer unless you have money. First and last it's a question of money. These men who own the earth make the laws to protect what they have. They fix up a sort of fence or pen around what they have and they fix the law so the fellow on the outside cannot get in. The laws are really organized for the protection of the men who rule the world. They are not made to do justice. They were never organized or enforced to do just-ice. We have no measure for doing justice, not the slightest in the world.

Let me flustrate: Take the poores person in this room. If the community had provided a system of doing justicthe pocrest person in this room would have as good a lawyer as the richest, would be not? When you west into court you went have just as long a trial, and just as fair a trial as the richest person in Chicago. Your case would not be tried in fifteen or twenty minutes, whereas it would take fifteen days to get through with a rich man'

Then if you were rich and were beaten, your case would be taken to the appellate court. A poor man cannot take his case to the appellate court; be has not the price; and then to the su-preme court, and if he were beaten there he might go to the United States Supreme Court. And he might die ot old age before he got into jail. If you are poor, it's a quick job. You are we were all wise and knew all the facts we could figure it out.

In the first place there are a good many more people who go to jall in the with some person here or there with some peculiar formation of their winter time than in the summer. Why braid, like Rockefeller, who would do have no time to look after all these things simply to be doing them:

The it because people are more there with some peculiar formation of their here. Why and the could be anywhere else. The officials have no time to look after all these things simply to be doing them: he could be anywhere else. The officials of life. Nobody would steal if he could side, who are running banks and build-ing churches and making fails, they have no time to examine 600 or 700 prisoners each year to see whether they are guilty or innocent. If the courts were art as the presecutor-and give him as many detectives and as many assistants to the enly way to cure these conditions help, and pay as much money to defend is by equality. There is no jails. very able man for state's attorney, and he has many assistants, detectives and hear the cases-everything handy.

Mest all of our criminal code consists in offences against property. People in onences against property. People are sent to Jail because they have committed a crime against property. It is of very little consequence whether one hundred people more or less go to jail who ought not to go you must protect your property, because in this world roperty is of more importance than anything else,

How is it done? These prople wh have property fix it so they can protect what they have. When somebody com-mits a crime it does not follow that he has done something that is morally wrong. The man on the autilie who has committed no crime may have done something. For instance, to take all the coal in the United States which is Long ago Mr. Buckle, who was a specified in the united States which is great philosopher and historian, collected facts and he showed that the mumber of people who are arrested increased just as the price of food increased. When they put up the price of gas ten cents a thousand I do not know that a certain number of people will go to fail, but I do know that a certain number of people will go a aristocracy, who sent the people over to the united States, this is a greater of me will go aristocracy, who sent the people over to the united States, this is a greater of me than all the people in gas aristocracy, who sent the people over to the united States, this is a greater of me than all the people in gas aristocracy, who sent the people over to the united States, this fair a greater of me than all the people in gas aristocracy, who sent the people over to the united States, this fair a greater of me than all the people in gas aristocracy, who sent the people over to the united States, this fair a greater of me than all the people in gas aristocracy, who sent the people over to the united States, this fair a greater of me than all the people in gas aristocracy, who sent the people over to the united States. our julis ever committed, but the law does not punish it. Why? Because the laws. If you and I had the making of the laws, the first thing we would do would be to punish the fellow who gets are punished are property crimes. There committed are mostly those against property. If this is true the criminals must have a lot of property. How much money is there in this crowd? And yet the Lake Shore, they have not com-mitted crime. They have so much property they don't know what to do it. It is perfectly plain why these people have not committed crimes against therefore do not need to break them. And in order for you to get some propchance to get rich by carrying the hod for or dollar a day, twelve hours, and instead of taking that nice easy pro fession, you are a burglar. If you had a chance to be a banker you would rather follow that. Some of you may have a chance to work as a switchman on a railroad where you know according to statistics that you cannot live and keep all your limbs more than Again people find all sorts of ways seven years, and you can get fifty doi-of getting rich. These are diseases like lars or seventy-five dollars a month for taking your lives in your hands, and getting rich, organizing trusts, and instead of taking that lucrative posttion you choose to be a sneak thief, or something like that. Some of you made that sort of choice. I don't know which I would take if I was reduced to this choice. I had an easier choice.

I will guarantee to take from this jall, or any jail in the world, five handred men who have been the worst criminals and law breakers who ever got into fail, and I will go down to our owest streets and take 500 of the most abandoned prostitutes, and go out somewhere where there is plenty of land, and will give them a chance to make a living; and they will be as good people as any on the face of the earth.

There is a remedy for the sort of condition we see here. The world never finds it out, or when it does find it out it does not enforce it. You may pass a law punishing every person with death for burglary, and it will make no difference. Men will commit it just the same. In England there was a time able with death, and it made no the severe penalties and so fast as they did away with punishing men by death crimes decreased instead of increased; that the smaller the penalty the fewer the crimes.

Hanging men in our county jail does not prevent murder. It makes mur-

And this has been the history of the world. It's easy to see how to do away with what we call crime. It is not so easy to do it. I will tell you how to do it. It can be done by giving the people a chance to live—by destroying special privileges. So long as big criminals get the coal fields, so long as the big criminal has control of the city council and get the public streets for street cars and gas rights, this is bound to send thousands of poor people to fall. S long as men are allowed to monopolize all the earth, and compel others to live on such terms as these men see fit to make, then you are bound to get into

The only way in the world to abolish crime and criminals is to spolish the big one and the little ones together. Make fair conditions of life. Give men a chance to live. Abolish the right of the private ownership of land, abolish monopoly, make the world partners in production, partners in the good things get something of his own some easier way. Nobody will commit burglary when his house is full. No girl will go out on the streets when she has a comfortable place at home. The man who owns a department store may not be to blame himself for the condition of his girls, but when he pays them five ing the last quarter than during the The only way to cure these conditions They do not accomplish what they pretend to accomptish. If you would wipe them out there would be no more crimolicemen without end, and judges to inals than now. They terrorise nobody, They are a blot upon any civilization and a fail is an evidence of the lack of charity of the people on the outside who make the jail and place the man in control of jalis.

> HOLLAND. The general committee of the Holland Social Democratic Labor Party adopted the following resolution: "We hall the plan of the longshoremen to boycott Euglish vessels and thus to induce the English government to make peace with the South African republics, as a hopeful sign of an increasing self-assertion and reliance of the workingmen the boycott committee will carry its plan into effect when it is sure of the support of the workingmen of its trade, and when it has a sufficient boycott fund on hand; we express our full sympathy with the plan, although we can not bind our party members in the matter; and we indorse the position of the party members who have pledged their assistance in case the boycott is declared."

GERMANY.

The Bavarian Socialists collected 327,000 signatures protesting against the

roposed agrarian tariff.
A giance at the statistics of the em ployment agencies shows that the number of the unemployed has been steadily increasing since the end of last year. In certain branches of production from six to eight times as many men want help as can be placed. The trade unions have paid 38,259.52 Mark more in assistance to unemployed members dursame months last year.

The conditions are worst in the r industry. Not only have many men been discharged, but the wages of those who have not yet been forced to trump the streets in search of work, have been cut considerably. In many sheps the production has been restricted. In 417 machine shops of Berlin, 10,883 men less are employed this year than last. A similar condition confronts the laborers in other industries. In Berlin alone over 50,000 men are now out of work, and the crisis has not yet about the number of the unemployed and the posibilities of giving them work. The result of this inquiry among the employers is that they know noth ing of any great number of unemy Of course very little will be done by ings of the working people.

WHAT WE WANT TO DO. Our hall is not located in the most desirable part of the city, but there are no bad features in connection with it, such as saloons, etc. The rent is chemp and it does very weil for a "starter," and it does very weil for a "starter,"

We ought to have a large building, containing, besides the lecture hall, reading rooms, class rooms, music rooms, etc. Other features might well be added, such as baths and gymna-

We also wish hold meetings in all the wards of the city and get our speakers into trade union meetings, churches, etc. We can do all this, and much more, if the So-cialists of this city will join our organ-

im, etc., and run so as to pay actual cialists of this city will foll our or institution and help us push the work Many Socialists are working ou the organization, and think they or as truch as they can inside. This grave mistake, If Socialism to anything, it teaches the necessit organization. Socialism can pro-be defined as an organized system oc'ety, Every individual should be active and can do much, but the important work of the propaganda requires a thorough organization. Without the organization the work of the individual is spasmodic the work of the individual is spasmodic and bears little fruit, compared with the same amount of energy spent inside the organization in a co-operative way. The time has come when every Socialist should join the organized movement. He need not necessarily become an active member and endanger his position, but he can at least strengthen the movement by adding one more name to the list of dues-paying members (dues like per month, excused for sicknesses when out of work), and give the movement his moral support.

If in a position where you cannot take an active parf in propagating the prisciples of Socialism, as a Socialist, it is your plain duty to assist the organization that is deing the work, a duty that you one yourself, your children and society.

However in the course of human events it sometimes becomes necessary to isy aride to some extent that natural modesty and reserve which we have so long practised and suspend the rule for once. A testimonial which we received during the early part of this week, seems to justify this decision on our part, so at the risk of incurring the displeasure of the Post Office authorities we here reroduce verbatim the opinion of Worker's Call' its editor and its pro-prietors, the members of the Socialist Party of Chicago in general. ident at the Muslier's Hall Debate Shows How Capitalist Journalism Dreads the Truth.

The debate which occurred hast week at Mueller's Hall on the relative merits of anarchism and socialism, afforded getic work on the part of one comrade the capitalist press of the city and more in any of these towns will get together especially the Tribune, an opportunity the five members necessary to secure a to display to advantage that class consciousness, the lack of which on the part of the workers is the chief safe guard of capitalist supremacy.

The report | which appeared in the Tribune was in itself a marvel of ingenlous falsification, exaggeration and suppression. A shout for socialism which, came from the gallery at once became a "Hurrsh for Ezoigosz!" either in the reporter's notes or through subsequent censcrehip. The few hisses which greated Simons' challenge to his opponent to declare his position on the assessinationof McKinley, was readily translated into the "wildest scenes of disorder," while the whole report is written in a manner cal denunciations." Next day the Tribune's report contained practically every word of Isaak's assertion, but there was not even a hint that Simons had attempted to refute it thus creating the impression that Czolgosz was declared to be a socialist and the statement was allowed to pass unnoticed. The Inter Ocean also, which boasts that It is "the only paper in Chiago that dares to print the news," didn't dare to accept the challenge of the socialist speaker. Perhaps it wasn't 'news," or perhaps in this case discretion was the better part of valor." Or, which is still more probable, its nonappearance was due to a distinct conception of the danger of directing attention to the fact that, the "philosophy" of snarchism is merely the logic of capitalism carried to its legitimate conclusion.

At least one thing is certain-that tending to leave the impression that there is no capitalist paper in this city while neither of the debaters had said that dares to give its readers any inanything of particular importance, the fermation regarding socialism unless audience were worked up to an intense such information is first properly mutilpitch of excitement with "wild oratori- ated, distorted, partially suppressed, or

The Farmer as a Wage Earner by W. D. Mahon???

Socialism and Farmers by A. M. Simous. (Packet Library of Socialism, April 1908.)

When the farmer goes to finish the process of production and add these and place he finds that the instruments for this—the railroad telegraph, elevator and stock yards—belong to some one else who appropriates all the farmer has produced, save the share that labor has always received. A SCANTY LIVING.

When he tries to finish his process of production and add these two essential qualities of place and time he finds that the instruments for this—the railroads telegraphs, elevators, stock-yards, etc. belong to some one else, who appropriates all that the farmer has produced, save the same share that the laborate has niways received—a bare fiving.

Many and many a farmer has thus be come as completely enslaved to his self binder or sulky plow as any city works to the great factory in which he tells

Let us follow the same question in relation to improved machinery. The hand tools of a few years ago have gone and today machinery is as necessary to operate the farm as it is the shop and factory. Those who control the manufacture of machinery hold the farmer at their mercy, and we find the latter as much enslaved to his twine binder as the printer to his linotype machine. Another glance, and we find the far-tory system still further engrafting it-self upon the farmer. The creamery, cheese factory, beet sugar factory, are examples of the new industries that have been grafted upon the farm and are nothing more or less than a portion of the great factory system.

The farmers' products connected with these industries are absorbed by the owners of the plant, and the farmer who grows the fruit, beet or vegetables, receives simply the wage for his share of the labor performed upon the finished product. In many cases that wage is lower than that received by the employes within the walls of the factory. So I say that, on investigation, etc. The farm products connected these industries are absorbed by owners of the plants, and the far who grows the beets or furnishes milk and cream receives simply we for his share of the labor perfect upon the finished product, and not frequently these are even lower those paid employes within the wall the plant itself. Here at least to can be no doubt but that the integer of the wage-worker and the farmer the same.

Raising the Dead.

Now, in order to understand correctly the farmer's position we must remember that the production of a commodity consists in taking some portion of nature's product and transforming it into a form desired by man and then transporting it to a place where it can be used when wanted. Now, these three conditions are necessary to any kind of production; Form, place and time. No article has value or price until it has gone through all of these processes. The farmer may own the land, raise live stock, and grow grain in excess of his own needs, but while they are still on the farm the process of production has not been completed, for they are not at a place where they are wanted or can be used.

But let us for a moment consider farming as what it really is—simply a means of production of any grain, cartie, fruit, etc. Now, it has been pointed out that production of any commodity consists simply in taking some portion of the earth and changing it into a FORM desired by man, and then taking it into some PLACE where it can be used at a TiME when it is wanted. No matter how these different processes may be disguised or intermingled, they are all present and are all no article is produced until it has gone through all these processes and has not been completed, for they are some through all these processes and has not been completed. For many form of production, has not been completed times the proper forms as what it really is earling as what it

Socialists have long recognized the fact that not only have the capitalist class no intellectual weapons with which to combat the theories of anarchism, but they are also unable to account for its appearance. President Roseveit's message gives a curious illustration of this truth. We here submit two statements from that document the first presumably dealing with anarchism, the second incidental to recommending a more stringent inspection of imnigrants.

A "STATESMANLIKE DOCUMENT

No better illustration of the insipid flatness of the hourgeois mind could possibly be given than the reception which has been accorded to President Rocsevelt's message. Had this document contained clear solutions for all the problems with which modern society is confronted, there might be some excuse for the chorus of panegyric with which its appearance has been greeted. but that a string of commonplaces should evoke such an outburst of admiration proves beyond question that the great bulk of what is termed the "public" have either lost their nower of thinking or surrendered at to the keeping of the mouthpieces of capitalism, the press, the pulpit and the politicians, and stand ready to shout approval or condemnation as they get the

It seems that the declaration of Abra ham Isaak, that Czolgosz was a bette man than himself, has aroused the ire of Senators Foraker and Cullom, who both declare that if such is the case Isaak should be electrocuted at once, which is in itself pretty good anarchis logic on their part. Much as they prephy, they could not be dragged into a debate with him upon the subject Just as in Isaak's opinion Czolgo was a better man than himself because he had the "courage" to commit murdered to prove that they were better men than him. Anarchist and capitalist logic are not so far apart after all

"Anarchists should not, exist earth" says Cullom, "but inasmuch as they cannot be exterminated. I would be glad to see them sent to an island". But Foraker sees no impossibility in exterminating them. He thinks "they should be stamped out without delay or classes, the aforesaid "public" are too ceremony". Evidently these two distin-dult witted to appreciate it. But the guished statesmen are up against a 'problem", upon the nature of which they seriously differ.

As against the a archist idea capitalexperience in culogizing measures suit- ism is really powerless. When its ex-able to capitalist class rule, at so much pression takes on the form of murder, capitalism can do nothing but reply in kind, "Exterminate the capitalists" howls anarchist Johann Most in the columns of "Die Freiheit." "Extermin ate the anarchists" yells the entire crowd of capitalist politicians in reply. Withdraw from present society; take to part in it" says the "philosphical" anarchist, a la Tolstoi. "It is not possi ble to exterminate the anarchists" save the "philosophical" capitalist"withdraw them from society-send them to some island". "Let us refuse military service and the payment of taxes" says the passive anarchist. "You fellows want to destroy society" replies the active capitalist tax-dodger and the exploiter who does his patrictism by proxy. And in this manner charge and countercharge are passed backwards and for wards, neither side suspecting that the individualistic philosophy which is common alike to both renders the en tire controversy a stand off so far as anarchism is concerned.

> Socialists have always claimed that their movement alone represents the in- the case as follows: terests of the workingclass. No statement has been more persistently denied by the capitalist press, than this. Sometimes however it is possible even to get an admission of that fact in but is a girl nine years of age. Now The sentence refers to the SOCIALIST members in the German Reichstag who are opposing the enactment of a tariff lie Court by the child's own father, the upon foodstuffs imported into Germany But we hasten to explain that this confession, that the Socialists do really represent the workingclass, is only made because the action of these representatives happens to coincide with the present interests of American capital ism, which regards Germany as a mark et wherin to dispose of the surplu food products created by American

> Thus do material interests compel the capitalist press to tell the truthtimes-and sometimes even a little than the truth. The German socialist vote for instance, has increased marvellously since this tariff battle has attracted their attention. In 1898 (the last election). It was 2,125,000, but as there was no particular consolation in publishing these figures they did not often appear in the canitalist press. However, now that the Socialists are lowing grotesque collection of falsefighting against these distasteful duties. Bebel speak as the representative of than the "Kangaroos." 2,800,000 voters. Very impressive figures the nerve to give a lot of absolutely are they not? Two million eight hunownership of the means of production and distribution, but in demanding that American corn and meat shall be admitted freely into Germany!

It is comical to observe the fusa that a portion of the capitalist press is making regarding the distribution of prize money between Sampson and Schley. The former who was not in the fight gets $14,122, while Schley who was there receives but $3,334. What is wrong with this distribution anyhow? Doesn't it harmonize with the ideas of capitalism upon the subject? Should the man who does the work in the industrial field and who takes no risk, receive as much as the capitalist who though not pres the risk? Schley risked nothing m than the workman; Sampson took all the risk that the capitalist takes. Why should not the latter receive the nals who are boosting Schley at the expense of Sampson are in reality undermining the foundations of society,

CORRESPONDENCE.

A Word of Personal Explanation.

Since Comrade Goodspeed has seen fit to publicly denounce me for having debated the question of Socialism vs. Anarchy and since this fast has been seized upon by the capital'st press with the avidity with which always welcomes any action hostile to socialism I feel that I am entitled to a word of personal explenation.

In the first place any complaint about confusing socialism and anarchy comes with poor grace from the man who can claim the distinction of baving done more than any other man in America to so confuse them. It will be remembered that at was Comrade Goodspeed who by introducing an impossible and ridiculture resolution on the subject of the assassimation at a time and place where any such resolution was wholly out of nlace forced the Chicago. Sected. the assassination at a time and place where any such resolution was wholly out of place forced the Chicago Socialists to take a position that gave an excuse to the Associated piess for sending out lying telegrams declaring that Socialists sympathized with assassination. Fin-ally I would say that while I have been engaged in active propagands work for several years and have made hundreds of socialist speeches it has been very seldom that I have been able to learn of any direct and immediate converts to socialism through my work. But there has already come to my notice the fact that at least a haif dozen diff-erent persons who were present at the erent persons who were present at the lecture announced themselves as converted to Socialism in consequence of the debate. In view of the facts it seems to me that the policy of holding such debates is justified. Fraternelly, A. M. SIMONS

When production took the form of village communities, there was collectve ownership of the land and fools, and the produce was divided according to ertain rules and customs.

Under the guild system the master wned the raw material and tools, the apital. He managed the business and orked with his own hands. From the produce he supported his apprentices and paid his journeymen. The whole system was regulated by governmental supervision.

The past century, however, saw industry completely revolutionized. The laborer was now not only fundless but vithout tools as well. He possessed nothing but his labor power. Labor was thus separated entirely from capital, so that in production one class provided labor, another capital and land. Land being the first source from which the ruling class drew a return, we will consider that. In early times land was generally common property. Later it became private property, and which they call rent. Rent in this sense is for the use of land only and and $72,353,580 of common in the English language, and at the same time the most far reaching in its effects, is no doubt David Ricardo's work. He defines rent as "that portion of the produce of the earth which is paid to the landlord for the use of the original and indestructible rooms. the soil." He sums up his doctrine as it appears that this great trust is capitilized for more than four times the unlimited in quantity and uniform in original and indestructible powers of cause in the progress of alled into cultivation that rent is ever paid for the use of it." In other words, differences of soil. This is practically the position taken by J. S. Mill and a arge number of today's economists.

We come now to the return to capital n the form of interest and profit. the Trusts

Never since the world began has the wit of man hit on any other device for making money which would compare with the modern formation of trusts. And the trick consists in issuing enormous quantities of watered stocks to pay interest on which the workers are being taxed. As this is one of the most striking features of the formation of trusts now going on, Socialists should watch it and continually bear it in mind. A notable instance of this kind is the Steel (steal) trust. The trust was formed last March, after the laws of New Jersey had been modified to suit the incorporators. Originally it had a capital of $1,154,000,-000, consisting of $304,000,000 of bonds, and $425,000,000 each of common and preferred stock. These securities were issuable in exchange, at rates agreed upon, for the $773,971,471 of securities of the eight companies first absorbed, and for $25,000,000 in cash put up by the magnutes.

A few weeks later the Ar Bridge Company (capital $39,527,500 each of common and preferred stocks) and the Lake Superior Con cured a return for the use of land loon Mines (capital $29,425,941) were call rent. Rent in this absorbed, and $70,828,890 of preferred, must not be confused with the so-called new company were issued to exchange for old stocks.

The new capitalization was thus in-The most extensive treatise on rent in the English language, and at the no visible assets or real wealth to the onlimited in quantity and uniform in has absorbed. which appears to have hurt it very which appears to have hurt it very little, it earned enough money to pay good dividends on all this stock, and continue to do so.

In July, 1960, the Department of Labor at Washington issued a bulletin on "Trusts and Industrial Combinations," compiled by Prof. Jeremiah W. Jenks, talls of fifteen trade combinations to plants he shows could be reprofor 48 per cent of their capitalization, and he says: "It is probable, also, that the establishments reporting do not represent, on the whole, the n speculative of the larger combination whose securities are placed on the mar ket, and that in consequence the i cault shown here is much more favorable as of the manager, entrepreneur.

How then, is interest on the return exchange." Thus Prof. Jenks states that while these plants are capitalized for over twice their actual value, most of given by Böhm Barwerk. In his "Pos-itive Theory of Capital," he says : "In than that.

tions of the paper trust, then recently formed, and stating that the trust was capitalized for $55,000,000, while all its plants could be reproduced for $15,000, value of its plant.

Pacts like these might be multiplied indefinitely, but the point to which we now desire to call attention is that the the stock exchanges, and to pay interest on which the working class is being "fleeced," is made up principally of water. It is probably safe to eay that these securities, as a whole, are watered to three or four times their actual value, and every dollar which goes to pay either the principal or interest on these securities is earned by the sweat of some working man's brow.

To intelligent working men who have never been able to acquire a dollar except by actual work, and who find their decked for every hour of idleness, it must be an interesting sight to see these financiers manufacure hundreds of millions of dollars worth of fletitious "securities," and then bind them as a burden on the back of labor. And so the rich acquire fabulous fortunes without labor, and the poor work hard and see their earnings slip away from theth. This is one of the ways in which the great wealth is acquired which is being equandered in luxury, as in the case recently reported, of Mrs. Bradley-Martin, who has spent $1,250,000 on a necklace, while thousands of women by the hardest labor can get barely enough to hold soul and body together. These are too numerous for all to be reached, consequently, there has been an effort to destroy them. Referring to the effect of the recen debate at Mueller's Hall a correspondnt notifies us that a large number of workmen employed in a down town clothing factory attended the debate in question. Several were already Socialists, but the majority had avowed amarchistic views. Our currespondent states that since the debate every onof the latter has admitted that the logic lay completely on the Socialist side of the question; and all of them have signified their intention of joining the Socialist Party, the debate having been exhaustively discussed amongst them for a week or more after it had taken place.

INSIDE INFORMATION.

Partial relief is at last in sight for rs of Socialist papers, and writers subjects from the Sot standpoint, if they only know e to look for it. At present the reat financial and commercial jourcapitalism are coming to the rescue with well written articles, many of which are of the utmost value as Socialist propaganda, but which escape | test. journals in which they appear circulate classes, and only on very rare occasions come within range of the workingman's vision. There is no reason whatever these sources of information should not be utilized to the fullest ex- pointment should be confirmed. tent, as for several reasons they are even more valuable in some respects than similar matter written by avowed

Quite recently one such article ap peared in the columns of this paper. As our readers will no doubt remember, it was taken from the "Bankers" Magazine," and contained the enen admision that capitalism was based upor mental slavery of the producing Now this confession coming m such a source is in reality fat more valuable prapaganda than a sim lar declaration from a Socialist author, ch as it shows that in the inner the Socialist position is conceded

This week we publish an edite om the New York "Journal of Comree" which deals with the political ince of the trusts and which exelicitly admits that they are preparing ditions for the establishment of the ialist Commonwealth. It is needless to say that the "Journal of Commerce" is not intended for working class conption, and has no circulatio mgst them, it being a publication cially devised for the purpose, of supplying inside information to those who ride upon the backs of the lab areful consideration and to special tear in mind the source from which is manates. The appearance of such matter justifies the assertion that the shrewd calculating minds of those who are in present control of the industries of this country, can already distinctly ce the inevitable tendency towards locialism through the changes in pro duction and distribution. These mer save at least the merit, of not attempt ng to deceive themselves, even though they may for material reasons attempt to deceive others. This article only says in other words that the Socialist diagnosis of the econ omic future is correct. It gives substantially the same views of the trust roblem that Socialists have always eld. And in doing so it gives the lidirect to the effusions which appear on this subject in capitalist journals which circulate amongst the working class It cuts the ground from under the feet of the host of babbling knaves and fools who advocate publicity, regulating, itcensing, or smashing, as a "remedy" against trusts and combines, and incidentally demonstrates the utter inanits of such anti-Socialist howlers as Creelman, Corrigan, Rickaby, et al-

It was for publishing views almost identical with those of the "Journa! of Commerce" that Comrade Gaylord Wilshire's paper, "Challenge," was debarred from second-class mail privileges and forced into exile on British territory, but the Journal of Commerce runs no such risk. As before mentioned it circulates amongst "safe" people, whereas "Challenge" attempted to put the information within reach of all.

We shall draw upon these sources in future from time to time, as similar articles appear. Testimony towards the soundness of Socialist ideas is doubly convincing when it comes from the enemy If workingmen do not yet know enough to accept Socialism, perhaps the views of their masters on the subject may help them somewhat. At any rate wa feel perfectly cafe in helping capitalism "educate the masses" in this respect, even if by so doing we publish information that was not originally intended for the "common people." A good thing should be siways pushed along. What is sauce to the capitalist gander can also be served up to the working class goose.

OBJETION IGNORED.

It would be well for the organized workingmen of this country if they could lay aside their imaginary importance in the eyes of the capitalist class ong enough to take a glance at things as they really age. They would then discover that while at times it becomes necessary for their exploiters-to flatter. them, their normal attitude towards organized labor is really one of contempt and hostility, more open and undisguised when the votes of the workers are not in immediate request.

For instance the son of Judge Baker of injunction notoriety, has been recently appointed by President Booseveit to fill the place of Judge Woods that the British government systemas Supreme Court Circuit Judge for atically deprecates the naval strength Indiana. Against the appointment the A. F. of L. passed a resolution of pro-

large extent this contemptuous brushing away of the opinion of organized labor is deserved. There is really no reason at present way it should be treated in any other fashion. Working men who year after year surrender their political power into the hands of their exploiters, justify the action of the atter when they refuse to listen to their protests afterwards. Had the vote of organized labor been cost in its own interests last November, the President would probably have heritated to make an appointment so objectionable to the organized working class, and the s of capitalism the correctness of Tribune have had neither opportunity nor inclidation to add contempt to its natural hatred of the labor unions.

the recent A. F. of L. Convention, which requested that all affiliated labor odies hold absolutely aloof from the militia service, was laid on the table grown in numbers, influence and re-after a short discussion.' The eternal scurces; while it has raised wages, reand inalienable right of the union laberer to enrol himself in the militia for the purpose of protecting scabs is thus once ugain affirmed.

Without a single exception the captalist press has endorsed the confuct ruling class-progress along this line of the American Federation of Labor n not opposing the introduction of cigar making machinery, although such ntroduction was bound to displace many skilled workmen in that trade, It gives them an opportunity of making favorable contrast between the intelligence of the American and the Britsh working class who through their opposition to the installation of new machinery, have thereby lost to their masters, commercial supremacy in the world's markets. But the next step in the evolution of this intelligence will hardly be as satisfactory to the explotters. When the organized working men demand collective ownership of this improved machinery of production, as they undoubtedly will in the near future, they will sound a different sort of ofe. To the capitalist class the limit of intelligence on the part of the work ers, is confined to their allowing their labor power to be exploited by the most improved machinery.

A glance at the alluring advertisements with which the store window are now occupied, in reference to the approaching holidays, brings out one of curfous contradictions in the capitalist with which is often overlooked. The teachers of so-called "political economy" and the big employers, always lay great stress upon the virtue of thrift. The latter are incessantly telling the wage-slave to save his money and he will get ahead, and at the san time are constantly displaying seduc nds. to induce him to loosen up and let go of his coin, and in order to still further induce him to follow their advice, they hold out such baits as 'selling below cost," "easy paymen plans," "your credit is always good," etc., etc. When both sides of the matter are taken into consideration, the hypocritical faisity of the capitalist system stands out prominently.

To begin with, how can a working man save when he can hardly secure the necessaries of life at present? How much less can be be expected to save when his exploiters foist upob him in a glaring and misleading manner those artices that he cannot fall to wish for but can never pay for? If he goes in debt to secure them and sickness had luck leaves him unable to pay for the stuff he thus buys on the instalment plan, he is at duce served with ments and followed up and rur down until his life is made unbearable Advice of this sort given to the work ing class from their plunderers always has the merit of being impracticable, and only because of this is it given-

We have not observed that the capitalist press is putting forth any extraordinary efforts to arouse "public opinion" in behalf of Santiago Iglesias. the Porto Rican labor agitator who was recently sentenced under the Spanish laws to three years imprisonment for "conspiring to raise the price of labor." The fact that Iglesias is a Socialist may perhaps account to some extent for this negligence.

An American naval officer declares of the country in order to scare the nation into voting vast sums for its extension, and leaves the inference that this would be a good policy to imitate on this eide of the water. However, All that is needed is to tell the working He feeds on us; he is a shirk; eral million dollars' worth of products more than they can consume, a larger navy is wanted to pound into the heads of foreigners the fact that they must onsume the surplus. At least that is the manner in which Mr. Chauncey M. Depew usually presents the question.

We notice that Hunna didn't tell the delegates to the "capital and labor conference" that the next struggle would take place between the Republican and ocialist parties, as he has declared on previous occasions. e. Self-perpetuation which impels the capitalist class (through injunctions is sued by servile courts) to repress the power of trude unions, has injected a vital political issue into a herefofore economic organization. The New Convert's eyes glistened but the Revolutionist ruthlessly broke in: "More pipe greams. You utopians are always reciting the history of the future. The hell of capitalism is also paved

More people are finding out every day hat the Socialist Party is on earth.

John D. Rockefeller knows that Presdent Harper will never ask him where he got it.

Gov. Yates is class conscious. Being politician himself he is naturally ooking out for politicians. It is the exploiters of labor, who are

Professor Geo. E. Vincent believes that adopting resolutions is a vice to which the American people are specially addicted. Can it be that this is a side thrust at the recent A. F. of L. convention?

Why this howl about the city bridge tenders? Don't they give employment? And if this excuse is good enough to justify the existence of the capitalist class, why is it not also sufficient in their case?

If Santiago Iglesias had only "conspired to lower the price of labor" Porto Rico instead of raising it, he could have been pointed out as a brilliiant example of how the island is being Americanized.

It would be rather difficult to convince Dowie that there is any great dificulty in the way of the capitalist "taking his capital out of the country especially after his experience with his brother-ih-law Stevenson

Everyone has laughed at his talk on anarchy and pointed out that he has but re-echoed the howlings of the new paper press. His trust remedy is easy to ridicule. The steel trust, from motives of business policy, has already adopted the principle of publicity and has not suffered in the least-It would probably like to see all its rivals forced to adopt the same policy and there is just a chance that this wish of the steel trust may have been father to the publicity thought in Rooseveit's brain.

It is worth while to notice in connec tion with his treatment of the trust question that he definitely throws be hind him the traditional political economy which has ever been the support of capitalism. There are two sentences in this por tion of the message which are striking in the deductions which logically flow from them. "Whoever captrols a stream practically controls the land it renders - says Roosevelt. rels the man who mustiuse it," is the logical corollary of this statement. What then does Roossyelt conclude rom his premise? "In the arid states the only right to water which should be recognized is that of use," he conent questions. Eight of them voted in tinues. But you have just shown that monopoly is due to 'matural causes' under capitalism, and that therefore the same thing holds true regarding the ist society that exists with relation to water in the arid belt. /The conclusion which logically follows is that "After capitalism has monopolized the instruments of production the only right to them which should be recognized is that of use." That is the whole Socialist argument and it is plain that Roosevelt too is "coming our way."

Some of the "workers with capitalist minds" have been trying to tell socialists that if Rocsevelt only knew what Madden was doing in the second class mail division, his (Rooseveit's) "sense of fairness" would prevent the continuregarding the need of "reducing the postal deficit." Hence we may be sure that Madden is but the office boy, the tool in the hands of much stronger for ces behind the throne. SOCIALISM IN CANADA.

Ontario Comrades Meet in Convention and Prepare for a Campaign of Education.

The Socialists of the Province of Ontario met in convention in Toronto on Thanksgiving day, about seventy delegates being present from all parts of Ontario, there being twenty-five leagues in various parts of the province. The chief work of the organization was the formation of a central organization to carry on the work which has been done in a temporary and semi-organized condition in the past. The convention resulted in an executive committee of nine members being formed, together with a permanent secretary who is to be an ex-officio, member of the executive committee. These officers are as follows: Provincial Chairman, James Simpson, Toronto; Vice-chairman, R. N. Price, St. Thomas; Secretary, G. Weston Wrigley, Toronto; Treasurer, Mrs. Darwin, Toronto: J. Charles liten, J. D. Mulhelland, Brantford; It. Powers, Orillia; J. D. Munro, Kaga-ong: William Wilkinson, Ingersoll. This executive will draft a constituion and platform and submit it to a eferendum vote of the local leagues, name decided upon being the Ontario Socialist League. 14 was proposed that the organization be called the Ontario Socialist Party, but as the work of the organization will be largely educational for the coming year, and as it is proposed to organize a Canadian Socialist Party next September, Comrade John Spargo of New York, who was present, ecommended the choice of the name chosen. Comrade Spargo addressed the convention several times, and his presence was of great value to the comrades here, who had had no previous experience in organized Socialist work. Comrade Spargo is making a five weeks tour of Ontario addressing meetings on

Only two branches being represented at our last meeting it was decided t rn it for one week. Notices we sent to all the branches to have their delegates present at the meeting next Sunday, 10 a.m., at Crofford's Hall, corner California and Elston avenues. Calling of ward conventions and other important matters will be attended to All comrades of the 26th and 27th wards have a voice and vote on the proceedings and are invited to attend.

SAM ROSBINS, Organizer.

Last week an unfortunate street car conductor was ground to death under the wheels of a switch engine on a He had left the car and ran ferward so as to signal to the motor man as to whether the track was clear. While thus engaged in looking after the safety of his passengers, the engine passed over his body, mutilating it beport states. His gold-watch was flat-tened out on the rails, his pockets ripped open and the company's money which he had collected as car farca scattered along the track. For an hour after the accident, says the news item a crowd of men and boys searched the inity locking for nickels and dinies. It is remarkable the amount of eager-ness displayed by the public in seizing every opportunity to defraud a corporevery opportunity to defraud a corpor-ation of its earnings, and it is only to that such an exhibition can be attrib at such an exhibition can be attrib-ed. In these times of unparalleled osperity nickels and dimes are of urse of no great importance in them-wes unless produced under peculiar cumstances such as above stated.

San Francisco Gets the Next Term Of The Training School.

Walter Thomas Mill , A. M., Principal. George D. Herron, Chas. H. Vail, J. d. Wayland, A. M. Simons, Jas. B. Smiley and Peter Sissman, Board of Examiners.

For Socialist Workers.

The first term of this Training School closes at Girard, Kas., December list. No school was ever undertaken which so fully met the expectations of the triends. A large number of the students will go at once into the field as party workers.

Of the twenty-two students in the regular course all are arranging to take another term, after a period of actual experience in field work. Five of the number will go to San Francisco for the next term. Forty-nine students are allready pledged for the SanFrancisco term. It will begin March 15, 1902, and last for 12 weeks. The next fall term at Girard will open with more than 100 students.

The course of study at San Francisco will include lessons in Social Economy, History, Veice Training, Practice in Speaking, the Preparation of Addresses, Parliamentary Practice, Methods of Study, Campaign Tactice, How to Canvas and to Organise, Correction of Common Errors in Speech and Physical Culture.

The tuition will be ten dollars. Mr. Mills will have three asistants in the school work. There are now almost a thousand comrades taking the course of the twenty lessons in Social Economy by correspondence.

If you wish to go into the field as a continual worker for Socialism, you should come to the Training School. Whether you can come to the Training School or not, you should take the correspondence work at once. Send stamp for circular to

If not, they heart to heart talk from one set of capitalists to another, there was no need of putting on any mask. It is all very to palaver about the brotherhood of labor and capital when talking to the reporters for the daily papers, or when Chicago stands out with more convin olding "Arbitration Congresses" with a lot of labor fakirs, because this kind of talk is cheap and makes the laborers feel good, and, most important of all, keeps him from doing any such foolish thing as voting for himself instead of But when the Chicago Real Estate

So, instead of talk ing about labor as a brother, we find that, as the Socialists have always said, to the capitalist taber is a commodify to be purchased as cheaply as possible This is the way the capitalists of Chi-cago advise their brother capitalists oncerning the cheapness of human fleth and blood in this city:

Just what class are in reality running the affairs of the world may be judged from the fact that while Chile and Argentine were making preparations war, the government of the former country found it necessary to assure the firm of Rothschild that in the event of hostilities their financial interests would be safeguarded.

A news item states that John D. Rockefeller is now engaged in chopping wood for his health, as he is suffering from indigestion and can hard's eat a full meal as yet. SPEAKS FROM EXPERIENCE

Education is a good thing, but only long as dominant class interests are not threatened thereby, so it is not at all strange that the mouthpieces of German capitalism should warn the U. S there is danger of overdoing it. The ector of the Berlin University is quoted as declaring that Andrew Carnegie's offer to found a $19,000,000 National University at Washington will if accepted help to flood the country with surplus intellectual talent which will ecome dangerous in inciting to social discontent. This is equivalent to saying nat under capitalism, men whose brains have been specially cultivated and who find themselves standing idle in the market place, because there are too many of them, invariably turn to Sociadsm as the way out. The German ruling classes have long had an experience of this sort with their "intellect ual proletariat," and know well the reality of the danger which the rector of Berlin University alludes to.

But what can Carnegie do with wealth? He cannot invest it, simply because there is no room, the billion dollar steel trust having closed the last door. He does not wish to die "disgraced" as he puts it, and now come within reach of those who might otherwise be unable to secure it. It certainly does look as if capitalism was rapidly approaching the last ditch when ever the efforts of its beneficiaries to educate the masses with the proceeds of the plunder extracted from their labor, threatens to help along the movemen which avowedly exists for the purpos of destroying the capitalist system Surely all roads lead to Socialism in these days.

im what subjects are or are not "edifying," irrespective of what ideas he may have upon the matter himself.

"The bourgeoisie," says Marx in the Communist Manifesto, "has stripped of its halo every occupation hitherto the lawver the priest, the man of science, into its paid wage laborers."

To this category the Kaiser no dshes to add the artists. He needs them in his business and has taken the opportunity to notify them of the fact.

Nevertheless he won't get them. Any painter or sculptor who will meekly acquiesce when a bumptions showman like the Kalser tells him "You will take your orders from me, I need you for purposes of my own," is a slave, no an artist

But perhaps the Kaiser merely want ed to warn them against Socialism, which, as is well known, destroys "individuality." 1

RAISING THE CURTAIN

Attorney Hardy who was engaged for the defense in the recent jury-bribing cases, stated in court that he didn't believe there was a railroad company in the State of Illinois that does not engage in the practice of bribing furies and that the practice had become universal. It was his client's misfortune he added, to have worked for a street this warning against his philanthropic railway company who did this kind of efforts to place a high class education dirty work, but the officials concealed this fact from his client, etc.

It might be properly asked how th defendant could be considered unfortunate if the practice is universal. If Attorney Hardy's belief is well founde his client was certainly running n greater rick than the legal adviser of any other railroad corporation. It is strange also that the latter was not a well posted on the universallity of the practice as the lawyer who defended

Depitalist Magazine Waits Not for Postal Decision But Goes Straight Abred

The following advertises ad by "Printers' Ink," the leading paper in the advertising business America, and was submitted to the New York postmaster to find outswhether such action would endanger the second class entry.

The lesue for February 5th will be mailed to every Boot and Shoe Dealer in the United States, numbering a total of 21.888. The names will be taken from the Shoe and Leather Reporter Annual.

The issue for February 19th will be malled to a complete let of all general advertisers in the United States, numwill be taken from the Reference Boo of the Publishers' Commercial Union.

The primary purpose of these Sample Copy Editions is to induce new sub-scribers and an additional advertising patrenage for Printers Ink.

The New York postmaster was not able to give a decision, and telegraphed to Washington for instructions. Eleven days later Madden-had not yet made up his mind (great bodies move slowly); and so Printer's lnk announces that the advertisement will hold good. pariment at Washington was ir a state of equal ignorance. There appeared to be no doubt that if Printer's Ink would go shead and DO what it proposed, without asking questions, it would be all right. It also appeared that one reason why the New York postmaster, and the department at Washington as well, hesitated about saying yes or no to the inquiry, was because Printer's to the inquiry, was because Printer's Ink is in the habit of speaking out in meeting and jetting postal decisions be known as well as discussing their just-

SHAP SHOTS BY THE WAYSIDE

French military authorities are growing disturbed because within the past three nonths several conscripts have refused o bear arms, alleging that their relig ous convictions forbade them to do so One youth who had resided for a dozen rears in the United States and who re fused military service, is alluded to as having returned to his native land anisated by "lawlessness and a false idea of liberty masked in the guise of eyangelical Christian convictions." This inident shows plainly enough how religous beliefs are molded and shaped by the necessities of capitalism. In this country where the ruling classes have had no need for compulsory military ervice, the idea of the sinfulness of hearing arms could easily grow up un checked, and the reputation of those holding it as law-abiding, right-thinking citizens remain unchallenged. In rance, on the other hand, the idea is branded as both lawless and false, and the individuals holding it as woriny of hment. The interests of the ruiing class of any given country determine in great measure, the truth or falsity of what are called "religious convictions."

In connection with the above it may e noted also that a Socialist named Herve, a professor of history in the Lycee at Paris, has just been dismissed from his position for advocating ideas opposed to fallitarism. His case was disussed in the Chamber of Deputies and his removal demanded on the ground that his ideas were incompatible with his position as a professor, and that if many professors were to follow his example there would be "an end What was really meant by France. this statement was that capitalism would come to an end when working men can no longer be persuaded into murdering each other in the interests of the exploiting classes.

Evidently the high moral purpose of American capitalism in attempting to uplift the Filipinos, has slipped a cog somehow. Now comes General Chaffee with a report stating that the actions of these ungrateful islanders are unparalleled in history. They have all-practically turned "traitors." Pretending friendship to the invaders they have even when ostensibly in the service of the powers that be, actually organized in secret hostile bands to overthrow said powers. No other people, the General thinks, "ever displayed such masterly powers of secrecy and dissimulation." The Filipinos may perhaps be pre-eminent in this policy, but they have no monopoly of it. Secrecy and dissimulation have always been the weapons of the weak. Those who can not act openly must and do act secretly, as all history shows plainly, notwithstanding the opinion of General Chaffee

Did General Chaffee never hear of the native conspiracies against British rule in India, and the marvellous secrecy and dissimulation employed there in? Has he never heard of Irish soldiers entering the British army for the deliberate purpose of fomenting military insurrection? Or of the law-abiding burghers of South Africa who apparently accept the rule of the conquere and secretly assist the guerillas who ent in Russia where the terro ngendered by "secrecy and dissimula tion" penetrates every apartment of the which cannot be trusted to shoot striking workmen? Scores of similar illustrations could be given showing that this secrecy and dissimulation was nevwidespread as at present, and it that it has its origin not in any inheren vickedness of humanity, but in the effort of the ruling classes to crush out all open opposition to their supremacy

There are probably ten times as many Liquor Dealers' Association, but never-theless the former are now PETITION-ING the Sensite to discourage the issuance of injunctions, while the latter are declaring that they are going to knock out the winercom ordinance in spite of all opposition. How are these very different attitudes to be accounted for? One might naturally suppose that the least numerous body would be the one to do the petitioning, while the larger one boldly declared its intention to redress its own grievance. But intelli-gence without numbers counts for more than ignorance with numbers, and the workingmen of Chicago might well get a pointer or two from observing how the saloon keepers go about getting an objectionable law removed.

While American children are suposed to eagerly welcome the coming of Santa Claus, the inhabitants of Europe are naturally scared into fits over his approach, if we can believe the Daily News, which states editorially that "the appailing vision of a Santa Claus weardecked ribbon on his hat, naturally is occasioning trouble in Europe." This of course is an allusion to the "Amerior course is an allusion to the "Ameri-can invasion" which is flooding Europe with goods of American make. The same editorial contains the statement that the American graphophone pur-chased by Emperor William will deck the Kaiser's Christmas tree and "con-tribute to the gayeties in his house-hold." Curious how capitalism makes everything appear toosy-turny. everything appear topsy-turvy. Ever Santa Claus must appear in a dua

Trades Union Men Line Up for the Figu Against Capita ism

A correspondent from Erie, Pa., sende us some very significant informatio regarding the progress of Socialism in hat city. The local Socialists held their city convention on December 12th, with about 60 delegates present. Twenty trades unions were represented by two delegates each and displayed a most intense interest in its proceedings, the onest and open methods of a Socialist convention, divested of the political trickery and underhand work prevalcapitalist politics, appealing strongly to their sense of justice and air play. The trades union members have entered into the campaign with such energy of purpose that the election of the entire ticket, our correspondent informs us, is almost certain.

The Erie comrades have requested assistance from Chicago in the matter of campaign speakers; most of the party members there being comparatively new in the movement; there has not been sufficient time to develop enough local talent to carry on this necessary feature of the campaign. Any Chicago comrade who has a week or so at his disposal between now and February 18th (election day in Erie), and wishes to volunteer his services (all expenses paid), can be placed in communication with the Erie comrades by inquiring at the office of the Workers

The nature of the awakening of organized labor in Erie can perhaps best be understood by reproducing in these columns the circular call issued by the local Socialist party, to which they responded. There is no suspicion of San Francisco of Bridgeport about it:

San Francisco of Bridgeport about it:
Your organization is hereby invited and requested to send two delegates to the city convention of the Socialist Party, to be held at our headquarters on Thursday, December 13th, 1861, at 5 p. m., for the purpose of nominating a full working class ticket for the municipal election.

It is with no purpose to commit your body as an organization to political action that this invitation to participate the largest possible opportunity to the wage workers of this city to take part in, naming the only ticket that will represent their interests to be voted for at the coming election.

It ought not to be necessary to call your attention to the innumerable instances in which the powers of government have been used against het wage workers. From the highest to the lowest the legislative, executive and judicial functions of government are in the hands of the capitalists—placed there by the votes of the wage workers.

Monopolies and Trusts

hopeless characteristic of the closing days of our cycle is the stupendous aclation of private fortunes in the bands of a few, and the corresponding growth of pauperism, inlsery, political and industrial slavery on the part of the many. Chicago holds more noxious basis. They do a work that in no other and greedy millionaires than the whole country contained forty years ago, and the like is true of every one of our chief his product, is no longer able to exist cities and congested centers. Seeley cides, infanticides, divorces, murders trust is, therefore, the natural growth and despay increase step by step with of industry, it is here to stay and ought rich and the poor. These great modern fortunes are made-not by useful production, but by bribery, class legislation, and special privilege. They are elling that way at present. Free the born of monopoly and the iniquitous industries, make them equally the proprobbery of labor, Millions of tolling workers go every winter with scanty food, clothing and fire, that the proceeds of their ill-paid labor may heap the coffers of the wealthy, speculating idler.

These are grim, heart-breaking facts, but there is also a mighty undercurrent-growing stronger every day-that is pulling the nation as with the slient force of gravitation, the other way. The power so fiercely at work to subjugate and crush, can be transformed and made to redeem the evil time. The economic conditions which are now the menage of our civilization, and the forces that are wrecking us, can be made to waft the ship of state safely into port. The day is at hand when a pauper will be as impossible as a milinaire. The very spirit of greed is teaching us the wastefulness of bling competition. The lesson of our present national misery is being taught so well that it will never be forgotten or need a repetition. The very selfishness in human nature is teaching us the splandid economy of combination, the wise thrift of co-operation, and the financial soundness of the principles which under-He the monopolies and trusts. This lesson is being learned so well that all men will receive it-even the wayfaring man, though a fool.

The trusts are the sure pathway by which the nation is to go safely through the Red Sea of an outworn and ruinous social system. The trusts have come to stay. Be sure of that; they have come to stay. The gigantic combinations of the present and future require them, and the enormous waste of competition is saved, for they mean mbination and the union of interests The movement is the outgrowth of natural conditions and is sure to continue until all industrial activities are brought into a system of co-operation by the whole people, for the benefit of the people, A trust is air unmixed good—only the whole people must own and operate it.

Any attempt to crush out, control or legislate against this movement by the politicians is hopelessly absurd. If you tax the trusts, they will increase the price of their products and make you pay the tax. If you put in force the Texas law that refuses them the courts collect their bills, it will not effect in advance, and will use this law as and they will be found doing business usual at the old stand, Why are we thing the should fear is not the monopthe trusts?" is "RUN THEM." Then all the people will have the benefit of the trusts. This is where they will culminate. They are unconsciously doing the work that must be done before industrial liberty and equality can come to bless mankind, We have achieved political liberty, through the trusts the people will gain industrial liberty, and then will man be truly free. Tomorrow the sweetshop will be as the old tell gate is now. We stand at the near end of commercial warfare and the beginning of economic peace. The trusts will continue to grov in number and power until the middle class is practically extinguished. In the very nature of things these forces must then unite in one harmonious whole and pass into collective ownership and control. No power on earth can arrest this process of economic transformation. Industrial despotism, with its masters and slaves; its pomp, pride and poverty; its theffs, murders and suicides its prutal wars and sham patriotism its militarism and its immonon worship will end forever; and wage-slavery with its hell of daily and nightly herror, will take its place in history with

The present short-sighted futile war against the trusts is merely an effort to per petuate the crumbling system of tourpoverty and degradation of the people.

I ratie no voice against the trustbut would encourage them to the utmost, until the nation, schooled by experience, forms a trust of the whole people, by the people and for the peodure to the end of time. The wors trust is the best, because in the interest of the common welfare it is guiding the millions to see that if combination can make a few brutal Mark Hannas, it can as easily make seventy millions o producers satisfied, thrifty and comfortable. The prophet of our age reads writing of the economic law upon the wall. He reads the decree that by a ombination and co-operation which in ciudes all the race in its sheltering arms is the commonwealth of the world to be formed and realized.

Socialism is treading in the wake of the trusts. Politics, with the moral law squeezed out, is what the government is dealing in. The world owes every man a living—if he can get it. It depends largely on the man. If he is an ordinary voting mule, he may find suicide easier than competition, and he will be much happier over there on the evergreen shore, unless he bumps up against a trust in harps and haloes. But if he has financial sharpness, gushing-Rockefeller-piety, and a callous heart, he can keep himself very much alive on this side, driving other men to suicide: and his picture will hang in the chape of some great university, inspiring the youthful students to emulate his shining example. It is the rich who mak the poor poorer, and it is the poor who make the rich richer. The millions who have nothing make the money for the milionaire. The benevolent rich will do anything for the working class, except to get off their backs. How men think highly, nobly, clearly, when the chief object in life is to acquire the wealth which others have produced? While the Socialists are demanding public ownership, the millionaires have already put it in practice-they own th public! The men who have created the trusts are swiftly bringing in So cialism, for they are making conditions which will force the people into this new phase of life us the only escape from slavery to the restless financial

The Coroner had not been notified, when the police were called by neighbors.

The police went to the house and found Mrs. Hollatz weeping in a rear room, while in an adjoining one lay the dead body. She said her husband had been afflicted the last two years with consumption and had been unable to work as a result of his weak condition. The little money used for the sustendance of the couple was earned by lifes. Hollatz. The deceased was 67 years old. "The case was called to my aftention by the pelice," said the County agent. SEEN FROM INSIDE.

How the Presentation of Christmas Gifts to Employee Looks to Those Behind the Scenes.

As might have been expected, the Christmas season has been utilized to the upon the philanthropic attitude of Chicago employers towards those who make their wealth possible. On the surface these reports apparently substantiate-the conclusions intended to be derived from them, but seen from the uside, they present a rather different appearance.

As an illustration of the above the ase of the American Express Company may be taken as an example Every one of its employes according to the press reports received a $10 gold piece as a Christmas present from the firm. This generosity has been lauded in language that would hardly be justihundred gold pieces instead of one.

But the matter wears asother comlexion altogether to those employes stand the nature of this "Greek gift." are compelled to work from 12 to 14 New York Worker. hurs a day, and during the last week from f4 to 18 hours, for which they get NO OVERTIME whatever, and this ondition has prevailed for some years. But thereby bangs a tale which may perhaps make interesting reading.

About three years ago one of the em loyes with a trifle more gumption and ombativeness than the average, upon being discharged by the Company, brought suit against them for overtime and presented a bill for $500 or thereabouts. The company bushed the matter up and settled for somewhere between $300 and $400. This action caused several others to follow his example and they succeeded in extracting summer for from $25 to $50 on the same grounds This alarmed the company, who determined at once to put an end to this seeming extortion. They brought "morpeasants in a military execution for al pressure" to bear upon the employes and induced them to accept $1.50 as payment in full for all overtime to date Thus "freedom of contract" was preserved. Since that time the company has been making an annual Christmas present to its employes of $5. This year large sized kick amongst the latter who asserted that $5 was insufficient to pay for the overtime, induced the company to double the amount in order, of ourse, to preserve "narmony" between capital and labor." Just before this, the company began to show its good will by supplying the employes with supper during the late hours. Tickets, good at a certain restaurant, were distributed amongs them, the company getting a liberal discount on the purchase. The conse quence was that when the employe visited this place they were neglected in favor of the cash paying customer and were generally forced to satisfy their hunger with what they could get after the former had been served. This in turn created a dissatisfaction which to some extent no doubt also explains the extra' $5 peace offering presented

It is in the highest degree probable ployes of this Express Company work represent in the main those in other industries, where the gratitude of the wage slaves has been evoked by the presentation of a trifling sum of money at the Christmas season. Out of the swelling volume of unpaid labor which the capitalist extracts from his wage slaves during the festive season, a beggarly pittance is thrown, as one might throw a bone to a dog. In the capitalist press it takes the form of a generou unsolicited gift, a hearty recognition of merit, for, which the recipient should be duly grateful. In realty it merely represents a "sop to Cerberus" a con cession wrung from unwilling greed, this "gift horse in the mouth," will recognize the truth of the sketch given bove, though perhaps they may not be in a position to openly admit he correctness, which fortunately is not the case with -A FORMER SLAVE.

Restricting the Output.

In the opinion of Mr. Schwab "re which must be given up if harmony be labor and the desire to lessen its intensity for the men actually employed, has far greater influence in restricting the output than any solicitude for the unemployed on the part of the trades unions. When the capitalist press di-ater upon the shortcomings of the Briti-ish trades unions, they bring this point out plainly enough. They don't recognize the altruistic spirit of the British give as little as possible in labor and get as much as possible in wages, while the interest of the capitalist is to get as much labor as possible for the least eternal jangling about the fair day's work, and in consequence the restriction of the output. It may be a disatmost by the capitalist press to dwell agreeable truth, but all truths are disagreeable which show the capitalist system as it really is.

Scab Poetry. Ella Wheeler Wilcox has something of a reputation as a sort of non-partisan Socialist. She is employed by the New York Journal, which talks such mild and harmless Socialism nine months in the year to catch the workingmen's attention in order that it may diminished all the same, so do not think sell them out to capitalist politicians in campaign time. Mrs. Wilcox has had two books of poems published lately. Whom did she select to publish them? "The Schley case," says the Chicago Tribune, "is troubling the farmer, the mechanic, the laborer, and almost every man, woman and child in the United States." Wonder if the hundred thousand odd people who were indebted to capitalist charity for a free Christmas dinner are included in thit category?

NORTH SIDE.

The address of Comrade J. B. Smiley at the meeting held at Senefelder Hall, 565 Wells street, was a treat. "The Trusts" were ably handled by the comrade, and those present enjoyed the ecture immensely. A collection was taken up and some literature sold. The 22d ward Aldermanic convention was held last Monday at 58 Clybourn avenue, and Robert Bauer, carpenter, 362 Blackhawk street, was nominated. Comrades still having in their possession money for the Winter Festival or for the debate are requested to turn in money or tickets AT ONCE. All accounts must be closed. All comrades in the North Division should attend the discussion meetings at 133 N. Clark street on Tuesday evening, also following each public meet-

SOUTH SIDE.

The literary and social entertainment held at the hall, 763 W. 656 street, last Friday evening, was fairly well attended. The literary and musical features were well enjoyed. The sale of bashets for the lunch was spirited, the net pro-ceeds amounting to about $6.00. The total net proceeds of the entertainment will reach about $12.90.

Comrade Berlyn spole at the Sunday evening mass meeting to a fair-sized audience.

eech in England.

The recent pro-Boar meeting to Bir-mingham, England, which was broken up by toughs, gives the capitalist press up by toughs, gives the capitalist press of this country an opportunity to assume a "holier than thou" attitude towards free spench in England, which to say the least is an amusing illustration of nerve and assurance. Socialists who remember the concerted attacks made by the refuse of the leves upon Socialist meetings during the presidential election, and the attitude of the capitalist press towards these outrages, will be fully able to estimate the sincerity of the strictures upon British ruffan. the strictures upon British ruffianat these pro-Boer assemplines. It eestind these capitalist critics that people who live in glass houses should not throw stones, for the cold fact is that in this country the ruling classes no ager depend upon mob violence for the suppression of movements that are nable to the powers that be.

A carefully and secretly organized press censorable is found more effective in this respect. A few stupid or pliable tools in the post office, to act as censor of revolutionary literature, 'a welltrained staff of editorial writers and journalists who hold their jobs through their ability to distort, fairify or suppress matter which the exploiting classes disapprove of, a press bureau com-mitted wholly to the interests of cap-Italism, these weapons have been found far more serviceable in the suppression of free speech than any breesponsible mob could possibly become. The only justification for the sneers of the cap-italist press anent free speech in England lies in the fact that their method of suppressing it are out of date and antiquated, where compared with the improved machinery used here for the
